Where any amount is transferred to or from any reserves, or to any provision for liabilities, or from any provision for liabilities otherwise than for the purpose for which the provision was established, and the reserves or provisions are or would, but for their inclusion combined with other items¹, be shown as separate items in the company's balance sheet², the following information must be given in respect of the aggregate of reserves or provisions included in the same item:

- 1306 (1) the amount of the reserves or provisions as at the date of the beginning of the financial year³ and as at the balance sheet date⁴ respectively;
- 1307 (2) any amounts transferred to or from the reserves or provisions during that year; and
- 1308 (3) the source and application respectively of any amounts so transferred⁵.

Particulars must be given of each provision included in the item 'other provisions' in the company's balance sheet in any case where the amount of that provision is material⁶.

In relation to a large or medium-sized company⁷, the amount of any provision for deferred taxation must be stated separately from the amount of any provision for other taxation⁸.

747. Details of indebtedness.

For the aggregate of all items shown under 'creditors'¹ in the company's balance sheet² there must be stated the aggregate of the following amounts:

- 1309 (1) the amount of any debts included under 'creditors' which are payable or repayable otherwise than by instalments and fall due for payment or repayment after the end of the period of five years beginning with the day next following the end of the financial year³; and
- 1310 (2) in the case of any debts so included which are payable or repayable by instalments, the amount of any instalments which fall due for payment after the end of that period⁴.

In relation to a large or medium-sized company⁵, the terms of payment or repayment and the rate of any interest payable on each debt falling so to be taken into account must be stated⁶; but if the number of debts is such that, in the opinion of the directors⁷, compliance with this requirement would result in a statement of excessive length, it is sufficient to give a general indication of the terms of payment or repayment and the rates of any interest payable on the debts⁸.

In respect of each item shown under 'creditors' in the company's balance sheet there must be stated the aggregate amount of any debts included under that item in respect of which any security has been given by the company⁹; and, in relation to a large or medium-sized company, an indication of the nature of the securities so given¹⁰.

If any fixed cumulative dividends on the company's shares are in arrear, there must be stated: (a) the amount of the arrears; and (b) the period for which the dividends or, if there is more than one class, each class of them are in arrear¹¹.

1 For these purposes, references to items shown under 'creditors' include references to items which would, but for their having been combined with other items, be shown under that heading: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 3 para 55(3); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 3 para 61(5). A loan is treated as falling due for repayment, and an instalment of a loan is treated as falling due for payment, on the earliest date on which the lender could require repayment or (as the case may be) payment, if he exercised all options and rights available to him: see the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 8 para 6; and the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 10 para 9.

INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTS EXCLUDING BANKING AND INSURANCE COMPANIES/(D) Notes to the Accounts/(d) Related Undertakings/755. Disclosure required in notes to accounts.

(d) Related Undertakings

755. Disclosure required in notes to accounts.

The Secretary of State¹ has power to make provision by regulations requiring information about related undertakings² to be given in notes to a company's annual accounts³. The regulations may make different provision according to whether or not the company prepares group accounts⁴; and may specify the descriptions of undertaking in relation to which they apply, and make different provision in relation to different descriptions of related undertaking⁵. Regulations have been made⁶, and Companies Act accounts and IAS accounts⁷ must comply with the relevant provisions⁸.

The required information need not be disclosed with respect to an undertaking that is established under the law of a country outside the United Kingdom⁹ or that carries on business outside the United Kingdom, if the following conditions are met¹⁰, namely that:

- 1323 (1) in the opinion of the directors¹¹ of the company the disclosure would be seriously prejudicial to the business of: (a) that undertaking; (b) the company; (c) any of the company's subsidiary undertakings¹²; or (d) any other undertaking which is included in the consolidation¹³;
- 1324 (2) the Secretary of State agrees that the information need not be disclosed¹⁴.

Where advantage is taken of any such exemption, that fact must be stated in a note to the company's annual accounts¹⁵.

Where the directors of a company are of the opinion that the number of undertakings in respect of which the company is required to disclose information under any provision of the regulations is such that compliance with that provision would result in information of excessive length being given in notes to the company's annual accounts¹⁶, the information need only be given in respect of: (i) the undertakings whose results or financial position, in the opinion of the directors, principally affected the figures shown in the company's annual accounts; and (ii) where the company prepares group accounts, undertakings excluded¹⁷ from consolidation¹⁸. If advantage is taken of this, then: (A) there must be included in the notes to the company's annual accounts a statement that the information is given only with respect to such undertakings; and (B) the full information (both that which is disclosed in the notes to the accounts and that which is not) must be annexed to the company's next annual return¹⁹. If a company fails to comply with head (B), an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²⁰.

In the case of a company¹ not subject to the small companies regime², the following information with respect to the employees of the company must be given in notes to the company's annual accounts³:

- 1356 (1) the average number of persons employed by the company in the financial year⁴; and

The categories by reference to which the number required to be disclosed by head (2) is to be determined must be such as the directors⁶ may select having regard to the manner in which the company's activities are organised⁷.

The average number required by head (1) or head (2) is determined by dividing the relevant annual number by the number of months in the financial year⁸.

In respect of all persons employed by the company during the financial year who are taken into account in determining the relevant annual number for the purposes of head (1) there must also be stated the aggregate amounts respectively of: (i) wages and salaries paid or payable in respect of that year to those persons; (ii) social security costs¹⁰ incurred by the company on their behalf; and (iii) other pension costs¹¹ so incurred¹². This does not apply in so far as those amounts, or any of them, are stated elsewhere in the company's accounts¹³.

For the purposes of Sch 5, 'long term incentive scheme' means an agreement or arrangement under which money or other assets may become receivable by a director, and which includes one or more qualifying conditions with respect to service or performance which cannot be fulfilled within a single financial year: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 11(1). For this purpose the following must be disregarded: (A) bonuses the amount of which falls to be determined by reference to service or performance within a single financial year; (B) compensation for loss of office, payments for breach of contract and other termination payments; and (C) retirement benefits: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 11(2).

For the purposes of Sch 5, 'retirement benefits' has the meaning given by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 612(1) (repealed with savings) (see SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 741): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13(1).

12 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5, 'remuneration' of a director includes: (1) salary, fees and bonuses, sums paid by way of expenses allowance (so far as they are chargeable to United Kingdom income tax); and (2) the estimated money value of any other benefits received by the director otherwise than in cash: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 9(1). The expression does not include: (a) the value of any share options granted to the director or the amount of any gains made on the exercise of any such options; (b) any company contributions paid, or treated as paid, under any pension scheme or any benefits to which the director is entitled under any such scheme; or (c) any money or other assets paid to or received or receivable by the director under any long term incentive scheme: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 9(2). For the purposes of Sch 5, remuneration paid or receivable or share options granted in respect of a person's accepting office as a director are treated as emoluments paid or receivable or share options granted in respect of his services as a director: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 15(3).

For the purposes of Sch 5, 'company contributions', in relation to a pension scheme and a director, means any payments (including insurance premiums) made, or treated as made, to the scheme in respect of the director by a person other than the director (Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13(3)); and 'pension scheme' means a retirement benefits scheme (as defined by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 611 (repealed with savings): see SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 741) (Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13(1)).

14 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5 Pt 1 para 1(1)(b).

15 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5, 'net value', in relation to any assets received or receivable by a director, means value after deducting any money paid or other value given by the director in respect of those assets: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 15(1).

16 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5 Pt 1 para 1(1)(c).

17 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5 Pt 1 para 1(1)(d)(i).

18 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5, 'money purchase benefits', in relation to a director, means retirement benefits payable under a pension scheme the rate or amount of which is calculated by reference to payments made, or treated as made, by the director or by any other person in respect of the director and which are not average salary benefits: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13(4).

19 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5 Pt 1 para 1(1)(d)(ii).

20 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5, 'money purchase scheme', in relation to a director, means a pension scheme under which all of the benefits that may become payable to or in respect of the director are money purchase benefits: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13(4).

21 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5 Pt 1 para 1(2). For the purposes of Sch 5, in relation to a director, 'defined benefit scheme' means a pension scheme that is not a money purchase scheme; and 'defined benefits' means retirement benefits payable under a pension scheme that are not money purchase benefits: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13(4).

Where a pension scheme provides for any benefits that may become payable to or in respect of any director to be whichever are the greater of: the company may assume for the purposes of Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13 that those benefits will be money purchase benefits, or defined benefits, according to whichever appears more likely at the end of the financial year: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13(6). For the purpose of determining whether a pension scheme is a money purchase or defined benefit scheme, any death in service benefits provided for by the scheme are to be disregarded: Sch 5 Pt 3 para 13(7).

256 (1) money purchase benefits as determined by or under the scheme; and

257 (2) defined benefits as so determined,

Where any such sums are not shown in a note to the accounts for the relevant financial year on the ground that the person receiving them is liable to account for them, and the liability is afterwards wholly or partly released or is not enforced within a period of two years, then those sums, to the extent to which the liability is released or not enforced, must be shown in a note to the first accounts in which it is practicable to show them and must be distinguished from the amounts otherwise required to be shown: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 3 Pt 2 para 6(2); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 5 Pt 3 para 8(2).

A company which has made a liability limitation agreement with its auditors must disclose its principal terms and the date of the approval resolution (or resolution waiving the need for approval in the case of a private company) passed by the company's members⁷.

(a) Application of General Duty

775. General duty to prepare group accounts.

If at the end of a financial year¹ a company² that is not subject to the small companies regime³ is a parent company⁴ the directors⁵, as well as preparing individual accounts⁶ for the year, must prepare group accounts⁷ for the year unless the company is exempt from that requirement⁸. There are exemptions⁹ for a company included in the EEA accounts of a larger group¹⁰, a company included in the non-EEA accounts of a larger group¹¹, and a company none of whose subsidiary undertakings need be included in the consolidation¹².

A company to which these provisions apply but which is exempt from the requirement to prepare group accounts, may do so¹³.

776. Applicable accounting framework.

The group accounts¹ of certain parent companies² are required³ to be prepared in accordance with international accounting standards⁴ ('IAS group accounts')⁵.

The group accounts of other companies may be prepared in accordance with the relevant provision of the Companies Act 2006⁶ ('Companies Act group accounts'), or in accordance with international accounting standards ('IAS group accounts')⁷. Where the directors⁸ of a company prepare IAS group accounts, they must state in the notes to those accounts that the accounts have been prepared in accordance with international accounting standards⁹.

After the first financial year¹⁰ in which the directors of a parent company prepare IAS group accounts (the 'first IAS year'), all subsequent group accounts of the company must be prepared in accordance with international accounting standards unless there is a relevant change of circumstance¹¹. There is a relevant change of circumstance if, at any time during or after the first IAS year:

- 1386 (1) the company becomes a subsidiary undertaking¹² of another undertaking that does not prepare IAS group accounts¹³;
- 1387 (2) the company ceases to be a company with securities admitted to trading on a regulated market¹⁴ in an EEA state¹⁵; or
- 1388 (3) a parent undertaking¹⁶ of the company ceases to be an undertaking with securities admitted to trading on a regulated market in an EEA state¹⁷.

If, having changed to preparing Companies Act group accounts following a relevant change of circumstance, the directors again prepare IAS group accounts for the company, the above provisions¹⁸ apply again as if the first financial year for which such accounts are again prepared were the first IAS year¹⁹.

The directors¹ of a parent company² must secure that the individual accounts³ of the parent company and each of its subsidiary undertakings⁴ are all prepared using the same financial reporting framework⁵, except to the extent that in their opinion there are good reasons for not doing so⁶. A company¹ that is not required to prepare group accounts² must comply with the following provisions³ as to information to be given in notes to the company's accounts⁴.

The reason why the company is not required to prepare group accounts must be stated⁵. If the reason is that all the subsidiary undertakings⁶ of the company fall within the statutory exclusions⁷, it must be stated with respect to each subsidiary undertaking which of those exclusions applies⁸.

There must be stated in relation to shares of each class held by the company in a subsidiary undertaking: (1) the identity of the class; and (2) the proportion of the nominal value of the shares of that class represented by those shares⁹. (B) FORM AND CONTENT OF COMPANIES ACT GROUP ACCOUNTS information must be given in the accounts or in a note to them¹⁵. If in special circumstances compliance with any of those provisions is inconsistent with the requirement to give a true and fair view, the directors must depart from that provision to the extent necessary to give a true and fair view; but particulars of any such departure, the reasons for it and its effect must be given in a note to the accounts¹⁶.

784. Required form and content of Companies Act group accounts.

Companies Act group accounts¹ must comprise:

The consolidated balance sheet¹ and profit and loss account² must incorporate in full the information contained in the individual accounts³ of the undertakings included in the consolidation⁴, subject to the authorised or required adjustments⁵ and to such other adjustments (if any) as may be appropriate in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles or practice⁶. If the financial year⁷ of a subsidiary undertaking⁸ included in the consolidation does not end with that of the parent company⁹, the group accounts¹⁰ must be made up: (1) from the accounts of the subsidiary undertaking for its financial year last ending before the end of the parent company's financial year, provided that year ended no more than three months before that of the parent company; or (2) from interim accounts prepared by the subsidiary undertaking as at the end of the parent company's financial year¹¹.

Where assets and liabilities to be included in the group accounts have been valued or otherwise determined by undertakings according to accounting rules differing from those used for the group accounts, the values or amounts must be adjusted so as to accord with the rules used for the group accounts¹². If it appears to the directors¹³ of the parent company that there are special reasons for departing from this provision¹⁴, they may do so; but particulars of any such departure, the reasons for it and its effect must be given in a note to the accounts¹⁵. Such adjustments need not be made if they are not material for the purpose of giving a true and fair view¹⁶.

787. Elimination of group transactions.

Debts and claims between undertakings included in the consolidation¹, and income and expenditure relating to transactions between such undertakings, must be eliminated in preparing the group accounts².

Where profits and losses resulting from transactions between undertakings included in the consolidation are included in the book value of assets, they must be eliminated in preparing the group accounts³. This elimination may be effected in proportion to the group's interest in the shares of the undertakings⁴.

The provisions described above need not be complied with if the amounts concerned are not material for the purpose of giving a true and fair view⁵.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(iv) Annual Accounts/C. GROUP ACCOUNTS/(B) Form and Content of Companies Act Group Accounts/788. Acquisition and merger accounting.

788. Acquisition and merger accounting.

The provisions described below apply where an undertaking¹ becomes a subsidiary undertaking² of the parent company³. That event is referred to in these provisions as an 'acquisition'; and references to the 'undertaking acquired' are to be construed accordingly⁴.

An acquisition must be accounted for by the acquisition method of accounting unless the conditions for accounting for it as a merger are met and the merger method of accounting is adopted⁵.

The acquisition method of accounting is as follows⁶. The identifiable assets and liabilities of the undertaking acquired must be included in the consolidated balance sheet⁷ at their fair values as at the date of acquisition⁸. The income and expenditure of the undertaking acquired must be brought into the group accounts⁹ only as from the date of the acquisition¹⁰. There must be set off against the acquisition cost of the interest in the shares¹¹ of the undertaking held by the parent company and its subsidiary undertakings the interest of the parent company and its subsidiary undertakings in the adjusted capital and reserves of the undertaking acquired¹². The resulting amount, if positive, is to be treated as goodwill and, if negative, as a negative consolidation difference¹³.

The conditions for accounting for an acquisition as a merger are:

- 1412 (1) that at least 90 per cent of the nominal value of the relevant shares¹⁴ in the undertaking acquired (excluding any shares in the undertaking held as treasury shares¹⁵) is held by or on behalf of the parent company and its subsidiary undertakings;
- 1413 (2) that the proportion referred to in head (1) above was attained pursuant to an arrangement providing for the issue of equity shares by the parent company or one or more of its subsidiary undertakings;
- 1414 (3) that the fair value of any consideration other than the issue of equity shares given pursuant to the arrangement by the parent company and its subsidiary undertakings did not exceed 10 per cent of the nominal value of the equity shares issued; and
- 1415 (4) that adoption of the merger method of accounting accords with generally accepted accounting principles or practice¹⁶.

The merger method of accounting is as follows¹⁷. The assets and liabilities of the undertaking acquired must be brought into the group accounts at the figures at which they stand in the undertaking's accounts, subject to any authorised or required¹⁸ adjustment¹⁹. The income and expenditure of the undertaking acquired must be included in the group accounts for the entire financial year²⁰, including the period before the acquisition²¹. The group accounts must show corresponding amounts relating to the previous financial year as if the undertaking acquired had been included in the consolidation throughout that year²². Against the aggregate of:

- 1416 (a) the appropriate amount in respect of qualifying shares²³ issued by the parent company or its subsidiary undertakings in consideration for the acquisition of shares in the undertaking acquired; and
- 1417 (b) the fair value of any other consideration for the acquisition of shares in the undertaking acquired, determined as at the date when those shares were acquired, there must be set off the nominal value of the issued share capital²⁴ of the undertaking acquired held by the parent company and its subsidiary undertakings²⁵. The resulting amount must be shown as an adjustment to the consolidated reserves²⁶.

Where a group²⁷ is acquired, the provisions described above²⁸ apply with the following adaptations²⁹. References to shares of the undertaking acquired are to be construed as references to shares of the parent undertaking of the group³⁰. Other references to the undertaking acquired are to be construed as references to the group; and references to the assets and liabilities, income and expenditure and capital and reserves of the undertaking acquired are to be construed as references to the assets and liabilities, income and expenditure and capital and reserves of the group after making the set-offs and other adjustments required³¹ in the case of group accounts³².

The following information with respect to acquisitions taking place in the financial year must be given in a note to the accounts³³:

- 1418 (i) the name of the undertaking acquired or, where a group was acquired, the name of the parent undertaking of that group; and
- 1419 (ii) whether the acquisition has been accounted for by the acquisition or the merger method of accounting³⁴.

In relation to an acquisition which significantly affects the figures shown in the group accounts, the following further information must be given³⁵. The composition and fair value of the consideration for the acquisition given by the parent company and its subsidiary undertakings must be stated³⁶; and, where the acquisition method of accounting has been adopted, the book values immediately prior to the acquisition, and the fair values at the date of acquisition, of each class of assets and liabilities of the undertaking or group acquired must be stated in tabular form, including a statement of the amount of any goodwill or negative consolidation difference arising on the acquisition, together with an explanation of any significant adjustments made³⁷. There must also be stated in a note to the accounts the cumulative amount of goodwill resulting from acquisitions in that and earlier financial years which has been written off otherwise than in the consolidated profit and loss account³⁸ for that or any earlier financial year³⁹; and that figure must be shown net of any goodwill attributable to subsidiary undertakings or businesses disposed of prior to the balance sheet date⁴⁰. Where during the financial year there has been a disposal of an undertaking or group which significantly affects the figures shown in the group accounts, there must be stated in a note to the accounts: (A) the name of that undertaking or, as the case may be, of the parent undertaking of that group; and (B) the extent to which the profit or loss shown in the group accounts is attributable to profit or loss of that undertaking or group⁴¹. The information required by the provisions described above⁴² need not be disclosed with respect to an undertaking which is established under the law of a country outside the United Kingdom⁴³, or which carries on business outside the United Kingdom, if in the opinion of the directors⁴⁴ of the parent company the disclosure would be seriously prejudicial to the business of that undertaking or to the business of the parent company or any of its subsidiary undertakings and the Secretary of State⁴⁵ agrees that the information should not be disclosed⁴⁶.

791. Associated undertakings.

An 'associated undertaking' is an undertaking¹ in which an undertaking included in the consolidation² has a participating interest and over whose operating and financial policy it exercises a significant influence, and which is not: (1) a subsidiary undertaking³ of the parent company⁴; or (2) a joint venture dealt with in accordance with the relevant provisions⁵. Where an undertaking holds 20 per cent or more of the voting rights in another undertaking⁶, it is presumed to exercise such an influence over it unless the contrary is shown⁷.

The interest of an undertaking in an associated undertaking, and the amount of profit or loss attributable to such an interest, must be shown by the equity method of accounting (including dealing with any goodwill)⁸. Where the associated undertaking is itself a parent undertaking, the net assets and profits or losses to be taken into account are those of the parent and its subsidiary undertakings (after making any consolidation adjustments)⁹. The equity method of accounting need not be applied if the amounts in question are not material for the purpose of giving a true and fair view¹⁰.

For these purposes, in relation to large and medium-sized companies¹¹, the statutory formats¹² have effect in relation to group accounts with modifications¹³; and the provisions relating to related party transactions¹⁴ apply to transactions which the parent company, or other undertakings included in the consolidation, have entered into with related parties, unless they are intra group transactions¹⁵.

Disclosure required in notes to accounts.

(b) Related Undertakings

793. Disclosure required in notes to accounts.

The Secretary of State¹ has power to make provision by regulations requiring information about related undertakings² to be given in notes to a company's annual accounts³. The regulations may make different provision according to whether or not the company prepares group accounts⁴; and may specify the descriptions of undertaking in relation to which they apply, and make different provision in relation to different descriptions of related undertaking⁵. Regulations have been made⁶, and Companies Act accounts and IAS accounts⁷ must comply with the relevant provisions⁸.

The required information need not be disclosed with respect to an undertaking that is established under the law of a country outside the United Kingdom⁹ or that carries on business outside the United Kingdom, if the following conditions are met¹⁰, namely that:

- 1424 (1) in the opinion of the directors¹¹ of the company the disclosure would be seriously prejudicial to the business of: (a) that undertaking; (b) the company; (c) any of the company's subsidiary undertakings¹²; or (d) any other undertaking which is included in the consolidation¹³;
- 1425 (2) the Secretary of State agrees that the information need not be disclosed¹⁴.

Where advantage is taken of any such exemption, that fact must be stated in a note to the company's annual accounts¹⁵.

Where the directors of a company are of the opinion that the number of undertakings in respect of which the company is required to disclose information under any provision of the regulations is such that compliance with that provision would result in information of excessive length being given in notes to the company's annual accounts¹⁶, the information need only be given in respect of: (i) the undertakings whose results or financial position, in the opinion of the directors, principally affected the figures shown in the company's annual accounts; and (ii) where the company prepares group accounts, undertakings excluded¹⁷ from consolidation¹⁸. If advantage is taken of this, then: (A) there must be included in the notes to the company's annual accounts a statement that the information is given only with respect to such undertakings; and (B) the full information (both that which is disclosed in the notes to the accounts and that which is not) must be annexed to the company's next annual return¹⁹. If a company fails to comply with head (B), an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²⁰.

The categories by reference to which the number required to be disclosed by head (2) is to be determined must be such as the directors⁶ may select having regard to the manner in which the company's activities are organised⁷.

The average number required by head (1) or head (2) is determined by dividing the relevant annual number by the number of months in the financial year⁸.

In respect of all persons employed by the company during the financial year who are taken into account in determining the relevant annual number for the purposes of head (1) there must also be stated the aggregate amounts respectively of: (i) wages and salaries paid or payable in respect of that year to those persons; (ii) social security costs¹⁰ incurred by the company on their behalf; and (iii) other pension costs¹¹ so incurred¹². UPDATE

813 Information to be disclosed

NOTE 9--2006 Act s 413(8) amended: SI 2009/3022.

814. Disclosure of remuneration to, and liability limitation agreements made with, auditors.

Companies must, by way of a note to the company's annual accounts¹, disclose fees receivable by their auditors and their auditors' associates² and also disclose liability limitation agreements that they make with their auditors³.

Small and medium-sized companies⁴ must disclose the fee paid to their auditors for the audit itself⁵. Every other company must disclose both the audit fee and all other fees receivable by the auditors for services supplied by them and their associates to the company, its subsidiaries (except where its control over a subsidiary is subject to severe long-term restrictions) and associated pension schemes⁶. Consolidated group accounts (except those of small or medium-sized groups which are not ineligible) must disclose the types of services specified and the fees paid for them as if the group were a single company: but if that is done, the individual companies do not need to disclose them⁷.

A company which has made a liability limitation agreement with its auditors must disclose its principal terms and the date of the approval resolution (or resolution waiving the need for approval in the case of a private company) passed by the company's members⁸.

1 As to a company's annual accounts see PARA 714 et seq.

2 As to persons who are to be regarded as an associate or distant associate of a company's auditor for these purposes see PARA 922. As to the persons qualified to act as auditors see PARA 958 et seq.

6 See the Companies (Disclosure of Auditor Remuneration and Liability Limitation Agreements) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/489, reg 5; and PARA 923. Auditors must supply their company's directors with the information needed to enable the company to disclose the types of services specified and the fees paid for them: see reg 7; and PARA 923.

D. APPROVAL AND SIGNING OF ACCOUNTS

815. Approval and signing of accounts.

A company's annual accounts¹ must be approved by the board of directors² and signed on behalf of the board by a director of the company³. The signature must be on the company's balance sheet⁴, and the name of the person who signed must be stated on every published copy⁵.

If the accounts are prepared in accordance with the provisions applicable to companies subject to the small companies regime⁶, the balance sheet must contain a statement to that effect in a prominent position above the signature⁷.

If annual accounts are approved that do not comply with the relevant requirements⁸, every director of the company who knew that they did not comply or was reckless as to whether they complied, and who failed to take reasonable steps to secure compliance with those requirements or, as the case may be, to prevent the accounts from being approved, commits an offence⁹.

2 As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478. Such approval must not be given unless the directors are satisfied that the accounts give a 'true and fair' view of the assets, liabilities, financial position and profit or loss etc of the company, or of the undertakings included in the consolidation as a whole: see the Companies Act 2006 s 393; and PARA 714.

As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665. Where an overseas company, or a credit or financial institution to which the Companies Act 2006 s 1050 applies (see PARA 1831), is not required to prepare and disclose accounts under parent law, s 414 is applied with modifications: see the Overseas Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/1801, regs 39, 54; and PARA 1830 et seq. (v) Directors' Reports

A. GENERAL REQUIREMENTS

816. Duty to prepare directors' report.

The directors¹ of a company² (other than a small company³ which qualifies for exemption⁴) must prepare a directors' report for each financial year⁵ of the company⁶.

For a financial year in which the company is a parent company⁷, and the directors of the company prepare group accounts⁸, the directors' report must be a consolidated report (a 'group directors' report') relating to the undertakings included in the consolidation⁹.

A group directors' report may, where appropriate, give greater emphasis to the matters that are significant to the undertakings included in the consolidation, taken as a whole¹⁰.

In the case of failure to comply with the requirement to prepare a directors' report, an offence is committed by every person who: (1) was a director of the company immediately before the end of the period for filing accounts and reports for the financial year in question; and (2) failed to take all reasonable steps for securing compliance with that requirement¹¹.

The exemption is relevant to the requirement that the report should contain a statement of the amount recommended by way of dividend⁶, to the requirement that the report should contain a business review⁷, and to filing obligations⁸.

819. Directors' report to contain business review.

Unless the company¹ is entitled to the small companies exemption², the directors' report³ must contain a business review⁴. The purpose of the business review is to inform members of the company and help them assess how the directors have performed their duty⁵ to promote the success of the company⁶.

The business review must contain: (1) a fair review of the company's business; and (2) a description of the principal risks and uncertainties facing the company⁷. The review required is a balanced and comprehensive analysis of:

- 1502 (a) the development and performance of the company's business during the financial year; and
- 1503 (b) the position of the company's business at the end of that year, consistent with the size and complexity of the business⁸.

In the case of a quoted company⁹, the business review must, to the extent necessary for an understanding of the development, performance or position of the company's business, include:

- 1504 (i) the main trends and factors likely to affect the future development, performance and position of the company's business; and
- 1505 (ii) information about:

- 319. (A) environmental matters (including the impact of the company's business on the environment);

- 320. (B) the company's employees; and

- 1506 including information about any policies of the company in relation to those matters and the effectiveness of those policies; and

- 1507 (iii) information about persons with whom the company has contractual or other arrangements which are essential to the business of the company¹⁰.

If the review does not contain information of each kind mentioned in heads (ii)(A), (ii)(B), (ii)(C) and (iii) above, it must state which of those kinds of information it does not contain¹¹.

The review must, to the extent necessary for an understanding of the development, performance or position of the company's business, include:

- 1508 (aa) analysis using financial key performance indicators¹²; and
- 1509 (bb) where appropriate, analysis using other key performance indicators, including information relating to environmental matters and employee matters¹³.

The review must, where appropriate, include references to, and additional explanations of, amounts included in the company's annual accounts¹⁴.

Nothing in the above provisions requires the disclosure of information about impending developments or matters in the course of negotiation if the disclosure would, in the opinion of the directors, be seriously prejudicial to the interests of the company¹⁵.

820. Directors' report to contain statement as to disclosure to auditors.

Except where a company¹ is exempt for the financial year² in question from the requirements as to audit of accounts³, and the directors⁴ take advantage of that exemption⁵, the directors' report⁶ must contain a statement to the effect that, in the case of each of the persons who are directors at the time the report is approved:

 1511 (2) he has taken all the steps that he ought to have taken as a director in order to make himself aware of any relevant audit information and to establish that the company's auditor is aware of that information⁸.

However, if the total amount of any such donations or expenditure (or both) made or incurred in that year by the company and the subsidiaries between them exceeds £2,000, the directors' report for the year must contain those particulars in relation to each body by whom any such donation or expenditure has been made or incurred¹³.

In the case of failure to comply with the requirement to prepare a directors' remuneration report, every person who was a director of the company immediately before the end of the period for filing accounts and reports for the financial year in question, and who failed to take all reasonable steps for securing compliance with that requirement, commits an offence⁴.

835. Required contents of directors' remuneration report.

The Secretary of State¹ may make provision by regulations as to:

- 1555 (1) the information that must be contained in a directors' remuneration report²;
- 1556 (2) how information is to be set out in the report; and

Regulations have been made⁴ in relation to large and medium-sized companies⁵, and the directors' remuneration report must contain the specified information and comply with any requirement as to how information is to be set out in the report⁶. The information is required to be given only so far as it is contained in the company's books and papers, available to members of the public or the company has the right to obtain it⁷.

It is the duty of any director of a company, and any person who is or has at any time in the preceding five years been a director of the company, to give notice to the company of such matters relating to himself as may be necessary for the purposes of the regulations⁸; and a person who makes default in complying with this duty commits an offence⁹.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 421 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10, but with the modifications as specified thereby: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

836. Consideration by the directors of matters relating to directors' remuneration.

If a committee of the company's directors¹ has considered matters relating to the directors' remuneration² for the relevant financial year³, the directors' remuneration report⁴ must:

- 1558 (1) name each director who was a member of the committee at any time when the committee was considering any such matter⁵;

Companies admitted to listing must comply with the Combined Code on Corporate Governance (June 2008), published by the Financial Reporting Council (as to which see PARA 699 note 2). While it is expected that companies will comply wholly or substantially with its provisions, it is recognised that non-compliance may be justified in particular circumstances if good governance can be achieved by other means. However, a condition of non-compliance is that the reasons for it should be explained to shareholders, who may wish to discuss the position with the company and whose voting intentions may be influenced as a result. This 'comply or explain' approach has been in operation since the Code's beginnings in 1992: see Preamble para 2. The Code Provisions require the board to establish a remuneration committee of at least three, or in the case of smaller companies two, independent non-executive directors: Code Provision B.2.1.

such comparison; and (b) if any of the factors relates to the performance of another company, of two or more other companies or of an index on which the securities of a company or companies are listed, the identity of that company, of each of those companies or of the index¹¹;

1565 (5) a description of, and an explanation for, any significant amendment proposed to be made to the terms and conditions of any entitlement of a director to share options or under a long term incentive scheme¹²; and

The policy statement must, in respect of each director's terms and conditions relating to remuneration, explain the relative importance of those elements which are, and those which are not, related to performance¹⁴.

3 As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

4 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 2 para 3(1).

5 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 2 para 3(2), (3), references to a director are references to any person who serves as a director of the company at any time in the period beginning with the end of the relevant financial year and ending with the date on which the directors' remuneration report is laid before the company in general meeting: Sch 8 Pt 2 para 3(5). As to company meetings see PARA 629 et seq.

6 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8, 'share option' means a right to acquire shares; and 'shares' means shares (whether allotted or not) in the company, or any undertaking which is a group undertaking in relation to the company, and includes a share warrant as defined by the Companies Act 2006 s 779(1) (see PARA 382): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(1). As to the meaning of 'group undertaking' see PARA 27; and as to the meaning of 'undertaking' see PARA 26 note 2.

7 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8, 'long term incentive scheme' means any agreement or arrangement under which money or other assets may become receivable by a person and which includes one or more qualifying conditions with respect to service or performance that cannot be fulfilled within a single financial year; and for this purpose the following must be disregarded, namely: (1) any bonus the amount of which falls to be determined by reference to service or performance within a single financial year; (2) compensation in respect of loss of office, payments for breach of contract and other termination payments; and (3) retirement benefits: Sch 8 Pt 3 para 11(5), Pt 4 para 17(1).

For the purposes of Sch 8, 'compensation in respect of loss of office' includes compensation received or receivable by a person for:

279 (a) loss of office as director of the company (Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(2)(a)); or

280 (b) loss, while director of the company or on or in connection with his ceasing to be a director of it, of:

5. (i) any other office in connection with the management of the company's affairs (Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(2)(b)(i)); or
6. (ii) any office as director or otherwise in connection with the management of the affairs of any undertaking that, immediately before the loss, is a subsidiary undertaking of the company or an undertaking of which he is a director by virtue of the company's nomination (direct or indirect) (Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(2)(b)(ii));
 - 281 (c) compensation in consideration for, or in connection with, a person's retirement from office (Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(2)(c)); and
 - 282 (d) where such a retirement is occasioned by a breach of the person's contract with the company or with an undertaking that, immediately before the breach, is a subsidiary undertaking of the company or an undertaking of which he is a director by virtue of the company's nomination (direct or indirect):
7. (i) payments made by way of damages for the breach (Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(2)(d)(i)); or
8. (ii) payments made by way of settlement or compromise of any claim in respect of the breach (Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(2)(d)(ii)).

As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 26.

References in Sch 8 to compensation include benefits otherwise than in cash; and in relation to such compensation references in Sch 8 to its amounts are to the estimated money value of the benefit: Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(3).

For the purposes of Sch 8, 'retirement benefits' means relevant benefits within the meaning given by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 612(1) (see SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 741): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(1).

Performance graph.

839. Performance graph.

The directors' remuneration report¹ must:

1567 (1) contain a line graph that shows for each of:

324. (a) a holding of shares² of that class of the company's equity share capital³ whose listing, or admission to dealing, has resulted in the company falling within the definition of 'quoted company'⁴; and

325. (b) a hypothetical holding of shares made up of shares of the same kinds and number as those by reference to which a broad equity market index is calculated⁵,

1568 a line drawn by joining up points plotted to represent, for each of the financial years⁶ in the relevant period⁷, the total shareholder return⁸ on that holding⁹; and

1569 (2) state the name of the index selected for the purposes of the graph and set out the reasons for selecting that index¹⁰.

1 As to the duty to prepare a directors' remuneration report see PARA 834 et seq; and as to directors' remuneration see PARA 518 et seq. As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478.

2 As to the meaning of 'shares' see PARA 837 note 6.

3 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of 'equity share capital' see PARA 1047.

4 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(1)(a)(i). As to quoted companies see PARA 696.

5 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(1)(a)(ii).

6 As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

7 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(1), (4), 'relevant period' means the five financial years of which the last is the relevant financial year: Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(2). Where the relevant financial year is the company's second, third or fourth financial year, Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(2) has effect with the substitution of 'two', 'three' or 'four' (as the case may be) for 'five': Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(3)(a).

Where the relevant financial year is the company's first financial year, 'relevant period', for the purposes of Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(1), (4), means the relevant financial year: Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(3)(b).

8 For the purposes of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(1), the 'total shareholder return' for a relevant period (see note 7) on a holding of shares must be calculated using a fair method that: (1) takes as its starting point the percentage change over the period in the market price of the holding; (2) involves making the assumptions specified in Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(5) as to reinvestment of income, and the assumption specified in Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(7) as to the funding of liabilities; and (3) makes provision for any replacement of shares in the holding by shares of a different description: Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(4). The same method must be used for each of the holdings mentioned in Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(1): Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(4).

The assumptions as to reinvestment of income are: (a) that any benefit in the form of shares of the same kind as those in the holding is added to the holding at the time the benefit becomes receivable; and (b) that any benefit in cash, and an amount equal to the value of any benefit not in cash and not falling within head (a) above, is applied at the time the benefit becomes receivable in the purchase at their market price of shares of the same kind as those in the holding and that the shares purchased are added to the holding at that time: Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(5). For the purposes of Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(5), 'benefit' means any benefit (including, in particular, any dividend) receivable in respect of any shares in the holding by the holder from the company of whose share capital the shares form part: Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(6).

The assumption as to the funding of liabilities is that, where the holder has a liability to the company of whose capital the shares in the holding form part, shares are sold from the holding: (i) immediately before the time by which the liability is due to be satisfied; and (ii) in such numbers that, at the time of the sale, the market price of the shares sold equals the amount of the liability in respect of the shares in the holding that are not being sold: Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(7). For the purposes of Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(7), 'liability' means a liability arising in respect of any shares in the holding or from the exercise of a right attached to any of those shares: Sch 8 Pt 2 para 5(8).

840. Service contracts.

The directors' remuneration report¹ must contain, in respect of the contract of service or contract for services of each person who has served as a director of the company² at any time during the relevant financial year³, the following information:

1570 (1) the date of the contract, the unexpired term and the details of any notice periods⁴;

1571 (2) any provision for compensation payable upon early termination of the contract⁵; and

1572 (3) such details of other provisions in the contract as are necessary to enable members⁶ of the company to estimate the liability of the company in the event of early termination of the contract⁷.

The directors' remuneration report must contain an explanation for any significant award made to a person⁸ as a past director⁹.

Amount of each director's emoluments and compensation in the relevant financial year.

(C) INFORMATION SUBJECT TO AUDIT

841. Amount of each director's emoluments and compensation in the relevant financial year.

The directors' remuneration report¹ must for the relevant financial year² show, for each person who has served as a director of the company³ at any time during that year, each of the following amounts⁴:

1573 (1) the total amount of salary and fees paid to or receivable by the person in respect of qualifying services⁵;

1574 (2) the total amount of bonuses so paid or receivable⁶;

1575 (3) the total amount of sums paid by way of expenses allowance that are: (a) chargeable to United Kingdom⁷ income tax (or would be if the person were an individual); and (b) paid to or receivable by the person in respect of qualifying services⁸;

- 1576 (4) the total amount of:
 326. (a) any compensation for loss of office paid to or receivable by the person; and
 327. (b) any other payments paid to or receivable by the person in connection with the termination of qualifying services⁹;
 1577 (5) the total estimated value of certain benefits¹⁰ received by the person otherwise than in cash that:
 328. (a) are emoluments¹¹ of the person; and
 329. (b) are received by the person in respect of qualifying services¹²; and
 1578 (6) the amount that is the total of the sums mentioned in heads (1) to (5) above¹³.

The directors' remuneration report must also show, for each person who has served as a director of the company at any time during the relevant financial year, the amount that for the financial year preceding the relevant financial year is the total of the sums mentioned in heads (1) to (5) above¹⁴.

The above information¹⁵ must be presented in tabular form¹⁶.

The directors' remuneration report must also state the nature of any element of a remuneration package which is not cash¹⁷.

1 As to the duty to prepare a directors' remuneration report see PARA 834 et seq; and as to directors' remuneration see PARA 518 et seq. As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478.

2 As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

3 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

4 The following applies with respect to the amounts to be shown under the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8: Sch 8 Pt 4 para 19(1).

The amount in each case includes all relevant sums paid by or receivable from:

- 283 (1) the company; and 284 (2) the company's subsidiary undertakings; and 285 (3) any other person,

except sums to be accounted for to the company or any of its subsidiary undertakings or any other undertaking of which any person has been a director while director of the company, by virtue of the Companies Act 2006 s 219 (payment in connection with share transfer: requirement of members' approval: see PARA 581), to past or present members of the company or any of its subsidiaries or any class of those members: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 4 para 19(2). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 26; and as to the meaning of 'undertaking' see PARA 26 note 2. As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321.

Reference to amounts paid to or receivable by a person include amounts paid to or receivable by a person connected with him or a body corporate controlled by him (but not so as to require an amount to be counted twice): Sch 8 Pt 4 para 19(3). References in Sch 8 to a person being 'connected' with a director, and to a director 'controlling' a body corporate, are to be construed in accordance with the Companies Act 2006 ss 252-255 (see PARA 481): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(4).

The amounts to be shown for any financial year under Sch 8 Pt 3 are the sums receivable in respect of that year (whenever paid) or, in the case of sums not receivable in respect of a period, the sums paid during that year: Sch 8 Pt 4 para 20(1). However, where:

- 286 (a) any sums are not shown in the directors' remuneration report for the relevant financial year on the ground that the person receiving them is liable to account for them as mentioned in Sch 8 Pt 4 para 19(2), but the liability is thereafter wholly or partly released or is not enforced within a period of two years; or
- 287 (b) any sums paid by way of expenses allowance are charged to United Kingdom income tax after the end of the relevant financial year or, in the case of any such sums paid otherwise than to an individual, it does not become clear until the end of the relevant financial year that those sums would be charged to such tax were the person an individual, those sums must, to the extent to which the liability is released or not enforced or they are charged as mentioned above (as the case may be), be shown in the first directors' remuneration report in which it is practicable to show them and must be distinguished from the amounts to be shown apart from this provision: Sch 8 Pt 4 para 20(2). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5.

Where it is necessary to do so for the purpose of making any distinction required by the provisions of Sch 8 in an amount to be shown in compliance with Sch 8 Pt 4, the directors may apportion any payments between the matters in respect of which these have been paid or are receivable in such manner as they think appropriate: Sch 8 Pt 4 para 21.

5 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 3 para 7(1)(a). 'Qualifying services', in relation to any person, means his services as a director of the company, and his services at any time while he is a director of the company: (1) as a director of an undertaking that is a subsidiary undertaking of the company at that time; (2) as a director of any other undertaking of which he is a director by virtue of the company's nomination (direct or indirect); or (3) otherwise in connection with the management of the affairs of the company or any such subsidiary undertaking or any such other undertaking: Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(1).

6 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 3 para 7(1)(b).

7 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5.

8 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 3 para 7(1)(c).

9 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 3 para 7(1)(d).

10 The benefits that do not fall within any of the provisions of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 3 para 7(1)(a)-(d) (see heads (1) to (4) in the text) or Sch 8 Pt 3 paras 8-12 (see PARAS 842-843).

11 'Emoluments' of a person includes salary, fees and bonuses, sums paid by way of expenses allowance (so far as they are chargeable to United Kingdom income tax or would be if the person were an individual); but does not include any of the following, namely: (1) the value of any share options granted to him or the amount of any gains made on the exercise of any such options; (2) any company contributions paid, or treated as paid, in respect of him under any pension scheme or any benefits to which he is entitled under any such scheme; or (3) any money or other assets paid to or received or receivable by him under any long term incentive scheme: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(1). 'Value', in relation to shares received or receivable on any day by a person who is or has been a director of the company, means the market price of the shares on that day; and 'amount', in relation to a gain made on the exercise of a share option, means the difference between the market price of the shares on the day on which the option was exercised and the price actually paid for the shares: Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(1). As to the meanings of 'share option' and 'shares' see PARA 837 note 6. 'Company contributions', in relation to a pension scheme and a person, means any payments (including insurance premiums) made, or treated as made, to the scheme in respect of the person by anyone other than the person; and 'pension scheme' means a retirement benefits scheme within the meaning given by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 611 (repealed with savings) (see SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 741): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 4 para 17(1). As to the meanings of 'retirement benefits' and 'long term incentive scheme' see PARA 837 note 7.

For the purposes of Sch 8 emoluments paid or receivable or share options granted in respect of a person's accepting office as a director are to be treated as emoluments paid or receivable or share options granted in respect of his services as a director: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 8 Pt 4 para 18(1).

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(vi) Directors' Remuneration Reports: Quoted Companies only/B. CONTENTS/(C) Information subject to Audit/842. Share options.

842. Share options.

The directors' remuneration report¹ must contain, in respect of each person who has served as a director of the company² at any time in the relevant financial year³, the following information⁴:

- 1579 (1) the number of shares⁵ that are subject to a share option⁶;
- 109
330. (a) at the beginning of the relevant financial year or, if later, on the date of the appointment of the person as a director of the company; and
331. (b) at the end of the relevant financial year or, if earlier, on the cessation of the person's appointment as a director of the company,
- 110
- 1580 in each case differentiating between share options having different terms and conditions⁷;
- 1581 (2) information identifying those share options that have been awarded in the relevant financial year, those that have been exercised in that year, those that in that year have expired unexercised and those whose terms and conditions have been varied in that year⁸;
- 1582 (3) for each share option that is unexpired at any time in the relevant financial year:
- 111
332. (a) the price paid, if any, for its award⁹;
333. (b) the exercise price¹⁰;
334. (c) the date from which the option may be exercised¹¹; and
335. (d) the date on which the option expires¹²;
- 112
- 1583 (4) a description of any variation made in the relevant financial year in the terms and conditions of a share option¹³;
- 1584 (5) a summary of any performance criteria upon which the award or exercise of a share option is conditional, including a description of any variation made in such performance criteria during the relevant financial year¹⁴;

- 1585 (6) for each share option that has been exercised during the relevant financial year, the market price of the shares, in relation to which it is exercised, at the time of exercise¹⁵; and
- 1586 (7) for each share option that is unexpired at the end of the relevant financial year:
- 113
336. (a) the market price at the end of that year; and
337. (b) the highest and lowest market prices during that year,
- 114
- 1587 of each share that is subject to the option¹⁶.

The information specified in heads (1) to (3) above must be presented in tabular form in the report¹⁷.

However, if, in the opinion of the directors of the company, disclosure in accordance with the above provisions¹⁸ would result in a disclosure of excessive length then:

- 1588 (i) information disclosed for a person under head (1) above need not differentiate between share options having different terms and conditions¹⁹;
- 1589 (ii) for the purposes of disclosure in respect of a person under heads (3)(a), (3)(b) and (7), share options may be aggregated and (instead of disclosing prices for each share option) disclosure may be made of weighted average prices of aggregations of share options²⁰;

Members' approval of directors' remuneration report.

849. Members' approval of directors' remuneration report.

A quoted company¹ must, prior to the accounts meeting², give to the members³ of the company entitled to be sent notice of the meeting⁴ notice of the intention to move at the meeting, as an ordinary resolution⁵, a resolution approving the directors' remuneration report⁶ for the financial year⁷. The notice may be given in any manner permitted for the service on the member of notice of the meeting⁸.

The business that may be dealt with at the accounts meeting includes the resolution⁹, and this is so notwithstanding any default in complying with the above requirements¹⁰. The existing directors¹¹ must ensure that the resolution is put to the vote of the meeting¹².

No entitlement of a person to remuneration is made conditional on the resolution being passed by reason only of these provisions¹³.

In the event of default in complying with the above provisions, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁴. If the resolution is not put to the vote of the accounts meeting¹⁵, an offence is committed by each existing director¹⁶; although it is a defence for a person charged with such an offence to prove that he took all reasonable steps for securing that the resolution was put to the vote of the meeting¹⁷.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(vii) Approval and Publication of Accounts and Reports/B. SUMMARY FINANCIAL STATEMENTS/(B) Form and Content/858. Form and content of summary financial statements.

(B) FORM AND CONTENT

858. Form and content of summary financial statements.

A summary financial statement¹ by a company² that is not a quoted company³ must be derived from the company's annual accounts⁴, and must be prepared in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions⁵ and regulations made under them⁶. The summary financial statement must be in such form, and contain such information, as the Secretary of State⁷ may specify by regulations⁸. The regulations may require the statement to include information derived from the directors' report⁹. Nothing in the statutory provisions or regulations made under them prevents a company from including in a summary financial statement additional information derived from the company's annual accounts or the directors' report¹⁰. The summary financial statement must:

- 1620 (1) state that it is only a summary of information derived from the company's annual accounts;
 - 1621 (2) state whether it contains additional information derived from the directors' report and, if so, that it does not contain the full text of that report;
 - 1622 (3) state how a person entitled to them can obtain a full copy of the company's annual accounts and the directors' report;
 - 1623 (4) contain a statement by the company's auditor¹¹ of his opinion as to whether the summary financial statement:
- 129
- 356. (a) is consistent with the company's annual accounts and, where information derived from the directors' report is included in the statement, with that report; and
 - 357. (b) complies with the requirements of the statutory provisions and regulations made under them;

1624 (5) state whether the auditor's report¹² on the annual accounts was unqualified or qualified and, if it was qualified, set out the report in full together with any further material needed to understand the qualification;

1625 (6) state whether, in that report, the auditor's statement¹³ as to whether the directors' report was consistent with the accounts was qualified or unqualified and, if it was qualified, set out the qualified statement in full together with any further material needed to understand the qualification;

1626 (7) state whether that auditor's report contained:

358. (a) a statement¹⁴ that accounting records or returns were inadequate or that accounts did not agree with records and returns; or

359. (b) a statement¹⁵ that he had failed to obtain necessary information and explanations,

1627 and if so, set out the statement in full¹⁶.

Regulations may provide that any specified material may, instead of being included in the summary financial statement, be sent separately at the same time as the statement¹⁷.

A summary financial statement by a quoted company must be derived from the company's annual accounts and the directors' remuneration report¹⁸, and must be prepared in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions¹⁹ and regulations made under them²⁰. The summary financial statement must be in such form, and contain such information, as the Secretary of State may specify by regulations²¹. The regulations may require the statement to include information derived from the directors' report²². Nothing in the statutory provisions or regulations made under them prevents a company from including in a summary financial statement additional information derived from the company's annual accounts, the directors' remuneration report or the directors' report²³. The summary financial statement must:

1628 (i) state that it is only a summary of information derived from the company's annual accounts and the directors' remuneration report;

1629 (ii) state whether it contains additional information derived from the directors' report and, if so, that it does not contain the full text of that report;

1630 (iii) state how a person entitled to them can obtain a full copy of the company's annual accounts, the directors' remuneration report or the directors' report;

1631 (iv) contain a statement by the company's auditor of his opinion as to whether the summary financial statement:

360. (A) is consistent with the company's annual accounts and the directors' remuneration report and, where information derived from the directors' report is included in the statement, with that report; and

361. (B) complies with the requirements of the statutory provisions and regulations made under them;

1632 (v) state whether the auditor's report on the annual accounts and the auditable part of the directors' remuneration report²⁴ was unqualified or qualified and, if it was qualified, set out the report in full together with any further material needed to understand the qualification;

1633 (vi) state whether that auditor's report contained:

362. (A) a statement²⁵ that accounting records or returns were inadequate or that accounts or the directors' remuneration report did not agree with records and returns; or
363. (B) a statement²⁶ that he had failed to obtain necessary information and explanations,
- 136
- 1634 and if so, set out the statement in full;
- 1635 (vii) state whether, in that report, the auditor's statement²⁷ as to whether the directors' report was consistent with the accounts was qualified or unqualified and, if it was qualified, set out the qualified statement in full together with any further material needed to understand the qualification²⁸.

Regulations may provide that any specified material may, instead of being included in the summary financial statement, be sent separately at the same time as the statement²⁹.

If default is made in complying with these provisions³⁰, or any provision of regulations made under them, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default³¹.

If a company¹ publishes any of its statutory accounts², they must be accompanied by the auditor's report³ on those accounts (unless the company is exempt from audit⁴ and the directors⁵ have taken advantage of that exemption)⁶. accounts or directors' remuneration report¹⁷ were not in agreement with the records and returns, or a statement¹⁸ that the auditor had failed to obtain necessary information and explanations¹⁹.

The company must not publish with non-statutory accounts the auditor's report on the company's statutory accounts²⁰. If a company contravenes any of these provisions, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²¹.

A quoted company¹ must ensure that its annual accounts and reports² are made available on a website, and remain so available until the annual accounts and reports for the company's next financial year³ are made available in accordance with these provisions⁴. The annual accounts and reports must be made available on a website that: (1) is maintained by or on behalf of the company; and (2) identifies the company in question⁵. The annual accounts and reports must be made available as soon as reasonably practicable, and must be kept available throughout the period mentioned above⁹. A failure to make the annual accounts and reports available on a website throughout that period is disregarded if: (a) the annual accounts and reports are made available on the website for part of that period; and (b) the failure is wholly attributable to circumstances that it would not be reasonable to have expected the company to prevent or avoid¹⁰.

If the above requirements⁶ are not complied with before the end of the period allowed, every person who immediately before the end of that period was a director of the company commits an offence⁷. It is a defence for a person charged with such an offence to prove that he took all reasonable steps for securing that those requirements would be complied with before the end of that period⁸; but it is not a defence to prove that the documents in question were not in fact prepared as required by Part 15⁹ of the Companies Act 2006¹⁰.

G. FALSE OR MISLEADING STATEMENTS IN REPORTS

868. Liability for false or misleading statements in reports.

A director¹ of a company² is liable to compensate the company for any loss suffered by it as a result of: (1) any untrue or misleading statement in a report³; or (2) the omission from a report of anything required to be included in it⁴. This applies to:

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(vii) Approval and Publication of Accounts and Reports/H. FILING OF ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(A) Duty to File Accounts and Reports/870. Period allowed for laying and delivering accounts and reports.

870. Period allowed for laying and delivering accounts and reports.

The period allowed for the directors¹ of a company² to comply with their obligation³ to deliver accounts and reports⁴ for a financial year⁵ to the registrar⁶ (referred to in the Companies Acts as the 'period for filing' those accounts and reports) is generally:

- 1656 (1) for a private company⁷, nine months after the end of the relevant accounting reference period⁸; and
- 1657 (2) for a public company⁹, six months after the end of that period¹⁰.

However, if the relevant accounting reference period is the company's first and is a period of more than 12 months, the period is:

- 1658 (a) nine months or six months, as the case may be, from the first anniversary of the incorporation of the company; or
- 1659 (b) three months after the end of the accounting reference period, whichever last expires¹¹; and, if the relevant accounting reference period is treated as shortened by virtue of a notice given by the company¹², the period is:

- 1660 (i) that applicable in accordance with the above provisions; or
- 1661 (ii) three months from the date of the notice, whichever last expires¹³.

If for any special reason the Secretary of State¹⁴ thinks fit he may, on an application made before the expiry of the period otherwise allowed, by notice in writing to a company extend that period by such further period as may be specified in the notice¹⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478.

2 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

5 As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

6 As to the meaning of 'registrar' see PARA 131 note 2.

7 As to the meaning of 'private company' see PARA 102.

8 For these purposes, the 'relevant accounting reference period' means the accounting reference period by reference to which the financial year for the accounts in question was determined: Companies Act 2006 s 442(7). As to a company's accounting reference period see PARA 712.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 442, 443 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665. Where an overseas company, or a credit or financial institution to which the Companies Act 2006 s 1050 applies (see PARA 1831), is not required to prepare and disclose accounts under parent law, s 442 is applied with modifications: see the Overseas Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/1801, regs 40, 55; and PARA 1830 et seq. As to the meaning of 'overseas company' see PARA 1824.

9 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.

10 Companies Act 2006 s 442(1), (2). Whether the period allowed is that for a private company or a public company is determined by reference to the company's status immediately before the end of the relevant accounting reference period: s 442(6).

The following provisions apply for the purposes of calculating the period for filing a company's accounts and reports which is expressed as a specified number of months from a specified date or after the end of a specified previous period: s 443(1). Generally, the period ends with the date in the appropriate month corresponding to the specified date or the last day of the specified previous period: s 443(2). However, if the specified date, or the last day of the specified previous period, is the last day of a month, the period ends with the last day of the appropriate month (whether or not that is the corresponding date) (s 443(3)); and if the specified date, or the last day of the specified previous period, is not the last day of a month but is the twenty-ninth or thirtieth and the appropriate month is February, then the period ends with the last day of February (s 443(4)). For these purposes, the 'appropriate month' means the month that is the specified number of months after the month in which the specified date, or the end of the specified previous period, falls: s 443(5). The provisions of s 443 apply with modifications to limited liability partnerships: see the Companies (Late Filing Penalties) and Limited Liability Partnerships (Filing Periods and Late Filing Penalties) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/497, reg 6, Schedule. As to limited liability partnerships see PARA 706.

Filing obligations of companies subject to small companies regime.

871. Filing obligations of companies subject to small companies regime.

The directors¹ of a company² subject to the small companies regime³:

1662 (1) must deliver to the registrar⁴ for each financial year⁵ a copy of a balance sheet⁶ drawn up as at the last day of that year⁷; and

1663 (2) may also deliver to the registrar: (a) a copy of the company's profit and loss account⁸ for that year; and (b) a copy of the directors' report⁹ for that year¹⁰.

The copies of accounts and reports delivered to the registrar must be copies of the company's annual accounts and reports¹¹, except where the company prepares abbreviated accounts¹². Where the directors of a company subject to the small companies regime deliver to the registrar IAS accounts¹³, or Companies Act accounts¹⁴ that are not abbreviated accounts and, in accordance with these provisions, do not deliver to the registrar a copy of the company's profit and loss account or a copy of the directors' report, then the copy of the balance sheet delivered to the registrar must contain in a prominent position a statement that the company's annual accounts and reports have been delivered in accordance with the provisions applicable to companies subject to the small companies regime¹⁵. The copies of the balance sheet and any directors' report delivered to the registrar under these provisions must state the name of the person who signed it on behalf of the board¹⁶.

The directors must also deliver to the registrar a copy of the auditor's report¹⁷ on the accounts (and any directors' report) that it delivers¹⁸, although this does not apply if the company is exempt from audit¹⁹ and the directors have taken advantage of that exemption²⁰. The copy of the auditor's report delivered to the registrar must: (i) state the name of the auditor and (where the auditor is a firm) the name of the person who signed it as senior statutory auditor²¹; or (ii) if the conditions under which names may be omitted²² are met, state that a resolution has been passed and notified²³ to the Secretary of State²⁴.

872. Filing obligations of companies entitled to small companies exemption in relation to directors' report.

The directors¹ of a company² that is entitled to small companies exemption³ in relation to the directors' report⁴ for a financial year⁵:

- 1664 (1) must deliver to the registrar⁶ a copy of the company's annual accounts⁷ for that year⁸; and
- 1665 (2) may also deliver to the registrar a copy of the directors' report⁹.

The copies of the balance sheet¹⁰ and directors' report delivered to the registrar under these provisions must state the name of the person who signed it on behalf of the board¹¹.

The directors must also deliver to the registrar a copy of the auditor's report¹² on the accounts (and any directors' report) that it delivers¹³, although this does not apply if the company is exempt from audit¹⁴ and the directors have taken advantage of that exemption¹⁵. The directors¹ of a company² that qualifies as a medium-sized company³ in relation to a financial year⁴ must deliver to the registrar⁵ a copy of:

Where the company prepares Companies Act accounts⁸, the directors may deliver abbreviated accounts⁹ to the registrar¹⁰. Unlimited companies may be exempt from requirement to deliver accounts and reports.

876. Unlimited companies may be exempt from requirement to deliver accounts and reports.

The directors¹ of an unlimited company² are not required to deliver accounts and reports to the registrar³ in respect of a financial year⁴ if, at no time during the relevant accounting reference period⁵:

- 1675 (1) has the company been, to its knowledge, a subsidiary undertaking⁶ of an undertaking which was then limited⁷;

- 1677 (3) has the company been a parent company⁹ of an undertaking which was then limited¹⁰.

The references to an undertaking being limited at a particular time are references to an undertaking, under whatever law established, the liability of whose members is at that time limited¹¹.

This exemption does not apply if:

- 1678 (a) the company is a banking or insurance company¹² or the parent company of a banking or insurance group¹³; or

878. Facility to deliver abbreviated accounts.

Generally, the copies of accounts and reports delivered to the registrar¹ in respect of small companies² must be copies of the company's annual accounts and reports³; however, where the company prepares Companies Act accounts⁴:

- 1680 (1) the directors⁵ may deliver to the registrar a copy of a balance sheet⁶ drawn up in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State⁷; and 1681 (2) there may be omitted from the copy profit and loss account⁸ delivered to the registrar such items as may be specified by the regulations⁹.

These are referred to as 'abbreviated accounts'¹⁰.

In relation to medium-sized companies¹¹, where the company prepares Companies Act accounts, the directors may deliver to the registrar a copy of the company's annual accounts for the financial year:

- 1682 (a) that includes a profit and loss account in which items are combined in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State¹²; and 1683 (b) that does not contain items whose omission is authorised by the regulations¹³.

In relation to a small company¹ for which Companies Act individual accounts² are being prepared, the directors³ may deliver to the registrar of companies⁴ a copy of a balance sheet⁵ which complies with special requirements⁶ rather than the usual requirements⁷. Special provision is made as to the notes to accompany the accounts⁸. Where the directors¹ of a company² deliver abbreviated accounts³ to the registrar⁴, and the company is not exempt from audit⁵ (or the directors have not taken advantage of any such exemption), the directors must also deliver to the registrar a copy of a special report of the company's auditor stating that in his opinion:

1684 (1) the company is entitled to deliver abbreviated accounts in accordance with the relevant provision; and 1685 (2) the abbreviated accounts to be delivered are properly prepared in accordance with regulations under that provision⁶.

The auditor's report on the company's annual accounts⁷ need not be delivered; but, if that report was qualified, the special report must set out that report in full together with any further material necessary to understand the qualification, and if that report contained:

- 1686 (a) a statement⁸ that accounting records or returns were inadequate or that accounts did not agree with records and returns; or

The statutory provisions relating to the approval and signing of accounts¹ apply to revised accounts², save that in the case of revision by supplementary note³, they apply as if they required a signature on the supplementary note instead of on the company's balance sheet⁴.

Where copies of the original annual accounts⁵ have been sent out to members⁶, laid before the company in general meeting⁷ in the case of a public company⁸, or delivered to the registrar⁹, the directors¹⁰ must before approving the revised accounts¹¹, cause statements as to the following matters to be made in a prominent position in the revised accounts (or, in the case of a revision by supplementary note, in that note)¹²:

 373. (b) that they are now the statutory accounts of the company for that financial year¹⁶;
 374. (c) that they have been prepared as at the date of the original annual accounts¹⁷ and not as at the date of revision¹⁸ and accordingly do not deal with events between those dates¹⁹;

 376. (e) any significant amendments made consequential upon the remedying of those defects²¹;
 1699 (2) in the case of a revision by supplementary note:

- 1701 (2) (b) that the report has been revised as at the date of the original directors' report or as at the date of the original directors' remuneration report, as the case may be, and not as at the date of the revision and accordingly does not deal with events between those dates²³;

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(viii) Revision of Defective Accounts and Reports/A. VOLUNTARY REVISION/889. Auditors' report on revised accounts and revised report.

889. Auditors' report on revised accounts and revised report.

A company's current auditor¹ must make a report or (as the case may be) further report² to the company's members³ on any revised accounts⁴. However, where the auditor's report on the original annual accounts⁵ was not made by the company's current auditor, the directors⁶ of the company may resolve that the report required by these provisions is to be made by the person or persons who made that report, provided that that person or those persons agree to do so and would be qualified for appointment as auditor of the company⁷.

An auditor's report under these provisions must state whether in the auditor's opinion the revised accounts have been properly prepared in accordance with the relevant provisions⁸, and in particular whether a true and fair view, seen as at the date the original annual accounts were approved, is given by the revised accounts with respect to the specified matters⁹. The report must also state whether in the auditor's opinion the original annual accounts failed to comply with the relevant requirements¹⁰ in the respects identified¹¹ by the directors¹².

The auditor must state whether the information contained in the directors' report¹³ for the financial year¹⁴ for which the annual accounts are prepared (which is, if the report has been revised¹⁵, that revised report) is consistent with those accounts¹⁶.

The provisions relating to the signing of the auditor's report¹⁷ apply¹⁸ to an auditor's report under these provisions, with any necessary modifications¹⁹.

Upon being signed²⁰, an auditor's report under these provisions is, as from the date of signature, the auditor's report on the annual accounts of the company in place of the report on the original annual accounts²¹.

Where as a result of the revisions to the accounts, the company is no longer entitled to exemption from audit²², the company must cause an auditor's report on the revised accounts to be prepared²³. The auditor's report must be delivered to the registrar²⁴ within 28 days after the date of revision²⁵ of the accounts²⁶. The provisions relating to default in filing accounts²⁷ apply, with modifications, with respect to a failure to comply with these requirements²⁸.

Abbreviated accounts of small and medium-sized companies.

896. Abbreviated accounts of small and medium-sized companies.

The following provisions apply where the directors¹ have prepared revised accounts² and the company³ has, prior to the date of revision⁴, delivered to the registrar⁵ accounts which are abbreviated accounts⁶. Where the abbreviated accounts so delivered to the registrar would, if they had been prepared by reference to the revised accounts, not comply with the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 (whether because the company would not have qualified as a small or (as the case may be) medium-sized company⁷ in the light of the revised accounts or because the accounts have been revised in a manner which affects the content of the abbreviated accounts), the directors of the company must cause the company either: (1) to deliver to the registrar a copy of the revised accounts, together with a copy of the directors' report⁸ and the auditor's report⁹ on the revised accounts¹⁰; or (2) if on the basis of the revised accounts they would be entitled under the Companies Act 2006 to do so, to prepare further abbreviated accounts drawn up in accordance with the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 and deliver them to the registrar together with a statement as to the effect of the revisions made¹¹. Where the abbreviated accounts would, if they had been prepared by reference to the revised accounts, comply with the requirements of the Companies Act 2006, the directors of the company must cause the company to deliver to the registrar a note stating that the annual accounts¹² of the company for the relevant financial year¹³ (specifying it) have been revised in a respect which has no bearing on the abbreviated accounts delivered for that year, together with a copy of any auditor's report on the revised accounts¹⁴. Revised abbreviated accounts or a note under these provisions must be delivered to the registrar within 28 days after the date of revision of the revised accounts¹⁵.

Where the directors have delivered to the registrar abbreviated accounts which do not comply with the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 for reasons other than those specified above¹⁶, the directors of the company must cause the company: (a) to prepare further abbreviated accounts¹⁷; and (b) to deliver those accounts to the registrar within 28 days after the date of revision together with a statement as to the effect of the revisions made¹⁸.

Where a summary financial statement¹ has been sent to any person², which does not comply with the relevant requirements³ or if it had been prepared by reference to revised accounts⁴ or a revised report⁵ would not have complied with those requirements, the directors⁶ of the company⁷ must cause the company to prepare a further summary financial statement⁸ and to send that statement to any person who received a copy of the original summary financial statement and any person to whom the company would be entitled, as at the date the revised summary financial statement is prepared, to send a summary financial statement for the current financial year⁹. Secretary of State's notice in respect of accounts or reports.

B. REVISION FOLLOWING SECRETARY OF STATE'S NOTICE

900. Secretary of State's notice in respect of accounts or reports.

Where copies of a company's annual accounts¹ or directors' report² have been sent out³ or a copy of a company's annual accounts or directors' report has been delivered to the registrar⁴ or (in the case of a public company⁵) laid before the company in general meeting⁶, and it appears to the Secretary of State⁷ that there is, or may be, a question whether the accounts or report comply with the relevant requirements⁸, the Secretary of State may give notice to the directors of the company indicating the respects in which it appears that such a question arises or may arise⁹.

The notice must specify a period of not less than one month for the directors to give an explanation of the accounts or report or prepare revised accounts or a revised report¹⁰. If at the end of the specified period, or such longer period as the Secretary of State may allow, it appears to the Secretary of State that the directors have not given a satisfactory explanation of the accounts or report, or have not revised the accounts or report so as to comply with the relevant requirements¹¹, the Secretary of State may apply to the court¹².

These provisions apply equally to revised annual accounts and revised directors' reports, in which case they have effect as if the references to revised accounts or reports were references to further revised accounts or reports¹³.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(viii) Revision of Defective Accounts and Reports/C. APPLICATION TO THE COURT/901. Application to the court in respect of defective accounts or reports.

C. APPLICATION TO THE COURT

901. Application to the court in respect of defective accounts or reports.

An application may be made to the court¹:

- 1709 (1) by the Secretary of State²; or
- 1710 (2) by a person authorised by the Secretary of State for these purposes³, for a declaration that the annual accounts⁴ of a company⁵ do not comply, or a directors' report⁶ does not comply, with the relevant requirements⁷ and for an order requiring the directors⁸ of the company to prepare revised accounts or a revised report⁹. Notice of the application, together with a general statement of the matters at issue in the proceedings, must be given by the applicant to the registrar¹⁰ for registration¹¹.

If the court orders the preparation of revised accounts, it may give directions as to:

- 1711 (a) the auditing of the accounts¹²;
- 1712 (b) the revision of any directors' remuneration report¹³, directors' report or summary financial statement¹⁴;
- 1713 (c) the taking of steps by the directors to bring the making of the order to the notice of persons likely to rely on the previous accounts; and
- 1714 (d) such other matters as the court thinks fit¹⁵.

If the court orders the preparation of a revised directors' report it may give directions as to:

- 1715 (i) the review of the report by the auditors;
- 1716 (ii) the revision of any summary financial statement;
- 1717 (iii) the taking of steps by the directors to bring the making of the order to the notice of persons likely to rely on the previous report; and
- 1718 (iv) such other matters as the court thinks fit¹⁶.

If the court finds that the accounts or report did not comply with the relevant requirements¹⁷ it may order that all or part of:

- 1719 (A) the costs of and incidental to the application; and
- 1720 (B) any reasonable expenses incurred by the company in connection with or in consequence of the preparation of revised accounts or a revised report, are to be borne by such of the directors as were party to the approval of the defective accounts or report¹⁸. Where the court makes such an order, it must have regard to whether the directors party to the approval of the defective accounts or report knew or ought to have known that the accounts or report did not comply with the relevant requirements¹⁹, and it may exclude one or more directors from the order or order the payment of different amounts by different directors²⁰.

On the conclusion of proceedings on an application under these provisions, the applicant must send to the registrar for registration a copy of the court order or, as the case may be, give notice to the registrar that the application has failed or been withdrawn²¹.

These provisions apply equally to revised annual accounts and revised directors' reports, in which case they have effect as if the references to revised accounts or reports were references to further revised accounts or reports²².

902. Persons authorised to apply to the court.

The Secretary of State¹ may by order² (an 'authorisation order') authorise for the purposes of the statutory provisions³ relating to applications to court⁴ in respect of defective accounts or reports any person appearing to him:

- 1721 (1) to have an interest in, and to have satisfactory procedures directed to securing, compliance by companies⁵ with the relevant requirements⁶ relating to accounts and directors' reports⁷;
- 1722 (2) to have satisfactory procedures for receiving and investigating complaints about companies' annual accounts⁸ and directors' reports⁹; and
- 1723 (3) otherwise to be a fit and proper person to be authorised¹⁰.

A person may be authorised generally or in respect of particular classes of case, and different persons may be authorised in respect of different classes of case¹¹. The Secretary of State may refuse to authorise a person if he considers that his authorisation is unnecessary having regard to the fact that there are one or more other persons who have been or are likely to be authorised¹².

An authorisation order may contain such requirements or other provisions relating to the exercise of functions by the authorised person as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate¹³; and no such order is to be made unless it appears to the Secretary of State that the person would, if authorised, exercise his functions as an authorised person in accordance with the provisions proposed¹⁴.

If the authorised person is an unincorporated association, proceedings brought in, or in connection with, the exercise of any function by the association as an authorised person may be brought by or against the association in the name of a body corporate whose constitution provides for the establishment of the association¹⁵.

Where authorisation is revoked, the revoking order may make such provision as the Secretary of State thinks fit with respect to pending proceedings¹⁶.

The Financial Reporting Review Panel has been authorised for these purposes¹⁷.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(viii) Revision of Defective Accounts and Reports/D. POWER OF AUTHORISED PERSON TO REQUIRE DOCUMENTS ETC/904. Disclosure of information obtained under compulsory powers.

904. Disclosure of information obtained under compulsory powers.

Information (in whatever form) obtained in pursuance of a requirement or order¹ and which relates to the private affairs of an individual or to any particular business may not, during the lifetime of that individual or so long as that business continues to be carried on, be disclosed without the consent of that individual or the person for the time being carrying on that business². This does not apply to permitted disclosure³ or to the disclosure of information that is or has been available to the public from another source⁴.

A person who discloses information in contravention of these provisions commits an offence, unless: (1) he did not know, and had no reason to suspect, that the information had been disclosed under the statutory power to require information⁵; or (2) he took all reasonable steps and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of the offence⁶. Where such an offence is committed by a body corporate, every officer of the body who is in default also commits the offence⁷; and proceedings for an offence alleged to have been committed by an unincorporated body must be brought in the name of the body, and not in that of any of its members⁸.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 460(1), (2).

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 460-462 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

3 The disclosure permitted by the Companies Act 2006 s 461, which provides that the prohibition in s 460 of the disclosure of information obtained in pursuance of a requirement or order under s 459 (see PARA 903) that relates to the private affairs of an individual or to any particular business has effect subject to the following exceptions (see s 461(1)).

The prohibition does not apply to the disclosure of information for the purpose of facilitating the carrying out by the authorised person of his functions under s 456 (see PARA 901): s 461(2).

It does not apply to disclosure to the Secretary of State, the Treasury, the Bank of England, the Financial Services Authority, or the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs: s 461(3). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the Treasury see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. As to the Bank of England see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 793 et seq. As to the Financial Services Authority see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 4 et seq. As to the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 900 et seq; INCOME TAXATION.

It does not apply to disclosure:

- 298 (1) for the purpose of assisting a body designated by an order under s 1252 (delegation of functions of the Secretary of State: see PARA 960) to exercise its functions under Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264) (statutory auditors: see PARA 958 et seq) (s 461(4)(a) (amended by SI 2008/948));
- 299 (2) with a view to the institution of, or otherwise for the purposes of, disciplinary proceedings relating to the performance by an accountant or auditor of his professional duties (Companies Act 2006 s 461(4)(b));
- 300 (3) for the purpose of enabling or assisting the Secretary of State or the Treasury to exercise any of his or its functions under any of the following: (a) the Companies Acts (as to the meaning of which see PARA 16); (b) the Criminal Justice Act 1993 Pt V (ss 52-64) (insider dealing) (see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE); (c) the Insolvency Act 1986; (d) the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986; (e) the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Companies Act 2006 s 461(4)(c));
- 301 (4) for the purpose of enabling or assisting the Bank of England to exercise its functions (s 461(4)(e));
- 302 (5) for the purpose of enabling or assisting the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs to exercise their functions (s 461(4)(f));
- 303 (6) for the purpose of enabling or assisting the Financial Services Authority to exercise its functions under any of the following: (a) the legislation relating to friendly societies or to industrial and provident societies; (b) the Building Societies Act 1986; (c) the Companies Act 1989 Pt 7 (ss 154-191); (d) the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Companies Act 2006 s 461(4)(g)); or

As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. In determining whether to disclose information to a body in accordance with s 461(5), the authorised person must have regard to the following considerations: (i) whether the use which the body is likely to make of the information is sufficiently important to justify making the disclosure; (ii) whether the body has adequate arrangements to prevent the information from being used or further disclosed other than for the purposes of carrying out the functions mentioned in s 461(5), or for other purposes substantially similar to those for which information disclosed to the authorised person could be used or further disclosed: s 461(6).

Nothing in s 461 authorises the making of a disclosure in contravention of the Data Protection Act 1998 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 503 et seq): s 461(7).

The Secretary of State may by order amend s 461(3), (4) and (5): s 462(1). Such an order must not:

- 305 (A) amend s 461(3) (UK public authorities) by specifying a person unless the person exercises functions of a public nature (whether or not he exercises any other function) (s 462(2)(a));

306 (b) amend s 461(4) (purposes for which disclosure permitted) by adding or modifying a description of disclosure unless the purpose for which the disclosure is permitted is likely to facilitate the exercise of a function of a public nature (s 462(2)(b));

307 (c) amend s 461(5) (overseas regulatory authorities) so as to have the effect of permitting disclosures to be made to a body other than one that exercises functions of a public nature in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom (s 462(2)(c)).

An order under s 462 is subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): ss 462(3), 1289.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 460(3).

5 Ie under the Companies Act 2006 s 459: see PARA 903.

6 Companies Act 2006 s 460(4). No proceedings may be brought under s 460 except by or with the consent of the Secretary of State or the Director of Public Prosecutions: see s 1126; and PARA 1624.

A person guilty of an offence under s 460 is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine (or both), or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum (or both): s 460(5). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 1622.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 460(6) (added by SI 2008/948). For this purpose, any person who purports to act as director, manager or secretary of the body is treated as an officer of the body; and if the body is a company, any shadow director is treated as an officer of the company: Companies Act 2006 s 460(6) (as so added). As to the liability of an officer in default see PARA 315.

summons under the misfeasance provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986². The court has the same power of granting relief to auditors in respect of negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust as it has of granting relief to directors³.

923. Disclosure of remuneration for audit and non-audit work.

A note to the individual accounts of a parent company that is required to prepare, and does prepare, group accounts in accordance with the Companies Act 2006, and a note to the individual accounts of a subsidiary company where its parent is required to prepare, and does prepare, group accounts in accordance therewith, and the company is included in the consolidation, does not have to disclose the information required by Companies (Disclosure of Auditor Remuneration and Liability Limitation Agreements) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/489, reg 5(1)(b) if the group accounts are required to comply with reg 6(1) and the individual accounts state that the group accounts are so required: reg 6(2), (3). he must state that fact in his report¹⁰.

If the auditor fails to obtain all the information and explanations which, to the best of his knowledge and belief, are necessary for the purposes of his audit, he must also state that fact in his report¹¹.

If the requirements relating to the disclosure of directors' benefits¹² are not complied with in the annual accounts¹³ or, in the case of a quoted company, the requirements relating to information forming the auditable part of the directors' remuneration report¹⁴ are not complied with in that report, the auditor must include in his report, so far as he is reasonably able to do so, a statement giving the required particulars¹⁵.

If the directors of the company have prepared accounts in accordance with the small companies regime¹⁶ or have taken advantage of small companies exemption¹⁷ in preparing the directors' report, and in the auditor's opinion they were not entitled to do so, the auditor must state that fact in his report¹⁸.

Where the company is required to prepare a corporate governance statement¹⁹ in respect of a financial year²⁰, and no such statement is included in the directors' report²¹: (i) the company's auditor, in preparing his report on the company's annual accounts for that year, must ascertain whether a corporate governance statement has been prepared²²; and (ii) if it appears to the auditor that no such statement has been prepared, he must state that fact in his report²³.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(19) AUDITORS AND AUDIT/(iii) Functions of Auditor/B. DUTIES AND RIGHTS OF AUDITOR/(A) Duties/929. Auditors' duties; in general.

929. Auditors' duties; in general.

It is the duty of an auditor to verify not merely the arithmetical accuracy of the balance sheet, but its substantial accuracy¹, and to see that it includes the particulars required by the articles² and by statute, and contains a correct representation of the state of the company's affairs. While, therefore, it is not his duty to consider whether the business is prudently conducted, he is bound to consider and report to the shareholders whether the balance sheet shows the company's true financial position. To do this he must examine the books and take reasonable care to see that their contents are substantially accurate³. Except in special cases he should place before the shareholders the necessary information as to the company's true financial position, and not merely indicate the means of acquiring it⁴.

Apart from his statutory duty to report to the members⁵, which cannot be removed by the articles or an agreement, the exact duties of an auditor are regulated by the contract under which he is employed⁶. The statutory duty is not absolute but depends upon the explanations furnished and information given; but an auditor must ask for information on matters which call for further explanation⁷. An auditor must take steps to learn his statutory duties and, if there are any, his duties under the articles⁸.

It is his duty to consider whether payments made by the company before the audit were authorised by the articles⁹, and he will be liable for improper payments made by the directors and naturally resulting from his breach of duty¹⁰. So an auditor who reports confidentially to the directors the insufficiency of the securities on which the capital is invested and the difficulty of realisation, but who only reports to the shareholders that the value depends on realisation, with the result that the shareholders ignorantly approve an improper dividend, is liable to make good the amount paid¹¹. An auditor should not be content with a certificate that securities are in the possession of any person or body of persons, however trustworthy, unless the certificate is given by a bank or other person who in the ordinary course of business would usually be entrusted with securities¹².

An auditor has a duty to report immediately to the management a fraud on the company; and, where he suspects the management condones the fraud, he has a duty to report his suspicions to a third party without the management's knowledge or consent, the usual duty of confidentiality being overridden in such a case¹³.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(19) AUDITORS AND AUDIT/(iii) Functions of Auditor/B. DUTIES AND RIGHTS OF AUDITOR/(A) Duties/930. Auditors' duty of care.

930. Auditors' duty of care.

The duty of care owed by auditors¹ to members² of a company³ arises by reason of their statutory position and obligations⁴. That duty is towards shareholders collectively, in their capacity as shareholders⁵. Whether the auditors of a company owe a duty of care to a member of the public at large should be approached by applying either⁶ the 'threefold' test of foreseeability, proximity and what is just and reasonable⁷ or the 'assumption of responsibility' test⁸.

The auditors of a public company owe no duty of care to a member of the public at large who relies on the company's accounts to buy shares in the company because the court will not deduce a relationship of proximity between the auditors and a member of the public when to do so would give rise to unlimited liability on the part of the auditors⁹. Nor do auditors owe a duty of care to an individual shareholder in the company who wishes to buy more shares in the company, since an individual shareholder is in no better a position than a member of the public at large and the auditors' statutory duty to prepare accounts is owed to the body of shareholders as a whole, the purpose for which accounts are prepared and audited being to enable the shareholders as a body to exercise informed control of the company and not to enable individual shareholders to buy shares with a view to profit¹⁰. However, where auditors are carrying out a special duty for a specific purpose, such as where representations are made after an identified bidder in a take-over has emerged, the necessary criteria may be met to establish a duty of care¹¹.

Where the auditors, on the evidence, have no reason to know that the company intends to supply the auditors' reports to potential investors, there is no relationship between the auditors and potential or existing investors who are not company shareholders, even though the auditors' reports may foreseeably come into their hands and be relied upon¹². Likewise, in general, auditors owe no duty of care to the company's creditors, actual or potential¹³.

In determining a claimant's prospects for success, the criteria are¹⁴:

- 1795 (1) whether a legally enforceable duty of care exists¹⁵;
- 1796 (2) if such a duty exists, what the scope of that duty is¹⁶;
- 1797 (3) what the prospective harm is from which the person to whom the duty is owed ought to be protected¹⁷;
- 1798 (4) whether there been a breach of that duty¹⁸; and
- 1799 (5) if there has been such a breach, whether the loss complained of was caused by that breach, or whether it was caused by some other event or events unconnected with the breach¹⁹.

Auditors may plead ex turpi causa in oritur actio in defence to a claim alleging negligence on their part²⁰ in failing to detect a fraud perpetrated by the company's sole director and shareholder because, in those exceptional circumstances, his knowledge and acts are the acts of the company, such that the company is the villain and not the victim of the fraud; against the company, the auditors can properly plead ex turpi causa so as to have the claim against them struck out²¹.

5 Caparo Industries plc v Dickman [1990] 2 AC 605, [1990] 1 All ER 568, HL. The statutory function of an auditor is narrow, being to protect the company who has engaged him to audit its accounts from the consequences of undetected errors and wrongdoing and to inform shareholders with reliable information to enable them to exercise their collective powers: Caparo Industries plc v Dickman at 630 and 583 per Lord Oliver.

The decision in Caparo Industries plc v Dickman largely reflects the dissenting judgment of Denning LJ in Candler v Crane Christmas & Co [1951] 2 KB 164 at 179-184, [1951] 1 All ER 426 at 433-436, CA, described as a 'masterly analysis [which required] little, if any, amplification or modification in the light of later authority' by Lord Bridge of Harwich in Caparo Industries plc v Dickman at 623 and 577. A claimant who sues for breach of a duty imposed by the law (whether in contract or tort or under statute) must do more than prove that the defendant has failed to comply; he must show that the duty was owed to him and that it was a duty in respect of the kind of loss which he has suffered: South Australia Asset Management Corp v York Montague Ltd [1997] AC 191 at 211, sub nom Banque Bruxelles Lambert SA v Eagle Star Insurance Co Ltd [1996] 3 All ER 365 at 370, HL, per Lord Hoffmann, citing Caparo Industries plc v Dickman. However, when auditors undertake for reward to perform services and they are found to be negligent in the way they perform those services, the client is not required to show that it asked for specific advice before being able to recover damages for the foreseeable losses suffered by it: Equitable Life Assurance Society v Ernst & Young [2003] EWCA Civ 1114 at [129], [2003] 2 BCLC 603 at [129] per Brooke LJ. These criteria were crafted from a careful study of the leading case law cited to the court: see Equitable Life Assurance Society v Ernst & Young at [135] per Brooke LJ. However, the court acknowledged that, in terms of the concepts used to limit the scope of the legal consequences of negligence or of legal responsibility for negligence, the law is at present in a state of development and flux and sensitive to the facts: see Equitable Life Assurance Society v Ernst & Young at [107] per Brooke LJ.

15 See note 14.

16 See note 14.

17 See note 14. The issue, whether the duty which the tortfeasor owed was a duty in respect of the kind of loss of which the victim complains, is now the preferred approach of the courts (see Johnson v Gore Wood & Co (a firm) [2003] EWCA Civ 1728 at [91], [2003] All ER (D) 58 (Dec) at [91] per Arden LJ (cited in PARA 929 note 13)); and see MAN Nutzfahrzeuge AG v Freightliner Ltd [2007] EWCA Civ 910, [2008] 2 BCLC 22 (senior employee made fraudulent representations to the purchaser of a company as to the accuracy of the company's accounts, which representations he knew to be false because of his undiscovered fraud, giving rise to liability on the part of the vendor to the purchaser in misrepresentation and deceit; auditors were not liable because, while they may undertake a duty of care as to the use of the accounts in the sale of a business, they do not undertake a duty of care as to the use which a dishonest employee may make of the accounts; and the losses suffered by the vendor arose from the fraudulent misrepresentations rather than the inaccuracies in the accounts themselves and the auditors owed no duty in respect of those representations).

18 See note 14.

19 See note 14. The importance of this question is diminished by a focus on the scope of the duty and loss as a component of the scope of the duty, rather than on issues of causation: see note 17.

C. SIGNATURE OF AUDITOR'S REPORT

935. Name of auditor to be published with report.

The auditor's report must state the name of the auditor¹ and be signed and dated², although the auditor's name³ may be omitted from published copies of the report and the copy of the report delivered to the registrar⁴ if the company⁵:

1812 (1) considering on reasonable grounds that statement of the name would create or be likely to create a serious risk that the auditor or senior statutory auditor, or any other person, would be subject to violence or intimidation, has resolved that the name should not be stated⁶; and 1813 (2) has given notice of such resolution to the Secretary of State⁷.

Every copy of the auditor's report that is published by or on behalf of the company⁸ and the copy of the auditor's report delivered to the registrar⁹ must state the name of the auditor¹⁰ or, if the conditions under which names may be omitted¹¹ are met, state that a resolution has been passed and notified to the Secretary of State accordingly¹². Failure to comply with this requirement is an offence¹³.

1 Where the auditor is an individual, the report must be signed by him and where the auditor is a firm, the report must be signed by the senior statutory auditor in his own name, for and on behalf of the auditor: Companies Act 2006 s 503(2), (3). As to the meaning of 'firm' see PARA 969 note 1. As to the senior statutory auditor see s 504; and PARA 936.

As to the meaning of 'financial year' see PARA 711.

8 For these purposes a company is regarded as 'publishing' the report if it publishes, issues or circulates it or otherwise makes it available for public inspection in a manner calculated to invite members of the public generally, or any class of members of the public, to read it: Companies Act 2006 s 505(2).

13 If a copy of the auditor's report is published without the statement required by the Companies Act 2006 s 505 an offence is committed by the company and every officer of the company who is in default: s 505(3). 938. Removal of auditors.

The members¹ of a company² may remove an auditor from office at any time, either by ordinary resolution³ at a meeting⁴ or by special notice of resolution⁵ to remove the auditor⁶. An auditor may not be removed from office before the expiration of his term of office except by such resolution⁷. Where such a resolution is passed the company must give notice of that fact to the registrar⁸ within 14 days⁹: failure to comply with this requirement is an offence¹⁰.

3 As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 613.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 510(1), (2)(a). Nothing in s 510 is to be taken as depriving the person removed of compensation or damages payable to him in respect of the termination of his appointment as auditor or of any appointment terminating with that as auditor: s 510(3). An auditor who has been removed by resolution under s 510 has, notwithstanding his removal, the rights conferred by s 502(2) (see PARA 934) in relation to any general meeting of the company at which his term of office would otherwise have expired or at which it is proposed to fill the vacancy caused by his removal: s 513(1). In such a case the references in s 502 to matters concerning the auditor as auditor are construed as references to matters concerning him as a former auditor: s 513(2).

Required procedure where auditor removed or not reappointed.

939. Required procedure where auditor removed or not reappointed.

Special notice is required for a resolution at a general meeting of a company¹ removing an auditor from office². On receipt of notice of such an intended resolution the company must immediately send a copy of it to the auditor proposed to be removed³, who may make with respect to the intended resolution representations⁴ to the company and request their notification to members⁵ of the company⁶.

Where a resolution is proposed as a written resolution of a private company⁷ whose effect would be to appoint a person as auditor in place of a person (the 'outgoing auditor') whose term of office has expired, or is to expire, at the end of the period for appointing auditors⁸, the company must send a copy of the proposed resolution to the person proposed to be appointed and to the outgoing auditor if:

- 1817 (1) no period for appointing auditors has ended since the outgoing auditor ceased to hold office⁹; or

1818 (2) such a period has ended and an auditor or auditors should have been appointed but were not¹⁰; and the outgoing auditor may, within 14 days after receiving the notice, make with respect to the proposed resolution representations to the company¹¹ and request their circulation to members of the company¹².

Special notice may also be required of a resolution at a general meeting of a company whose effect would be to appoint a person as auditor in place of a person (the 'outgoing auditor') whose term of office has ended, or is to end, either at the end of the period for appointing auditors (in the case of a private company) or at the end of the next accounts meeting¹³ (in the case of a public company)¹⁴. In the case of a private company special notice will be required if no period for appointing auditors has ended since the outgoing auditor ceased to hold office or such a period has ended and an auditor or auditors should have been appointed but were not¹⁵; and in the case of a public company special notice will be required if there has been no accounts meeting of the company since the outgoing auditor ceased to hold office or there has been an accounts meeting at which an auditor or auditors should have been appointed but were not¹⁶. On receipt of such a notice the company must forthwith send a copy of it to the person proposed to be appointed and to the outgoing auditor¹⁷, who may make with respect to the intended resolution representations to the company¹⁸ and request their notification to members of the company¹⁹.

If a copy of any such representations is not sent out as required because received too late or because of the company's default, the auditor may (without prejudice to his right to be heard orally) require that the representations be read out at the meeting: s 511(5). Copies of the representations need not be sent out and the representations need not be read at the meeting if, on the application either of the company or of any other person claiming to be aggrieved, the court is satisfied that the auditor is using the provisions of s 511 to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter: s 511(6). The court may order the company's costs on the application to be paid in whole or in part by the auditor, notwithstanding that he is not a party to the application: s 511(6). If a copy of the statement is not sent out as required because received too late or because of the company's default, the auditor may (without prejudice to his right to be heard orally) require that the statement be read out at the meeting: s 518(8). Copies of a statement need not be sent out and the statement need not be read out at the meeting if, on the application either of the company or of any other person who claims to be aggrieved, the court is satisfied that the auditor is using the provisions of this section to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter: s 518(9). C. STATEMENT AND NOTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS WHERE AUDITOR CEASES TO HOLD OFFICE

943. Statement by auditor ceasing to hold office to be deposited with company.

Where an auditor of a quoted or unquoted company¹ ceases for any reason to hold office, he must deposit at the company's registered office a statement of the circumstances connected with his ceasing to hold office². The statement must be deposited:

- 1819 (1) in the case of resignation, along with the notice of resignation³;
- 1820 (2) in the case of failure to seek re-appointment, not less than 14 days before the end of the time allowed for next appointing an auditor⁴; or
- 1821 (3) in any other case, not later than the end of the period of 14 days beginning with the date on which he ceases to hold office⁵.

A person ceasing to hold office as auditor who fails to comply with these requirements commits an offence⁶.

1 As to the meanings of 'company', 'quoted company' and 'unquoted company' see PARAS 24, 696.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 519(1), (3). The provision set out in the text does not apply, however, to an auditor of an unquoted company if he considers that there are no circumstances in connection with his ceasing to hold office that need to be brought to the attention of members or creditors of the company (see s 519(1); but, if he so considers, he must deposit at the company's registered office a statement to that effect (s 519(2)). As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321.

Where the statement deposited under s 519 states the circumstances connected with the auditor's ceasing to hold office, the company must within 14 days of the deposit of the statement either send a copy of it to every person who under s 423 (see PARA 850) is entitled to be sent copies of the accounts, or apply to the court for a direction that copies need not be sent: s 520(1), (2). If it applies to the court, the company must notify the auditor of the application: s 520(3). If the court is satisfied that the auditor is using the provisions of s 519 to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter it must direct that copies of the statement need not be sent out and may further order the company's costs on the application to be paid in whole or in part by the auditor, even if he is not a party to the application, and the company must within 14 days of the court's decision send a statement setting out the effect of the order to every person who under s 423 is entitled to be sent copies of the accounts: s 520(4). If no such direction is made the company must, within 14 days of the court's decision or, as the case may be, of the discontinuance of the proceedings, send copies of the statement to every person who under s 423 is entitled to be sent copies of the accounts: s 520(5).

In the event of default in complying with s 520 an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default (s 520(6)), and a person guilty of this offence is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine and on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum (s 520(8)). As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 607; as to the meaning of 'officer in default' see PARA 315; as to the statutory maximum see PARA 1622. In proceedings for such an offence it is a defence for the person charged to show that he took all reasonable steps and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of the offence: s 520(7). See further s 521(1), (2); and PARA 944.

Where the offence is committed by a body corporate, every officer of the body who is in default also commits the offence: s 519(8) (added by SI 2008/948). For this purpose any person who purports to act as director, manager or secretary of the body is treated as an officer of the body and if the body is a company, any shadow director is treated as an officer of the company: Companies Act 2006 s 519(8) (as so added). An auditor who has ceased to hold office is required to send a copy of the statement regarding his ceasing to hold office¹ to the registrar². Unless he receives notice of an application to the court³ within 21 days beginning with the day on which he deposited the statement, the auditor must send the required copy to the registrar within a further seven days⁴; and if an application to the court is so made and the auditor subsequently receives notice⁵ of the conclusion or discontinuance of proceedings he must send a copy of the statement to the registrar within seven days of receiving that notice⁶. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(19) AUDITORS AND AUDIT/(iv) Removal, Resignation etc of Auditors/C. STATEMENT AND NOTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS WHERE AUDITOR CEASES TO HOLD OFFICE/945. Duty of auditor to notify appropriate audit authority.

945. Duty of auditor to notify appropriate audit authority.

Where in the case of a major audit¹ an auditor ceases for any reason to hold office or, in the case of an audit that is not a major audit, an auditor ceases to hold office before the end of his term of office, the auditor ceasing to hold office must notify the appropriate audit authority². The notice must inform the appropriate audit authority that he has ceased to hold office and be accompanied by a copy of the statement relating to his ceasing to hold office deposited by him³ at the company's registered office⁴. In the case of a major audit, the auditor must comply with these requirements at the same time as he deposits the statement regarding his ceasing to hold office at the company's registered office⁵; in the case of an audit that is not a major audit the auditor must comply with these requirements at such time (not being earlier than the time he deposits the statement) as the appropriate audit authority may require⁶.

A person ceasing to hold office as auditor who fails to comply with these requirements commits an offence⁷.

1 For these purposes 'major audit' means a statutory audit conducted in respect of a company any of whose securities have been admitted to the official list (within the meaning of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt 6 (ss 72-103: see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 385-436) (Companies Act 2006 s 525(2)(a)) or any other person in whose financial condition there is a major public interest (s 525(2)(b)). In determining whether an audit is a major audit within s 525(2)(b), regard must be had to any guidance issued by any of the appropriate audit authorities: s 525(3).

In ss 522-524, 'appropriate audit authority' means:

- 337 (1) in the case of a major audit (other than one conducted by an Auditor General), either the Secretary of State or, if the Secretary of State has delegated functions under s 1252 (see PARA 960) to a body whose functions include receiving the notice in question, that body (s 525(1)(a) (s 525(1) amended by SI 2007/3494));
- 338 (2) in the case of an audit (other than one conducted by an Auditor General) that is not a major audit, the relevant supervisory body (Companies Act 2006 s 525(1)(b) (as so amended)); and
- 339 (3) in the case of an audit conducted by an Auditor General, the Independent Supervisor (s 525(1)(c)).

'Supervisory body' and 'Independent Supervisor' have the same meaning as in Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264) (statutory auditors: see PARA 958) (see ss 1217, 1228; and PARAS 975, 1018): s 525(1). Further to head (1) above, see the Statutory Auditors (Delegation of Functions etc) Order 2008, SI 2008/496 (as to which see also PARA 961 et seq). This Order delegates most of the Secretary of State's functions relating to the regulation of statutory auditors under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264) to the Professional Oversight Board, one of the operating bodies of the Financial Reporting Council (as to which see PARA 699 note 2). The functions of the body known as the Professional Oversight Board (ie as established under the articles of association of the Financial Reporting Council Limited) (the 'second designated body') include the receipt of notices under the Companies Act 2006 s 522 and s 523 (see PARA 946) (notice of auditor ceasing to hold office) and accordingly the second designated body is the appropriate authority under s 525(1)(a) (notices concerning auditors ceasing to hold office) (see head (1) above): Statutory Auditors (Delegation of Functions etc) Order 2008, SI 2008/496, art 5.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 522, 525 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 11: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

946. Duty of company to notify appropriate audit authority.

Where an auditor ceases to hold office before the end of his term of office, the company¹ must notify the appropriate audit authority² not later than 14 days after the date on which the auditor's statement regarding his ceasing to hold office is deposited³ at the company's registered office⁴. The notice must:

- 1822 (1) inform the appropriate audit authority that the auditor has ceased to hold office⁵; and

949. Members' power to require website publication of audit concerns.

The members¹ of a quoted company² may require the company to publish on a website a statement setting out any matter relating to the audit of the company's accounts (including the auditor's report and the conduct of the audit) that are to be laid before the next accounts meeting, or any circumstances connected with an auditor of the company ceasing to hold office since the previous accounts meeting, that the members propose to raise at the next accounts meeting of the company³. A company is required to do so once it has received requests to that effect from members representing at least 5 per cent of the total voting rights of all the members who have a relevant right to vote (excluding any voting rights attached to any shares in the company held as treasury shares) or at least 100 members who have such a right and hold shares in the company on which there has been paid up an average sum, per member, of at least £100⁴.

The information must be made available on a website that is maintained by or on behalf of the company and identifies the company in question⁵, and access to the information on the website, and the ability to obtain a hard copy of the information from the website, must not be conditional on the payment of a fee or otherwise restricted⁶. The statement itself must be made available within three working days of the company being required to publish it on a website⁷ and must be kept available until after the meeting to which it relates⁸.

Failure to comply with the requirements as to website publication⁹ or a company's supplementary duties in relation to a request for website publication¹⁰ is an offence¹¹, although a quoted company is not required¹² to place a statement on a website if, on an application by the company or another person who claims to be aggrieved, the court is satisfied that the rights conferred¹³ are being abused¹⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321.

2 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 16 Ch 5 (ss 527-531: see the text and notes 3-14) a company is a 'quoted company' if it is a quoted company in accordance with s 385 (quoted and unquoted companies for the purposes of Pt 15: see PARA 696) in relation to the financial year to which the accounts to be laid at the next accounts meeting relate: s 531(1). As to the meaning of 'financial year' see PARA 711. As to the meaning of 'accounts meeting' see PARA 865. The provisions of s 385(4)-(6) (power to amend definition by regulations: see PARA 696) apply in relation to the provisions of Pt 16 Ch 5 as in relation to the provisions of Pt 15: s 531(2). As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 527(1). As to the meaning of 'accounts meeting' see PARA 865 note 4.

A company may not require the members requesting website publication to pay its expenses in complying with s 527 or s 528 (see the text and notes 5-8; cf the text and notes 12-14) (s 529(2)); where a company is required to place a statement on a website under s 527, it must forward the statement to the company's auditor not later than the time when it makes the statement available on the website (s 529(3)); and the business which may be dealt with at the accounts meeting includes any statement that the company has been required under s

527 to publish on a website (s 529(4)). A quoted company must in the notice it gives of the accounts meeting draw attention to: (1) the possibility of a statement being placed on a website in pursuance of members' requests under s 527 (s 529(1)(a)); and (2) the effect of s 529(2)-(4) (s 529(1)(b)). As to the exercise of members' rights under s 529 where the shares are held on behalf of others see s 153; and PARA 377.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 527(2). For these purposes, a 'relevant right to vote' means a right to vote at the accounts meeting; s 527(3). A request made in accordance with s 527(2): (1) may be sent to the company in hard copy or electronic form (s 527(4)(a)); (2) must identify the statement to which it relates (s 527(4)(b)); (3) must be authenticated by the person or persons making it (s 527(4)(c)); and (4) must be received by the company at least one week before the meeting to which it relates (s 527(4)(d)). As to documents or information sent or supplied in hard copy form see PARA 678; and as to documents or information sent or supplied in electronic form see PARA 679.

A failure to make information available on a website throughout the period specified in s 528(4)(b) is disregarded if the information is made available on the website for part of that period and the failure is wholly attributable to circumstances that it would not be reasonable to have expected the company to prevent or avoid: s 528(5).

The court may order the members requesting website publication to pay the whole or part of the company's costs on an application under the Companies Act 2006 s 527(5), even if they are not parties to the application: s 527(6).

(vi) Auditors' Liability

A. IN GENERAL

950. General provision.

The articles of association of a company¹ sometimes make provision for audit and the duties of auditors². As regards indemnity clauses in articles or in contracts, auditors are in the same position as directors³. Companies may be required by their members to publicise audit concerns on their website⁴.

- 1 As to a company's articles of association see PARA 228. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.
- 2 This was the position under the Companies Act 1948 Sch 1, Table A art 130 but the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A (see PARA 18) makes no such provision. As to the articles impliedly forming part of the contract between the company and its auditors see Re City Equitable Fire Insurance Co Ltd [1925] Ch 407 at 520-521, CA, per Warrington LJ; and PARA 245.
- 3 See the Companies Act 2006 ss 532, 533; and PARAS 951, 952. See also the Companies (Disclosure of Auditor Remuneration and Liability Limitation Agreements) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/489; and PARAS 921-923.

Voidness of provisions protecting auditors from liability.

B. PROVISIONS INTENDED TO PROTECT AUDITORS FROM LIABILITY

951. Voidness of provisions protecting auditors from liability.

Any provision, whether contained in a company's¹ articles² or in any contract with the company or otherwise³:

- 1824 (1) for exempting an auditor of a company (to any extent) from any liability that would otherwise attach to him in connection with any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company occurring in the course of the audit of accounts⁴; or
- 1825 (2) by which a company directly or indirectly provides an indemnity (to any extent) for an auditor of the company, or of an associated company⁵, against any liability attaching to him in connection with any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company of which he is auditor occurring in the course of the audit of accounts⁶, is void except as permitted by the provisions relating to the indemnification of the costs of successfully defending proceedings or to liability limitation agreements⁷.

- 1 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.
 - 2 As to the meaning of 'articles' see PARA 228. The model articles make no such provision.
 - 3 Companies Act 2006 s 532(3). The words 'or otherwise' must be construed eiusdem generis with the preceding words, the genus being any arrangement between the company and its officers: Burgoine v Waltham Forest London Borough Council [1997] 2 BCLC 612 (decided under the Companies Act 1985 s 310: see now the Companies Act 2006 ss 232, 532; and see also PARAS 594, 951). The prohibition applies only to indemnities given by the company concerned and not to indemnities given by third parties: Burgoine v Waltham Forest London Borough Council [1997] 2 BCLC 612.
- The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 532 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 11: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

5 For these purposes companies are 'associated' if one is a subsidiary of the other or both are subsidiaries of the same body corporate: Companies Act 2006 s 532(4). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary' see PARA 25; as to the meaning of 'body corporate' see PARA 1.

Indemnity for costs of successfully defending proceedings.

C. INDEMNITY FOR COSTS OF DEFENDING PROCEEDINGS

952. Indemnity for costs of successfully defending proceedings.

The general voidness of provisions protecting auditors from liability¹ does not prevent a company² from indemnifying an auditor against any liability incurred by him in defending proceedings (whether civil³ or criminal) in which judgment is given in his favour or he is acquitted⁴, or in connection with an application for relief in the case of honest and reasonable conduct⁵ in which relief is granted to him by the court⁶.

D. LIABILITY LIMITATION AGREEMENTS

953. Terms of liability limitation agreement and its effect.

The general voidness of provisions protecting auditors from liability¹ does not affect the validity of a liability limitation agreement that both complies with the provisions governing the terms of such an agreement² and is authorised by the members³ of the company⁴. For these purposes, a 'liability limitation agreement' is an agreement that purports to limit the amount of a liability owed to a company by its auditor in respect of any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, occurring in the course of the audit of accounts, of which the auditor may be guilty in relation to the company⁵.

3 As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 534(2). As to authorisation by members of the company as mentioned in the text see s 536; and PARA 955. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 534 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 11: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 534(1). A liability limitation agreement must not apply in respect of acts or omissions occurring in the course of the audit of accounts for more than one financial year and must specify the financial year in relation to which it applies: s 535(1). The Secretary of State may by regulations require liability limitation agreements to contain provisions specified in the regulations or provisions of a description specified in the regulations and prohibit liability limitation agreements from containing such specified provisions or provisions of a specified description: s 535(2). Without prejudice to the generality of the power conferred by s 535(2), that power may be exercised with a view to preventing adverse effects on competition: s 535(3). Subject to s 535(1)-(3), it is immaterial how a liability limitation agreement is framed (in particular, the limit on the amount of the auditor's liability need not be a sum of money, or a formula, specified in the agreement): s 535(4). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made. As to the meaning of 'financial year' see PARA 711. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

A liability limitation agreement effective to the extent provided by s 537 (see s 534(3)(a); and PARA 954) and is not subject to the Unfair Contract Terms Act 1977 ss 2(2), 3(2)(a) (see CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARAS 822, 823) (Companies Act 2006 s 534(3)(b)).

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(19) AUDITORS AND AUDIT/(vi) Auditors' Liability/D. LIABILITY LIMITATION AGREEMENTS/954. Effect of liability limitation agreement.

954. Effect of liability limitation agreement.

A liability limitation agreement¹ is not effective to limit the auditor's liability to less than such amount as is fair and reasonable in all the circumstances of the case² having regard (in particular) to:

- 1826 (1) the auditor's responsibilities under the audit requirements³;
- 1827 (2) the nature and purpose of the auditor's contractual obligations to the company⁴; and
- 1828 (3) the professional standards expected of him⁵, and a liability limitation agreement that purports to limit the auditor's liability to less than this amount has effect as if it limited his liability to that amount⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'liability limitation agreement' see PARA 953 note 5.

2 In determining what is fair and reasonable in all the circumstances of the case no account is to be taken of matters arising after the loss or damage in question has been incurred or matters (whenever arising) affecting the possibility of recovering compensation from other persons liable in respect of the same loss or damage: Companies Act 2006 s 537(3).

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 537 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 11: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(19) AUDITORS AND AUDIT/(vi) Auditors' Liability/D. LIABILITY LIMITATION AGREEMENTS/955. Authorisation of agreement by members of the company.

955. Authorisation of agreement by members of the company.

A liability limitation agreement¹ between a private company² and its auditor may be authorised:

1829 (1) by the company passing a resolution³, before it enters into the agreement, waiving the need for approval⁴;

1830 (2) by the company passing a resolution, before it enters into the agreement, approving the agreement's principal terms⁵; or 1831 (3) by the company passing a resolution, after it enters into the agreement, approving the agreement⁶.

A liability limitation agreement between a public company⁷ and its auditor may be authorised:

1832 (a) by the company passing a resolution in general meeting, before it enters into the agreement, approving the agreement's principal terms⁸; or 1833 (b) by the company passing a resolution in general meeting, after it enters into the agreement, approving the agreement⁹.

Authorisation under these provisions may be withdrawn by the company passing an ordinary resolution to that effect:

1834 (i) at any time before the company enters into the agreement¹⁰; or 1835 (ii) if the company has already entered into the agreement, before the beginning of the financial year¹¹ to which the agreement relates¹².

A liability limitation agreement is authorised by the members¹³ of the company if it has been authorised under these provisions and that authorisation has not been withdrawn¹⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'liability limitation agreement' see PARA 953 note 5.

2 As to the meanings of 'private company' and 'company' see PARAS 102, 24.

3 Where a provision of the Companies Acts requires a resolution of a company, and does not specify what kind of resolution is required, what is required is an ordinary resolution unless the company's articles require a higher majority (or unanimity): see the Companies Act 2006 s 281(3); and PARA 617.

341 (2) the financial year to which the agreement relates (s 536(4)(b)); or

956. Disclosure of agreement by company.

A company¹ which has entered into a liability limitation agreement² must make such disclosure in connection with the agreement as the Secretary of State³ may require by regulations⁴. Such regulations may provide, in particular, that any disclosure required by the regulations be made: (1) in a note to the company's annual accounts (in the case of its individual accounts) or in such manner as is specified in the regulations (in the case of group accounts)⁵; or (2) in the directors' report⁶.

A. IN GENERAL

957. Purposes of the statutory provisions relating to statutory auditors.

The main purposes of the provisions regulating statutory auditors¹ are to secure that only persons who are properly supervised and appropriately qualified are appointed as statutory auditors and to secure that audits by persons so appointed are carried out properly, with integrity and with a proper degree of independence².

B. DELEGATION OF SECRETARY OF STATE'S FUNCTIONS

960. Delegation of functions of the Secretary of State.

The Secretary of State¹ may² make an order³ for the purpose of enabling functions of the Secretary of State relating to the regulation of statutory auditors⁴ to be exercised by a body designated by the order⁵, which may be either a body corporate⁶ which is established by the order⁷ or a body (whether a body corporate or an unincorporated association) which is already in existence (an 'existing body')⁸. A delegation order has the effect of transferring to the body designated by it all relevant functions of the Secretary of State⁹ subject to such exceptions and reservations as may be specified in the order¹⁰, excepting the Secretary of State's functions in relation to the body itself¹¹ and his functions¹² relating to the appointment of an Independent Supervisor¹³, and confers on the designated body further powers to designate public authorities¹⁴; a delegation order may also confer on the designated body such other functions supplementary or incidental to those transferred as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate¹⁵.

Pursuant to these provisions an order has been made delegating most of the Secretary of State's functions relating to the regulation of statutory auditors¹⁶ to the Professional Oversight Board¹⁷.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

2 le under the Companies Act 2006 s 1252: see the text and notes 3-15.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 1252(2)(a).

8 Companies Act 2006 s 1252(2)(b). The Secretary of State may make a delegation order under s 1252(2)(b) which designates an existing body if it appears to him that the body is able and willing to exercise the functions that would be transferred by the order, and the body has arrangements in place relating to the exercise of those functions which are such as to be likely to ensure that the following conditions are met (ss 1252(2)(b), 1253(1), (2)):

348 (1) that the functions in question will be exercised effectively (s 1253(3)(a)); and

349 (2) where the delegation order is to contain any requirements or other provisions relating to the exercise of the functions by the designated body as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate (ie as specified under s 1253(4), which enables the order to contain such functions), that those functions will be exercised in accordance with any such requirements or provisions (s 1253(3)(b)).

An existing body may be designated by a delegation order under s 1252 and may accordingly exercise functions of the Secretary of State in pursuance of the order despite any involvement of the body in the exercise of any functions under arrangements within Sch 10 paras 21-22B, 23(1) or 24(1) (see PARA 981) or Sch 12 paras 1 or 2 (see PARA 1026): s 1253(5) (amended by SI 2007/3494).

9 See note 4. Any transfer of functions under s 1224 (power to call for information from recognised bodies etc: see PARA 1011), s 1244 (power to call for information from registered third country auditors: see PARA 1028) or s 1254 (directions to comply with international obligations: see PARA 1014) must be subject to the reservation that the functions remain exercisable concurrently by the Secretary of State (s 1235(6)), and any transfer of the function of refusing to make a declaration under s 1221(1) (approval of third country qualifications: see PARA 1007) on the grounds referred to in s 1221(4) (lack of comparable treatment: see PARA 1007), or the function of withdrawing such a declaration under s 1221(7) on those grounds, must be subject to the reservation that the function is exercisable only with the consent of the Secretary of State (s 1235(7)).

Where functions are transferred or resumed, the Secretary of State may by order confer or, as the case may be, take away such other functions supplementary or incidental to those transferred or resumed as appear to him to be appropriate: s 1235(9).

C. INDIVIDUALS AND FIRMS AS STATUTORY AUDITOR

(A) REQUIREMENTS FOR APPOINTMENT

969. Eligibility for appointment as statutory auditor.

An individual or firm¹ is eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor² if the individual or firm:

- 1852 (1) is a member of a recognised supervisory body³; and
- 1853 (2) is eligible for appointment under the rules of that body⁴.

1 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264) (see PARA 960 et seq) 'firm' means any entity, whether or not a legal person, which is not an individual and includes a body corporate, a corporation sole and a partnership or other unincorporated association: s 1261(1).

2 As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' see PARA 958. In the cases to which the Companies Act 2006 s 1222 applies (individuals retaining only Companies Act 1967 authorisation: see PARA 1008), a person's eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor is restricted as mentioned in the Companies Act 2006 s 1222: s 1212(2). References to a person eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor by virtue of Pt 42 in enactments relating to eligibility for appointment as auditor of a person other than a company do not include a person to whom s 1222 (eligibility of persons holding Companies Act 1967 authorisation: see PARA 1008) applies: s 1222(3).

3 Companies Act 2006 s 1212(1)(a). As to the meanings of 'supervisory body', 'member of a supervisory body' and 'recognised supervisory body' see PARA 975.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 1212(1)(b). As to the rules of a supervisory body see PARA 975.

Effect of ineligibility to be statutory auditor.

970. Effect of ineligibility to be statutory auditor.

No person may act as statutory auditor¹ of an audited person² if he is ineligible for appointment as a statutory auditor³, and commits an offence if he does so act⁴. If at any time during his term of office a statutory auditor becomes ineligible for appointment as a statutory auditor, he must immediately resign his office (with immediate effect)⁵ and give notice in writing to the audited person that he has resigned by reason of his becoming ineligible for appointment⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' see PARA 958.

2 As to the meaning of 'audited person' see PARA 971 note 2.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 1213(1). The text refers to a person ineligible with respect to the requirements of s 1212 (see PARA 969). A suspension notice does not make an Auditor General ineligible for appointment as a statutory auditor for the purposes of s 1213: see s 1235(3); and PARA 1023.

4 By virtue of the Companies Act 2006 s 1213(3)(a), (5) a person is guilty of an offence if:

361 (1) he acts as a statutory auditor in contravention of s 1213(1);

362 (2) having been convicted of such an offence he continues to act as a statutory auditor in contravention of s 1213(1); and

363 (3) having been convicted of the second offence he continues to act as a statutory auditor in contravention of s 1213(1).

A person guilty of an offence under s 1213(3) (ie the initial offence referred to in head (1) above and in note 6 head (1)) is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine and on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum; and a person guilty of the second or third offence (referred to in the respective heads (2), (3)) is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine and on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding one-tenth of the statutory maximum for each day on which the act or the failure continues: s 1213(4), (7). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 1622. In proceedings against a person for an offence under s 1213 it is a defence for him to show that he did not know and had no reason to believe that he was, or had become, ineligible for appointment as a statutory auditor: s 1213(8).

5 Companies Act 2006 s 1213(2)(a).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 1213(2)(b). By virtue of s 1213(3)(b), (6) a person is guilty of an offence if:

364 (1) he fails to give notice in accordance with s 1213(2)(b);

365 (2) having been convicted of such an offence he continues to fail to give the notice mentioned in s 1213(2)(b); and

- 1855 (2) he is an officer or employee of an associated undertaking⁷ of the audited person⁸ or a partner or employee of such a person, or a partnership of which such a person is a partner⁹; or
- 1856 (3) there exists, between him or an associate¹⁰ of his and the audited person or an associated undertaking of the audited person, a connection of any such description as may be specified by regulations made by the Secretary of State¹¹.

1 As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' see PARA 958.

2 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264) (see PARA 960 et seq) 'audited person' means the person in respect of whom a statutory audit is conducted: s 1210(2). 'Statutory audit' is to be construed with the definition 'statutory auditor' (see PARA 958): s 1210(1).

3 By virtue of the Companies Act 2006 s 1215(2)(a), (4) a person is guilty of an offence if:

- 368 (2) having been convicted of such an offence he continues to act as a statutory auditor in contravention of s 1214(1); and
- 369 (3) having been convicted of the second offence he continues to act as a statutory auditor in contravention of s 1214(1).

A person guilty of an offence under s 1215(2) (ie the initial offence referred to in head (1) above) is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine and on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum; and a person guilty of the second or third offence (referred to in the respective heads (2), (3)) is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine and on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding one-tenth of the statutory maximum for each day on which the act or the failure continues: s 1215(3), (6). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 1622. In proceedings against a person for an offence under s 1215 it is a defence for him to show that he did not know and had no reason to believe that he was, or had become, prohibited from acting as statutory auditor of the audited person by s 1214(1): s 1215(7).

4 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 966 note 5.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 1214(1), (2)(a). An auditor of an audited person is not to be regarded as an officer or employee of the person for the purposes of s 1214(2), (3): s 1214(5).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 1214(2)(b).

7 In the Companies Act 2006 s 1214 'associated undertaking', in relation to an audited person, means a parent undertaking or subsidiary undertaking of the audited person or a subsidiary undertaking of a parent undertaking of the audited person: s 1214(6). In relation to a body corporate 'associate' means:

375 (c) any employee or partner of that body or of any body corporate in the same group (s 1260(3)(c)).

As to the meaning of 'body corporate' see PARA 6. As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 966 note 5. 972. Effect of lack of independence.

If at any time during his term of office, a statutory auditor¹ becomes prohibited from acting as such in relation to an audited person², he must immediately resign his office (with immediate effect)³ and give notice in writing to the audited person that he has resigned by reason of his lack of independence⁴.

¹ As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' see PARA 958.

- 2 As to the meaning of 'audited person' see PARA 971 note 2.
- 3 Companies Act 2006 s 1215(1)(a).
- 4 Companies Act 2006 s 1215(1)(b). By virtue of s 1215(2)(b), (5) a person is guilty of an offence if:
- 379 (1) he fails to give notice in accordance with s 1215(1)(b);
- 380 (2) having been convicted of such an offence he continues to fail to give the notice mentioned in s 1215(1)(b); and
- 381 (3) having been convicted of the second offence he continues to fail to give the notice.

A person guilty of an offence under s 1215(2) (ie the initial offence referred to in head (1) above) is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine and on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum; and a person guilty of the second or third offence (referred to in the respective heads (2), (3)) is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine and on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding one-tenth of the statutory maximum for each day on which the act or the failure continues: s 1215(3), (6). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 1622. In proceedings against a person for an offence under s 1215 it is a defence for him to show that he did not know and had no reason to believe that he was, or had become, prohibited from acting as statutory auditor of the audited person by s 1214(1): s 1215(7).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(19) AUDITORS AND AUDIT/(vii) Statutory Auditors and Regulatory Matters/C. INDIVIDUALS AND FIRMS AS STATUTORY AUDITOR/(A) Requirements for Appointment/973. Effect of appointment of partnership.

973. Effect of appointment of partnership.

Where a partnership¹ is appointed² as statutory auditor³ of an audited person⁴ then, unless a contrary intention appears, the appointment is an appointment of the partnership as such and not of the partners⁵. Where the partnership ceases, the appointment is to be treated as extending to any appropriate partnership⁶ which succeeds to the practice of that partnership⁷ or any other appropriate person who succeeds to that practice having previously carried it on in partnership⁸.

1 Ie a partnership constituted under the law of England and Wales, Northern Ireland, or any other country or territory in which a partnership is not a legal person: Companies Act 2006 s 1216(1). As to partnership generally see PARTNERSHIP.

2 Ie by virtue of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 Ch 2 (ss 1212-1225): see PARA 969 et seq.

3 As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' see PARA 958.

4 As to the meaning of 'audited person' see PARA 971 note 2.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 1216(2).

6 For these purposes a partnership or other person is 'appropriate' if it or he is eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor by virtue of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 Ch 2 (see PARA 969) and is not prohibited by s 1214(1) (see PARA 971) from acting as statutory auditor of the audited person: s 1216(6).

7 For these purposes a partnership is to be regarded as 'succeeding' to the practice of another partnership only if the members of the successor partnership are substantially the same as those of the former partnership and a partnership or other person is to be regarded as succeeding to the practice of a partnership only if it or he succeeds to the whole or substantially the whole of the business of the former partnership: Companies Act 2006 s 1216(4).

8 Companies Act 2006 s 1216(3). Where the partnership ceases and the appointment is not treated under s 1216(3) as extending to any partnership or other person, the appointment may with the consent of the audited person be treated as extending to an appropriate partnership, or other appropriate person, who succeeds to the business of the former partnership or such part of it as is agreed by the audited person is to be treated as comprising the appointment: s 1216(5).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. Secretary of State's power to require second company audit.

974. Secretary of State's power to require second company audit.

Where a person appointed as statutory auditor¹ of a company² was not an appropriate person³ for any part of the period during which the audit was conducted the Secretary of State⁴ may direct⁵ the company concerned to retain an appropriate person to conduct a second audit of the relevant accounts⁶ or to review the first audit and to report (giving his reasons) whether a second audit is needed⁷. The company must send a copy of such a report to the registrar of companies⁸ and if the report states that a second audit is needed, take such steps as are necessary for the carrying out of that audit⁹. It is an offence to fail to comply with a direction, to fail to send a copy of a report to the registrar or to take any steps deemed necessary¹⁰.

1 As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' see PARA 958.

2 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 958 note 2. As to the meaning of 'company' generally see PARA 1.

3 A person is 'appropriate' for these purposes if he is eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor (see PARA 969) or, if the person is an Auditor General (see the Companies Act 2006 s 1226; and PARA 1016), for appointment as statutory auditor of the company and not prohibited by s 1214(1) (independence requirement: see PARA 971) from acting as statutory auditor of the company: s 1248(3). If a person accepts an appointment, or continues to act, as statutory auditor of a company at a time when he knows he is not an appropriate person, the company may recover from him any costs incurred by it in complying with the requirements of s 1248: s 1249(1).

4 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6; and as to the delegation to the Professional Oversight Board of the Secretary of State's functions relating to the regulation of statutory auditors see PARA 960 et seq.

5 The Secretary of State must send a copy of a direction under the Companies Act 2006 s 1248(2) to the registrar of companies: s 1248(4). As to the meaning of 'registrar of companies' see s 1060; and PARA 131 (definition applied by s 1248(9)). Such a direction is, on the application of the Secretary of State, enforceable by injunction: s 1249(3).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 1248(1), (2)(a).

7 Companies Act 2006 s 1248(2)(b).

8 Companies Act 2006 s 1248(6)(a).

9 Companies Act 2006 s 1248(6)(b). Where a second audit is carried out under s 1248, any statutory or other provision applying in relation to the first audit applies also, in so far as practicable, in relation to the second audit: s 1249(2).

10 The company is guilty of an offence if:

382 (1) it fails to comply with a direction under s 1248(2) within the period of 21 days beginning with the date on which it is given (s 1248(5)(a));

- 383 (2) it has been convicted of a previous offence under s 1248(5) and the failure to comply with the direction which led to the conviction continues after the conviction (s 1248(5)(b));
- 384 (3) it fails to send a copy of a report under s 1248(2)(b) to the registrar within the period of 21 days beginning with the date on which it receives it (s 1248(7)(a));
- 385 (4) in a case within s 1248(6)(b), it fails to take the steps mentioned immediately it receives the report (s 1248(7)(b)); or
- 386 (5) it has been convicted of a previous offence under s 1248(7) and the failure to send a copy of the report, or take the steps, which led to the conviction continues after the conviction (s 1248(7)(c)).

A company guilty of an offence under s 1248 is liable on summary conviction:

- 387 (a) in a case within s 1248(5)(a) or (7)(a) or (b), to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale (s 1248(8)(a)); and
- 388 (b) in a case within s 1248(5)(b) or (7)(c), to a fine not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale for each day on which the failure continues (s 1248(8)(b)).

As to the standard scale see PARA 1622.

Supervisory bodies.

(B) SUPERVISORY BODIES

975. Supervisory bodies.

A 'supervisory body' is¹ a body established in the United Kingdom² (whether a body corporate³ or an unincorporated association) which maintains and enforces rules⁴ as to the eligibility of persons for appointment as a statutory auditor⁵ and the conduct of statutory audit work⁶ which are binding on persons seeking appointment or acting as a statutory auditor because they are members of that body⁷.

1 Ie for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264): see PARA 960 et seq.

2 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 a body is regarded as 'established in the United Kingdom' if and only if it is incorporated or formed under the law of the United Kingdom or a part of the United Kingdom or its central management and control are exercised in the United Kingdom; and any reference to a qualification 'obtained in the United Kingdom' is to a qualification obtained from such a body: s 1261(2). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5.

3 As to the meaning of 'body corporate' see PARA 6.

4 In the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 references to the 'rules' of a supervisory body are to the rules (whether or not laid down by the body itself) which the body has power to enforce and which are relevant for the purposes of Pt 42: s 1217(3). This includes rules relating to the admission or expulsion of members of the body, so far as relevant for the purposes of Pt 42: s 1217(3).

5 As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' and as to eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor see PARAS 958, 969.

6 'Statutory audit work' is to be construed with the definitions 'statutory auditor' (see PARA 958) and 'statutory audit' (see PARA 971 note 2): s 1210(1).

7 Companies Act 2006 s 1217(1) (amended by SI 2007/3494). In the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 references to the 'members' of a supervisory body are to the persons who, whether or not members of the body, are subject to its rules in seeking appointment or acting as a statutory auditor: s 1217(2). Certain rules must also be binding on persons who have sought appointment or acted as a statutory auditor and have been members of the body at any time after the commencement of Pt 42: see s 1217(1A), Sch 10 paras 9(3)(b), 10C(3)(a); and PARAS 980, 981.

976. Exemption from liability for damages.

No recognised supervisory body¹, no officer² or employee of a recognised supervisory body, and no member of the governing body of a recognised supervisory body³, is liable in damages for anything done or omitted in the discharge or purported discharge of the functions of a recognised supervisory body so far as relating to, or to matters arising out of, any of:

- 1857 (1) rules, practices, powers and arrangements of the body to which the provisions governing recognition⁴ apply⁵;
- 1858 (2) the obligations of the body relating to the promotion and maintenance of standards⁶;
- 1859 (3) any guidance issued by the body⁷; and
- 1860 (4) the obligations imposed⁸ on the body⁹.

These provisions do not, however, apply if the act or omission is shown to have been in bad faith¹⁰; nor do they apply so as to prevent an award of damages in respect of an act or omission of a public authority that was found to be unlawful¹¹ on grounds on incompatibility with European Convention rights¹².

977. Application for recognition of supervisory body.

A supervisory body¹ may apply to the Secretary of State² for an order declaring it to be³ a recognised supervisory body (a 'recognition order')⁴. Any such application must be made in such manner as the Secretary of State may direct⁵ and accompanied by such information as the Secretary of State may reasonably require for the purpose of determining the application⁶, and must be accompanied by a copy of the applicant's rules⁷ and a copy of any guidance issued by the applicant in writing⁸.

The Secretary of State may require any information to be furnished under Sch 10 para 1 to be in such form or verified in such manner as he may specify: Sch 10 para 1(5).

An applicant for a recognition order is required to pay such fee in respect of his application as the Secretary of State may by regulations prescribe, and no application is to be regarded as duly made unless this subsection is complied with (s 1251(1)); the Secretary of State may also by regulations prescribe periodical fees to be paid by every recognised supervisory body (s 1251(2)(a)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such fees had been prescribed (the Company Auditors (Recognition Orders) (Application Fees) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/1206, which previously made provision in this regard, having been revoked by the Company Auditors (Recognition Orders) (Application Fees) and the Companies Act 1989 (Recognised Supervisory Bodies) (Periodical Fees) (Revocation) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2243). The powers of the Secretary of State in relation to the making of recognition orders have been transferred to the Professional Oversight Board (see note 2; and PARA 960) which accordingly has the function of determining whether to prescribe any fee to replace the fees prescribed in the revoked regulations. Such fees will not be prescribed by statutory instrument. Fees received by the Secretary of State by virtue of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 are to be paid into the Consolidated Fund: s 1251(3).

6 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 1(2)(b). 978. Holding of appropriate qualification to be statutory auditors.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body¹ must have rules to the effect that a person is not eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor² unless:

- 1861 (1) in the case of an individual other than an EEA auditor³, he holds an appropriate qualification⁴;
- 1862 (2) in the case of an individual who is an EEA auditor he holds an appropriate qualification⁵ or has been authorised⁶ or passed an aptitude test⁷; or
- 1863 (3) in the case of a firm each individual responsible for statutory audit work⁸ on behalf of the firm is eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor and the firm is controlled by qualified persons⁹.

1 As to the meaning of 'supervisory body' see PARA 975. As to applications for recognition as a supervisory body see PARA 977 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' and as to eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor see PARAS 958, 969.

3 'EEA auditor' means an individual who is approved in accordance with EC Council Directive 2006/43 (OJ L157, 9.6.2006, p 87) on statutory audits of annual accounts and consolidated accounts (the 'Audit Directive') by an EEA competent authority to carry out audits of annual accounts or consolidated accounts required by Community law; and 'EEA competent authority' means a competent authority within the meaning of art 2.10 of the Audit Directive of an EEA State other than the United Kingdom: Companies Act 2006 s 1261(1) (definitions added by SI 2007/3494). For these purposes Gibraltar is treated as if it were an EEA State: Companies Act 2006 s 1261(2A) (definition added by SI 2007/3494).

A person has been 'authorised' for these purposes if he has been authorised on or before 5 April 2008 to practise the profession of company auditor pursuant to the European Communities (Recognition of Professional Qualifications) (First General System) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/18, and has fulfilled any requirements imposed pursuant to reg 6: Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 6(1)(aa)(ii) (as so added).

7 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 6(1)(aa)(iii) (added by SI 2007/3494). The person must have passed an aptitude test which tested his knowledge of subjects that are covered by a recognised professional qualification, that are not covered by the professional qualification already held by the person and the knowledge of which is essential for the pursuit of the profession of statutory auditor: Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 6(2)(a) (added by SI 2007/3494). The test in question may also test the person's knowledge of rules of professional conduct, but must not test his knowledge of any other matters: Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 6(2)(b), (c) (added by SI 2007/3494). No aptitude test is required for these purposes if the subjects that are covered by a recognised professional qualification and the knowledge of which is essential for the pursuit of the profession of statutory auditor are covered by the professional qualification already held by the person: Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 6(2A) (added by SI 2007/3494).

8 As to the meaning of 'statutory audit work' see PARA 975 note 6.

9 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 6(1)(b). A firm which has ceased to comply with the conditions mentioned in Sch 10 para 6(1)(b) may be permitted to remain eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor for a period of not more than three months: Sch 10 para 6(3).

For this purpose a firm is to be treated as controlled by 'qualified persons' if, and only if, a majority of the members of the firm are qualified persons and where the firm's affairs are managed by a board of directors, committee or other management body, a majority of that body are qualified persons or, if the body consists of two persons only, at least one of them is a qualified person: Sch 10 para 7(1), (3). References to a person being 'qualified' are:

389 (1) in relation to an individual, to his holding an appropriate qualification or a corresponding qualification to audit accounts under the law of an EEA State, or part of an EEA State, other than the United Kingdom (Sch 10 para 7(2)(a) (amended by SI 2007/3494)); and 390 (2) in relation to a firm, to its being eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor or being eligible for a corresponding appointment as an auditor under the law of an EEA State, or part of an EEA State, other than the United Kingdom (Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 7(2)(b) (amended by SI 2007/3494)).

A 'majority' of the members of a firm means:

391 (a) where under the firm's constitution matters are decided upon by the exercise of voting rights, members holding a majority of the rights to vote on all, or substantially all, matters (Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 7(4)(a)); and 392 (b) in any other case, members having such rights under the constitution of the firm as enable them to direct its overall policy or alter its constitution (Sch 10 para 7(4)(b)).

A 'majority' of the members of the management body of a firm means:

393 (i) where matters are decided at meetings of the management body by the exercise of voting rights, members holding a majority of the rights to vote on all, or substantially all, matters at such meetings (Sch 10 para 7(5)(a)); and

394 (ii) in any other case, members having such rights under the constitution of the firm as enable them to direct its overall policy or alter its constitution (Sch 10 para 7(5)(b)).

As to the meaning of 'firm' see PARA 969 note 1. As to the members of a supervisory body see PARA 975 note 7. Sch 7 paras 5-11 (rights to be taken into account and attribution of rights: see PARA 27) apply for these purposes: Sch 10 para 7(6).

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body¹ must have adequate rules² and practices designed to ensure that the persons eligible under its rules for appointment as a statutory auditor³ are fit and proper persons to be so appointed⁴. The matters which the body may take into account for this purpose in relation to a person must include:

- 1865 (2) in the case of a body corporate⁷, any matter relating to any director⁸ or controller⁹ of the body, any other body corporate in the same group¹⁰ or any director or controller of any such other body¹¹; and

- 1871 (5) remuneration received or receivable by a statutory auditor in respect of statutory audit work is not influenced or determined by the statutory auditor providing other services to the audited person or on a contingent fee basis⁹;
- 1872 (6) no firm¹⁰ is eligible under its rules for appointment as a statutory auditor unless the firm has arrangements to prevent any person from being able to exert any influence over the way in which a statutory audit¹¹ is conducted in circumstances in which that influence would be likely to affect the independence or integrity of the audit¹²;
- 1873 (7) any rule of law relating to the confidentiality of information received in the course of statutory audit work by persons appointed as statutory auditors is complied with¹³; and
- 1874 (8) a person ceasing to hold office as a statutory auditor makes available to his successor in that office all relevant information which he holds in relation to that office¹⁴.

The body must participate in arrangements for setting standards relating to professional integrity and independence¹⁵, and the rules and practices required in this regard¹⁶ must include provision requiring compliance with any standards for the time being determined under such arrangements¹⁷.

Arrangements for ensuring that the determination of standards is done independently of the body are not to be regarded as appropriate for the purpose of ensuring that a thing is done independently of the body unless they are designed to ensure that the body will have no involvement in the appointment or selection of any of the persons who are to be responsible for doing that thing and will not otherwise be involved in the doing of that thing: Sch 10 para 25(1)(a), (2). This imposes a minimum requirement and does not preclude the possibility that additional criteria may need to be satisfied in order for the arrangements to be regarded as appropriate for the purpose in question: Sch 10 para 25(3). Arrangements may qualify as arrangements within Sch 10 para 21 even though the matters for which they provide are more extensive in any respect than those mentioned therein: Sch 10 para 27. Technical standards.

983. Technical standards.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body¹ must have rules² and practices:

- 1885 (1) as to the technical standards to be applied in statutory audit work³ and the manner in which those standards are to be applied in practice⁴;
- 1886 (2) as to technical standards ensuring that group auditors⁵ review for the purposes of a group audit the audit work conducted by other persons and record that review⁶; and
- 1887 (3) ensuring that group auditors retain copies of any documents necessary for the purposes of the review that they have received from third country auditors⁷ who are not covered⁸ by working arrangements⁹ or agree with those third country auditors proper and unrestricted access to those documents on request¹⁰.

The body must participate in arrangements for the independent determination of applicable standards¹¹, and the rules and practices¹² must include provision requiring compliance with any standards for the time being determined under such arrangements¹³.

1 As to the meaning of 'supervisory body' see PARA 975. As to applications for recognition as a supervisory body see PARA 977 et seq.

2 As to the rules of a supervisory body see PARA 975.

3 As to the meaning of 'statutory audit work' see PARA 975 note 6.

4 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 10(1).

5 For these purposes 'group auditor' means a person appointed as statutory auditor to conduct an audit of group accounts; and 'group' has the same meaning as in the Companies Act 2006 Pt 15 (ss 380-474) (see s 474; and PARA 205); Sch 10 para 10A(7) (Sch 10 para 10A added, Sch 10 para 22 amended, by SI 2007/3494).

6 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 10A(1) (as added: see note 5).

7 'Third country auditor' means a person, other than a person eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor, who is eligible to conduct audits of the accounts of bodies corporate incorporated or formed under the law of a third country in accordance with the law of that country; and 'third country' means a country or territory that is not an EEA State or part of an EEA State: Companies Act 2006 s 1261(1) (amended by SI 2007/3494). As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' and as to eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor see PARAS 958, 969. As to 'EEA State' see PARA 978 note 3.

8 I.e. under the Companies Act 2006 s 1253E: see PARA 1037.

9 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 10A(3)(a) (as added: see note 5). The body's rules and practices must ensure that group auditors make the documents referred to in Sch 10 para 10A(3) available on request to the body, any other body with which the body has entered into arrangements for the purposes of Sch 10 para 23 or 24 (independent arrangements for monitoring and investigation: see PARA 986), and the Secretary of State: Sch 10 para 10A(4). The body may provide that the rules and practices referred to in Sch 10 para 10A(3), (4) do not apply if, after taking all reasonable steps, a group auditor is unable to obtain the copies of the documents or the access to the documents necessary for the review: Sch 10 para 10A(5). If the body does so provide, its rules and practices must ensure that the group auditor records the steps taken to obtain copies of or access to those documents, the reasons why the copies or access could not be obtained and any evidence of those steps or those reasons: Sch 10 para 10A(6). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6; and as to the delegation to the Professional Oversight Board of the Secretary of State's functions relating to the regulation of statutory auditors see PARA 960 et seq.

10 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 10A(3)(b) (as added: see note 9).

11 le appropriate arrangements for the determining of standards for the purposes of the rules and practices mentioned in Sch 10 para 10(1) and Sch 10 para 10A(1) and for ensuring that the determination of those standards is done independently of the body: Sch 10 para 22 (as amended: see note 5). Arrangements for ensuring that the determination of standards is done independently of the body are not to be regarded as appropriate for the purpose of ensuring that a thing is done independently of the body unless they are designed to ensure that the body will have no involvement in the appointment or selection of any of the persons who are to be responsible for doing that thing and will not otherwise be involved in the doing of that thing: Sch 10 para 25(1)(b), (2). This imposes a minimum requirement and does not preclude the possibility that additional criteria may need to be satisfied in order for the arrangements to be regarded as appropriate for the purpose in question: Sch 10 para 25(3). Arrangements may qualify as arrangements within Sch 10 para 22 even though the matters for which they provide are more extensive in any respect than those mentioned therein: Sch 10 para 27. The body must pay any of the costs of maintaining any arrangements within Sch 10 para 22 which the arrangements provide are to be paid by it: Sch 10 para 26.

12 le the rules and practices mentioned in the Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 10(1) (see the text and notes 1-8) and Sch 10 para 10A(1) (see the text and notes 5-6).

Monitoring and enforcement.

985. Monitoring and enforcement.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body¹ must:

- 1888 (1) have adequate resources and arrangements for the effective monitoring and enforcement of compliance with its rules²;
- 1889 (2) ensure that such resources may not be influenced improperly by the persons monitored³; and
- 1890 (3) ensure that such arrangements operate independently of the persons monitored⁴.

The arrangements for monitoring may make provision for that function to be performed on behalf of the body (and without affecting its responsibility) by any other body or person who is able and willing to perform it⁵, and the arrangements for enforcement must include provision for sanctions⁶ and for the body making available to the public information relating to steps it has taken to ensure the effective enforcement of its rules⁷.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(19) AUDITORS AND AUDIT/(vii) Statutory Auditors and Regulatory Matters/C. INDIVIDUALS AND FIRMS AS STATUTORY AUDITOR/(B) Supervisory Bodies/986. Monitoring of audits.

986. Monitoring of audits.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body¹ must:

- 1891 (1) in the case of members of the body² who do not perform any statutory audit functions³ in respect of major audits⁴, have adequate arrangements for enabling the performance by its members of statutory audit functions to be monitored by means of inspections⁵; and
- 1892 (2) in the case of members of the body who perform any statutory audit functions in respect of major audits, participate in arrangements⁶ for the independent monitoring of performance⁷.

The arrangements referred to in head (1) above must include an inspection which is conducted in relation to each person eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor at least once every six years⁸, and the arrangements referred to in head (2) above must include provision for an inspection conducted in relation to each such person at least once every three years⁹. Provision is made for the content of such inspections¹⁰.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body must also have rules¹¹ designed to ensure that members of the body take such steps as may reasonably be required of them to enable their performance of any statutory audit functions to be monitored by means of inspections¹².

1 As to the meaning of 'supervisory body' see PARA 975. As to applications for recognition as a supervisory body see PARA 977 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'member of a supervisory body' see PARA 975.

3 'Statutory audit function' means any function performed as a statutory auditor: Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 paras 13(10), 23(2) (Sch 10 para 13 substituted, Sch 10 para 23(1) amended, Sch 10 para 23(1A)-(1F) added, by SI 2007/3494). As to the meaning of 'statutory auditor' and as to eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor see PARAS 958, 969. As to the meaning of 'statutory audit' see PARA 971 note 2.

4 'Major audit' means a statutory audit conducted in respect of a public interest entity or any other person in whose financial condition there is a major public interest: Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 paras 13(10), 23(2) (Sch 10 para 13(10) as substituted: see note 3).

5 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 13(1)(a) (as substituted: see note 3). In connection with this requirement see further note 9.

6 The appropriate arrangements for enabling the performance by members of the body of statutory audit functions in respect of major audits to be monitored by means of inspections carried out under the arrangements and for ensuring that the carrying out of such monitoring and inspections is done independently of the body: Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 23(1) (as amended: see note 3). Arrangements for ensuring that the carrying out of monitoring and inspections is done independently of the body are not to be regarded as appropriate for the purpose of ensuring that a thing is done independently of the body unless they are designed to ensure that the body will have no involvement in the appointment or selection of any of the persons who are to be responsible for doing that thing and will not otherwise be involved in the doing of that thing: Sch 10 para 25(1)(c), (2). This imposes a minimum requirement and does not preclude the possibility that additional criteria may need to be satisfied in order for the arrangements to be regarded as appropriate for the purpose in question: Sch 10 para 25(3). Arrangements may qualify as arrangements within Sch 10 para 23 even though the matters for which they provide are more extensive in any respect than those mentioned therein: Sch 10 para 27. The body must pay any of the costs of maintaining any arrangements within Sch 10 para 23 which the arrangements provide are to be paid by it: Sch 10 para 26.

7 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 13(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 3). Any monitoring of members of the body under the arrangements within Sch 10 para 23(1) (see note 6) is to be regarded (so far as their performance of statutory audit functions in respect of major audits is concerned) as monitoring of compliance with the body's rules for the purposes of Sch 10 para 12(1), (1A) (see PARA 985): Sch 10 para 13(2) (as so substituted).

8 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 13(3) (as substituted: see note 3). If pursuant to Sch 10 para 23(1D) or (1E) (see note 9) the supervisory body is ensuring that the arrangements referred to in Sch 10 para 13(1)(a) (see the text and notes 1-5) apply in relation to a member in relation to whom an entire inspection is not required, the arrangements referred to in head (1) in the text must include an inspection which is conducted in relation to each eligible person at least once every three years rather than six: Sch 10 para 23(1D), (1E), (1F) (as so added).

9 Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 23(1A) (as added: see note 3). This is subject to the requirement that such arrangements may provide that the body performing the inspections may decide that all or part of the inspection referred to in Sch 10 para 23(1A) is not required in the case of a member of a supervisory body who performs statutory audit functions in respect of ten or fewer major audits per year: Sch 10 para 23(1C) (as so added). If the arrangements make the provision referred to in Sch 10 para 23(1C) and the body performing the inspections decides that all or part of an inspection is not required in relation to a member, the supervisory body must ensure that the arrangements referred to in Sch 10 para 13(1)(a) (see the text and notes 1-5) apply in relation to that member, subject to the modification specified in note 5: Sch 10 para 23(1D), (1E) (as so added).

10 All inspections under the Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 paras 13(3), 23(1A) must be conducted by persons who have an appropriate professional education, have experience of statutory audit work or equivalent work on the audit of accounts under the law of an EEA State, or part of an EEA State, other than the United Kingdom, have received adequate training in the conduct of inspections and do not have any interests likely to conflict with the proper conduct of the inspection: Sch 10 paras 13(4), 23(1B) (as substituted and added: see note 3). The inspection must review one or more statutory audits in which the person to whom the inspection relates has participated (Sch 10 para 13(5)), and must include an assessment of:

- 395 (1) the person's compliance with the body's rules established for the purposes of Sch 10 para 9 (professional integrity and independence: see PARA 980), Sch 10 para 10 (technical standards: see PARA 983), Sch 10 para 10A (technical standards for group audits: see PARA 983) and Sch 10 para 10C (public interest entity independence requirements: see PARA 981) (Sch 10 para 13(6)(a));
- 396 (2) the resources allocated by the person to statutory audit work (Sch 10 para 13(6)(b));
- 397 (3) in the case of an inspection in relation to a firm, its internal quality control system (Sch 10 para 13(6)(c)); and
- 398 (4) the remuneration received by the person in respect of statutory audit work (Sch 10 para 13(6)(d)).

An inspection conducted in relation to a firm may be treated as an inspection of all individuals responsible for statutory audit work on behalf of that firm, if the firm has a common quality assurance policy with which each such individual is required to comply: Sch 10 para 13(7). The main conclusions of the inspection must be recorded in a report which is made available to the person to whom the inspection relates and the body: Sch 10 para 13(8). The body must, at least once in every calendar year, deliver to the Secretary of State a summary of the results of inspections conducted under these provisions: Sch 10 para 13(9). The Secretary of State must, at least once in every calendar year, publish a report containing a summary of the results of inspections that are delivered to him by a recognised supervisory body under Sch 10 para 13(9): s 1251A(b) (added by SI 2007/3494). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6; and as to the delegation to the Professional Oversight Board of the Secretary of State's functions relating to the regulation of statutory auditors see PARA 960 et seq.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body¹ must have effective arrangements² for the investigation of complaints against persons who are eligible under its rules for appointment as a statutory auditor³ and the body in respect of matters arising out of its functions as a supervisory body⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'supervisory body' see PARA 975. As to applications for recognition as a supervisory body see PARA 977 et seq.

Independent investigation of public interest cases.

989. Independent investigation of public interest cases.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body¹ must participate in appropriate arrangements²:

- 1893 (1) for the carrying out of investigations into public interest cases³ arising in connection with the performance of statutory audit functions⁴ by members of the body⁵;
- 1894 (2) for the holding of disciplinary hearings relating to members of the body which appear to be desirable following the conclusion of such investigations⁶;
- 1895 (3) for requiring such hearings to be held in public except where the interests of justice otherwise require⁷;
- 1896 (4) for the persons before whom such hearings have taken place to decide whether (and, if so, what) disciplinary action should be taken against the members to whom the hearings related⁸; and
- 1897 (5) for ensuring that the carrying out of those investigations, the holding of those hearings and the taking of those decisions are done independently of the body⁹.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body must also have rules¹⁰ and practices designed to ensure that, where the designated persons¹¹ have decided that any particular disciplinary action should be taken against a member of the body following the conclusion of an investigation under such arrangements, that decision is to be treated as if it were a decision made by the body in disciplinary proceedings against the member¹².

1 As to the meaning of 'supervisory body' see PARA 975. As to applications for recognition as a supervisory body see PARA 977 et seq.

2 Arrangements may qualify as arrangements within the Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 para 24 (see the text and notes 3-9) even though the matters for which they provide are more extensive in any respect than those mentioned therein: Sch 10 para 27. 990. Transfer of working papers to third country competent authority.

A body which applies for recognition as a supervisory body¹ must have adequate rules² and practices designed to ensure that persons eligible under its rules for appointment as a statutory auditor³ deliver audit working papers⁴ to a third country competent authority⁵ only if the authority has entered into working arrangements with the Secretary of State⁶ and:

- 1898 (1) the competent authority has requested the audit working papers for the purposes of an investigation⁷;
- 1899 (2) the competent authority has given to the Secretary of State notice of its request⁸;

- 1901 (4) no legal proceedings have been brought (whether continuing or not) in relation to the auditor or audit to which the working papers relate¹⁰.

The body must also have adequate rules and practices designed to ensure that a person eligible under its rules for appointment as a statutory auditor may refuse to deliver audit working papers to a third country competent authority if the Secretary of State certifies that the delivery of the papers would adversely affect the sovereignty, security or public order of the United Kingdom¹¹.

The Secretary of State¹ may, on an application duly made² and after being furnished with all such information as he may require³, make or refuse to make a recognition order⁴ in respect of the applicant⁵. The Secretary of State may make a recognition order only if it appears to him, from the information furnished by the body and having regard to any other information in his possession, that the requirements for recognition⁶ are satisfied in the case of that body⁷, and may refuse to make a recognition order in respect of a body⁸ if he considers that its recognition is unnecessary having regard to the existence of one or more other bodies which:

- 1905 (1) maintain and enforce rules⁹ as to the appointment and conduct of statutory auditors¹⁰; and
- 1906 (2) have been or are likely to be recognised¹¹.

Revocation of recognition.

996. Revocation of recognition.

A recognition order¹ may be revoked by a further order made by the Secretary of State² if at any time it appears to him:

- 1907 (1) that any of the recognition requirements³ is not satisfied in the case of the body to which the recognition order relates (the 'recognised body')⁴;
- 1908 (2) that the body has failed to comply with any obligation imposed on it by or by virtue of the statutory provisions⁵ relating to statutory auditors⁶; or
- 1909 (3) that the continued recognition of the body is undesirable having regard to the existence of one or more other bodies which have been or are to be recognised⁷.

Before revoking a recognition order the Secretary of State must:

- 1910 (a) give written notice⁸ of his intention to do so to the recognised body⁹;
- 1911 (b) take such steps as he considers reasonably practicable for bringing the notice to the attention of the members of the body¹⁰; and
- 1912 (c) publish the notice in such manner as he thinks appropriate for bringing it to the attention of any other persons who are in his opinion likely to be affected¹¹.

Persons affected by the revocation¹² may¹³ make written representations to the Secretary of State and, if desired, oral representations to a person appointed for that purpose by the Secretary of State¹⁴, and the Secretary of State must have regard to any representations so made in determining whether to revoke the recognition order¹⁵.

An order revoking a recognition order must state the date on which it takes effect, which must be after the period of three months beginning with the date on which the revocation order is made¹⁶, although the Secretary of State may revoke a recognition order without regard to this restriction if in any case he considers it essential to do so in the public interest¹⁷.

A recognition order may also be revoked at the request or with the consent of the recognised body¹⁸.

On making an order revoking a recognition order in respect of a body the Secretary of State must give written notice of the making of the order to the body, take such steps as he considers reasonably practicable for bringing the making of the order to the attention of the members of the body, and publish a notice of the making of the order in such manner as he thinks appropriate for bringing it to the attention of any other persons who are in his opinion likely to be affected: Sch 10 para 3(11).

3 I.e. the requirements of the Companies Act 2006 Sch 10 Pt 2 (paras 6-20A) (see PARAS 978-994). A qualifying body¹ may apply to the Secretary of State² for an order declaring a qualification offered by it to be a recognised professional qualification for these purposes³ (a 'recognition order')⁴. Any such application must be made in such manner as the Secretary of State may direct⁵ and accompanied by such information as the Secretary of State may reasonably require⁶ for the purpose of determining the application⁷. Every application must be accompanied by a copy of the applicant's rules and a copy of any guidance⁸ issued by the applicant in writing⁹.

The Secretary of State may by regulations prescribe periodical fees to be paid by every recognised qualifying body (s 1251(2)(b)). The powers of the Secretary of State in relation to the making of recognition orders have been transferred to the Professional Oversight Board (see note 2; and PARA 960) which accordingly has the function of determining whether to prescribe any fee to replace the fees prescribed in the revoked regulations. Such fees will not be prescribed by statutory instrument. Fees received by the Secretary of State by virtue of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 are to be paid into the Consolidated Fund: s 1251(3).

A recognition order¹ may be revoked by a further order made by the Secretary of State² if at any time it appears to him:

1926 (1) that any of the recognition requirements³ is not satisfied in relation to the qualification to which the recognition order relates⁴; or 1927 (2) that the qualifying body has failed to comply with any obligation imposed on it by or by virtue of the statutory provisions⁵ relating to statutory auditors⁶.

1928 (a) give written notice⁷ of his intention to do so to the qualifying body⁸;

1929 (b) take such steps as he considers reasonably practicable for bringing the notice to the attention of persons holding the qualification or in the course of studying for it⁹; and

Persons affected by the revocation¹¹ may¹² make written representations to the Secretary of State and, if desired, oral representations to a person appointed for that purpose by the Secretary of State¹³, and the Secretary of State must have regard to any representations so made in determining whether to revoke the recognition order¹⁴.

An order revoking a recognition order must state the date on which it takes effect, which must be after the period of three months beginning with the date on which the revocation order is made¹⁵, although the Secretary of State may revoke a recognition order without regard to this restriction if in any case he considers it essential to do so in the public interest¹⁶.

The Secretary of State¹ has appointed the Professional Oversight Board to supervise the performance by each Auditor General² of his functions as a statutory auditor³ (the 'supervision function')⁴. The Board must discharge that duty by establishing supervision arrangements⁵ itself or entering into supervision arrangements with one or more bodies⁶. For this purpose 'supervision arrangements' are arrangements⁷ in accordance with which the Board or the body:

- 1958 (1) determines standards relating to professional integrity and independence which must be applied by an Auditor General in statutory audit work⁸;
- 1959 (2) determines technical standards which must be applied by an Auditor General in statutory audit work and the manner in which those standards are to be applied in practice⁹;
- 1960 (3) monitors the performance of statutory audits¹⁰ carried out by an Auditor General¹¹;
- 1961 (4) investigates any matter arising from the performance by an Auditor General of a statutory audit¹²;
- 1962 (5) holds disciplinary hearings in respect of an Auditor General which appear to be desirable following the conclusion of such investigations¹³; and
- 1963 (6) decides whether (and, if so, what) disciplinary action should be taken against an Auditor General to whom such a hearing related¹⁴.

4 Independent Supervisor Appointment Order 2007, SI 2007/3534, art 3. The Board must, at least once in each calendar year, prepare and publish in such manner as it sees fit financial statements of its expenditure which must be audited by a person other than an Auditor General who is eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor: Independent Supervisor Appointment Order 2007, SI 2007/3534, art 5. The Board must have satisfactory arrangements for recording decisions made in the exercise of the supervision function and for the safekeeping of those records which ought to be preserved: art 7.

The Professional Oversight Board is the 'Independent Supervisor' required to be appointed by the Secretary of State under the Companies Act 2006 in order to discharge 'the supervision function' mentioned in s 1229(1) (according to which the Independent Supervisor must supervise the performance by each Auditor General of his functions as a statutory auditor): see ss 1228(1), 1229(1). A body may be so appointed only if it is a body corporate or an unincorporated association which appears to the Secretary of State to be willing and able to discharge the supervision function (s 1228(4)(a)) and to have arrangements in place relating to the discharge of that function which are such as to be likely to ensure that the supervision function will be exercised effectively and, where the order is to contain any requirements or other provisions specified under s 1228(6) (see note 3), that that function will be exercised in accordance with any such requirements or provisions (s 1228(4)(b), (5)). As to the meaning of 'body corporate' see PARA 1 note 5.

An appointment under s 1228 must be made by order (s 1228(2)), which has the effect of making the body so appointed designated under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 s 5 (further powers to designate public authorities: see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 583) (Companies Act 2006 s 1228(3)). An order under s 1228 may contain such requirements or other provisions relating to the exercise of the supervision function by the Independent Supervisor as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate: s 1228(6).

5 The requirements of Sch 10 paras 9-10A, 12-15 (requirements for recognition of a supervisory body: see PARAS 980, 983, 985, 986, 987, 988) apply in relation to supervision arrangements as they apply in relation to the rules, practices and arrangements of supervisory bodies: s 1229(3A) (s 1229(2) substituted, ss 1229(2A), (3A), (5A), 1251A added, s 1229(3), (5) amended, by SI 2007/3494).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 1229(2) (as substituted: see note 5). The Board must consult with the Auditors General and such other persons as seem to it to be appropriate before establishing or entering into a supervision arrangement for the purposes of s 1229: Independent Supervisor Appointment Order 2007, SI 2007/3534, art 6(1). Any consultation carried out for this purpose before 6 April 2008 (ie the date on which the Independent Supervisor Appointment Order 2007, SI 2007/3534, came into force, including by the Board, is treated as if it had been carried out under art 6: art 6(2). The Board may enter into supervision arrangements with a body despite any relationship that may exist between the Board and that body: Companies Act 2006 s 1229(4). If the Board enters into supervision arrangements with one or more bodies, it must oversee the effective operation of those supervision arrangements: s 1229(2A) (as so added). The Board must notify each Auditor General in writing of any supervision arrangements that it establishes or enters into under s 1229: s 1229(5) (as so amended).

11 Companies Act 2006 s 1229(3)(c) (s 1229(3) as amended: see note 5). The Independent Supervisor¹ may issue a suspension notice suspending an Auditor General's² eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor³ in relation to all persons, or any specified⁴ person or persons, indefinitely or until a date specified in the notice⁵. The Independent Supervisor may also issue a notice amending or revoking a suspension notice previously issued to an Auditor General⁶.

In determining whether it is appropriate to issue a suspension notice, the Independent Supervisor must have regard to the Auditor General's performance of the obligations imposed on him⁷, and to the Auditor General's performance of his functions as a statutory auditor⁸.

Before issuing a suspension notice, the Independent Supervisor must give written notice of its intention to do so to the Auditor General⁹ and publish that notice in such manner as it thinks appropriate for bringing it to the attention of any other persons who are likely to be affected¹⁰. The notice of intention must: (1) state the reasons for which the Independent Supervisor proposes to act; and (2) state that the Auditor General and any other person who appears to the Independent Supervisor to be affected may, within the period of three months beginning with the date of service or publication of the notice of intention or such longer period as the Independent Supervisor may allow, make written representations to the Independent Supervisor and, if desired, oral representations to a person appointed for that purpose by the Independent Supervisor¹¹. The Independent Supervisor must have regard to any representations made in determining whether to issue a suspension notice and the terms of any such notice¹².

If in any case the Independent Supervisor considers it appropriate to do so in the public interest it may issue a suspension notice¹³, even if no notice of intention has been given or published¹⁴, or the period of time for making representations in pursuance of such a notice has not expired¹⁵.

On issuing a suspension notice, the Independent Supervisor must give a copy of the notice to the Auditor General, and must publish the notice in such manner as it thinks appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected¹⁶.

An Auditor General must not act as a statutory auditor at any time when a suspension notice issued to him in respect of the audited person¹⁷ has effect¹⁸. If at any time during an Auditor General's term of office as a statutory auditor a suspension notice issued to him in respect of the audited person takes effect, he must immediately resign his office (with immediate effect), and give notice in writing to the audited person that he has resigned by reason of his becoming ineligible for appointment¹⁹.

A registered third country auditor must take such steps as may be reasonably required of it to enable its performance of audits of accounts of UK-traded non-EEA companies to be monitored by means of inspections carried out under the arrangements for independent monitoring of audits, and must comply with any decision as to disciplinary action to be taken against it⁵.

The Secretary of State may direct in writing that the provisions set out above are not to apply, in whole or in part, in relation to a particular registered third country auditor or class of registered third country auditors⁶.

1 'Registered third country auditor' means a third country auditor who is entered in the register kept in accordance with regulations under the Companies Act 2006 s 1239(1) (see PARA 1031): s 1241(1). As to the meaning of 'third country auditor' see PARA 983 note 7.

2 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264) (see PARAS 957 et seq, 1027 et seq), 'UK-traded non-EEA company' means a body corporate: (1) which is incorporated or formed under the law of a third country; (2) whose transferable securities are admitted to trading on a regulated market situated or operating in the United Kingdom; and (3) which has not been excluded, or is not of a description of bodies corporate which has been excluded, from this definition by an order made by the Secretary of State: s 1241(2) (amended by SI 2007/3494). For these purposes, 'regulated market' means a multilateral system operated and/or managed by a market operator, which brings together or facilitates the bringing together of multiple third-party buying and selling interests in financial instruments, in the system and in accordance with its non-discretionary rules, in a way that results in a contract, in respect of the financial instruments admitted to trading under its rules and/or systems, and which is authorised and functions regularly and in accordance with the provisions of European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2004/39 (OJ L145, 30.4.2004, p 1) Title III (arts 36-47) (see further FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 88 et seq): art 4.1(14); definition applied by the Companies Act 2006 s 1241(3). 'Transferable securities' means those classes of securities which are negotiable on the capital market, with the exception of instruments of payment, such as: (a) shares in companies and other securities equivalent to shares in companies, partnerships or other entities, and depositary receipts in respect of shares; (b) bonds or other forms of securitised debt, including depositary receipts in respect of such securities; (c) any other securities giving the right to acquire or sell any such transferable securities or giving rise to a cash settlement determined by reference to transferable securities, currencies, interest rates or yields, commodities or other indices or measures: European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2004/39 (OJ L145, 30.4.2004, p 1) art 4.1(18); definition applied by the Companies Act 2006 s 1241(3). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

An order under s 1241 is subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): ss 1241(4), 1289.

See the Statutory Auditors and Third Country Auditors Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3494 (amended by SI 2008/499; SI 2008/2639; SI 2009/2798).

3 The arrangements referred to are appropriate arrangements: (1) for enabling the performance by the registered third country auditor of functions related to the audit of UK-traded non-EEA companies to be monitored by means of inspections carried out under the arrangements; and (2) for ensuring that the carrying out of such monitoring and inspections is done independently of the registered third country auditor: Companies Act 2006 s 1242(3), Sch 12 para 1 (amended by SI 2007/3494).

For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Sch 12 para 1(1)(b) (see head (2)) or Sch 12 para 2(1)(e) (see note 4 head (5)), arrangements are not to be regarded as appropriate for the purpose of ensuring that a thing is done independently of the registered third country auditor unless they are designed to ensure that the registered third country auditor: (a) will have no involvement in the appointment or selection of any of the persons who are to be responsible for doing that thing; and (b) will not otherwise be involved in the doing of that thing: Sch 12 para 3(1), (2). This provision imposes a minimum requirement and does not preclude the possibility that additional criteria may need to be satisfied in order for the arrangements to be regarded as appropriate for the purpose in question: Sch 12 para 3(3).

4 Companies Act 2006 s 1242(1). The arrangements referred to are appropriate arrangements (see Sch 12 para 2(1) (amended by SI 2007/3494)):

494 (1) for the carrying out of investigations into matters arising in connection with the performance of functions related to the audit of UK-traded non-EEA companies by the registered third country auditor;

495 (2) for the holding of disciplinary hearings relating to the registered third country auditor which appear to be desirable following the conclusion of such investigations;

- 496 (3) for requiring such hearings to be held in public except where the interests of justice otherwise require;
- 497 (4) for the persons before whom such hearings have taken place to decide whether (and, if so, what) disciplinary action should be taken against the registered third country auditor; and
- 498 (5) for ensuring that the carrying out of those investigations, the holding of those hearings and the taking of those decisions are done independently of the registered third country auditor.

'Disciplinary action' includes the imposition of a fine: Companies Act 2006 Sch 12 para 2(2).

The Secretary of State¹ may, by regulations, confer on the person keeping the register² power to remove a third country auditor³ from the register⁴. The regulations must require the person keeping the register, in determining whether to remove a third country auditor from the register, to have regard to the auditor's compliance with obligations imposed⁵ on him⁶. F. THE REGISTER OF AUDITORS 1031. Duty to keep register of persons eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor.

The Secretary of State¹ must make regulations requiring the keeping of a register of the persons eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor².

The regulations must require each person's entry in the register to contain³:

- 1972 (1) his name and address⁴;
- 1973 (2) in the case of an individual eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor, the specified⁵ information relating to any firm on whose behalf he is responsible for statutory audit work⁶;
- 1974 (3) in the case of a firm eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor, the specified information relating to the individuals responsible for statutory audit work on its behalf⁷;

The regulations may require each person's entry to contain other specified information¹³.

The regulations may provide that different parts of the register are to be kept by different persons¹⁴.

The regulations may impose such obligations as the Secretary of State thinks fit on¹⁵:

- 1978 (a) recognised supervisory bodies¹⁶;
- 1979 (b) any body to whom the Secretary of State has delegated¹⁷ his functions¹⁸;

The regulations may include provision requiring that specified entries in the register be open to inspection at times and places specified or determined in accordance with the regulations²³.

They may also include provision enabling a person to require a certified copy of specified entries in the register²⁴ and provision authorising the charging of fees for inspection, or the provision of copies, of such reasonable amount as may be specified or determined in accordance with the regulations²⁵.

The Secretary of State may direct in writing that the requirements imposed by the regulations, or such of those requirements as are specified in the direction, are not to apply, in whole or in part, in relation to a particular registered third country auditor or class of registered third country auditors²⁶.

1034. Requests to foreign competent authorities.

The Secretary of State¹ may request from an EEA competent authority² or a third country competent authority³ such assistance, information or investigation as he may reasonably require in connection with the exercise of his functions in relation to statutory auditors⁴.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. The functions of the Secretary of State under s 1253A have been transferred to the Professional Oversight Board (see PARA 1018), with the reservation that the functions remain exercisable concurrently by the Secretary of State: see the Statutory Auditors (Delegation of Functions etc) Order 2008, SI 2008/496, arts 2, 4(1)(c), (3)(d).

2 As to the meaning of 'EEA competent authority' see PARA 978 note 3.

The Secretary of State¹ must take all necessary steps to ensure that an investigation is carried out, or provide any other assistance or information, if requested² to do so by an EEA competent authority³. Within 28 days following the date on which he receives the request, the Secretary of State must provide the assistance or information required by the EEA competent authority, or notify the EEA competent authority which made the request of the reasons why he has not done so⁴.

However, the Secretary of State need not take steps to comply with a request by an EEA competent authority if: (1) he considers that complying with the request may prejudice the sovereignty, security or public order of the United Kingdom⁵; (2) legal proceedings have been brought in the United Kingdom (whether continuing or not) in relation to the persons and matters to which the request relates; or (3) disciplinary action has been taken by a recognised supervisory body⁶ in relation to the persons and matters to which the request relates⁷.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. The functions of the Secretary of State under s 1253B have been transferred to the Professional Oversight Board (see PARA 1018), with the reservation that the function of refusing to comply with a request under s 1253B(1) (requests from EEA competent authorities) on the grounds referred to in s 1253B(3)(a) (prejudice to sovereignty, security or public order) remain exercisable concurrently by the Secretary of State: see the Statutory Auditors (Delegation of Functions etc) Order 2008, SI 2008/496, arts 2, 4(1), (4).

The Secretary of State¹ must notify the relevant EEA competent authority² if he receives notice³ from a recognised supervisory body⁴ of the withdrawal of a person's eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor⁵. The notification must include the name of the person concerned and the reasons for the withdrawal of his eligibility for appointment as statutory auditor⁶.

The Secretary of State must notify the relevant EEA competent authority⁷ if he has reasonable grounds for suspecting that a person has contravened the law of the United Kingdom⁸, or any other EEA state or part of an EEA state, implementing the Audit Directive⁹, and the act or omission constituting that contravention took place on the territory of an EEA state other than the United Kingdom¹⁰. The notification must include the name of the person concerned and the grounds for the Secretary of State's suspicion¹¹.

1037. Arrangements for transfer of audit working papers to third countries.

Audit working papers¹ must not be transferred to a third country competent authority² by any person other than a statutory auditor³ acting in accordance with rules imposed⁴ in relation to the transfer of papers to third countries⁵.

The Secretary of State⁶ may enter into arrangements with a third country competent authority relating to the transfer of audit working papers: (1) from the third country competent authority or third country auditors⁷ regulated by that authority to the Secretary of State; and (2) from statutory auditors to the third country competent authority⁸. The arrangements must provide that the Secretary of State has the following rights and duties in relation to papers he requests from the third country competent authority or third country auditors, and the third country competent authority has comparable rights and duties in relation to papers it requests from statutory auditors⁹. The rights and duties are as follows:

- 1988 (a) any request by the Secretary of State for audit working papers from the third country competent authority or a third country auditor must be accompanied by a statement explaining the reasons for the request¹⁰;
- 1989 (b) the Secretary of State may use the audit working papers he receives in response to a request only in connection with quality assurance functions¹¹, investigation or disciplinary functions¹², or public oversight functions¹³;

If the Secretary of State enters into working arrangements¹⁵, he must publish on a website without undue delay the name of the third country competent authority with which he has entered into such arrangements, and the country or territory in which it is established¹⁶.

1040. Time limit for prosecution of offences.

An information relating to an offence in relation to statutory auditors¹ which is triable by a magistrates' court in England and Wales² may be so tried if it is laid at any time within the period of 12 months beginning with the date on which evidence sufficient in the opinion of the Director of Public Prosecutions³ or the Secretary of State⁴ to justify the proceedings comes to his knowledge⁵. However, this does not authorise the trial of an information laid more than three years after the commission of the offence⁶.

A certificate of the Director of Public Prosecutions, the Lord Advocate, the Director of Public Prosecutions for Northern Ireland or the Secretary of State as to the date on which such evidence as is referred to above came to his knowledge is conclusive evidence⁷.

Nothing in the above provisions affects the statutory provisions⁸ setting the usual time limits for criminal proceedings⁹.

Proceedings for such an offence alleged to have been committed by an unincorporated association must be brought in the name of the association (and not in that of any of its members), and for the purposes of any such proceedings any rules of court relating to the service of documents apply as in relation to a body corporate⁴.

A fine imposed on an unincorporated association on its conviction of such an offence must be paid out of the funds of the association⁵.

(20) SHARE CAPITAL

(i) In general

1042. Meaning of 'share' and 'capital'.

In the Companies Acts¹, 'share', in relation to a company², means share in the company's share capital³; and references in the Companies Acts to a 'company having a share capital' are to a company that has power under its constitution⁴ to issue shares⁵.

The word 'capital', as used in the Companies Act 2006 and the statutes which it replaces⁶, if unqualified, always means 'share capital' as distinct, for example, from borrowed money, which is sometimes referred to as 'loan capital'⁷. The word 'capital' sometimes means the 'nominal' capital of the company⁸.

The word 'capital' is also used to mean such of the assets of a company, as, for example, its land, works, book debts and stock in trade, as represent the money subscribed or deemed to have been paid on its issued share capital⁹. Profits do not cease to be such (in the sense of their being distributable among the shareholders) by having been used for a length of time in the company's business¹⁰.

The terms 'fixed capital' and 'circulating capital' have also been used, principally with reference to the subject of paying dividends out of capital, in relation to which they are no longer material¹¹.

- 1 As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.
- 2 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24.
- 3 Companies Act 2006 s 540(1). In the Companies Acts, references to shares include stock except where a distinction between share and stock is express or implied (s 540(4)(a)); and references to a number of shares include an amount of stock where the context admits of the reference to shares being read as including stock (s 540(4)(b)). As to the meaning of 'stock' see PARA 1163. A company's shares may no longer be converted into stock: s 540(2). However, stock created before 1 October 2009 (ie the date that Pt 17 (ss 540-657) was fully commenced: see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 1, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2006, SI 2006/3428, art 3(3); the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, art 2(3)(c); the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 5, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/3495, art 3(1)(f), (3)(b); the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 7, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/1886, arts 2(a), 6; and the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, art 3(k)) may be reconverted into shares in accordance with the Companies Act 2006 s 620 (see PARA 1164): s 540(3).

1043. Authorised minimum share capital of public companies.

The initial requirement¹ for a public company² to have allotted³ share capital of a nominal value not less than the authorised minimum⁴ must be met either by reference to allotted share capital denominated in sterling or by reference to allotted share capital denominated in Euros (but not partly in one and partly in the other)⁵.

1044. Nominal value of shares.

The word 'capital' sometimes means the 'nominal' capital of the company¹.

Shares² in a limited company having a share capital³ must each have a fixed nominal value⁴. They may be denominated in any currency (other than shares allotted to meet the authorised minimum share capital requirement for public companies⁵), and different classes of shares⁶ may be denominated in different currencies⁷. An allotment of a share that does not have a fixed nominal value is void⁸.

If a company purports to allot shares in contravention of these requirements⁹, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁰; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹¹.

Under the model articles of association that are prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), no share is to be issued for less than the aggregate of its nominal value and any premium to be paid to the company in consideration for its issue: Sch 1 art 21(1). However, this does not apply to shares taken on the formation of the company by the subscribers to the company's memorandum: Sch 1 art 21(2). The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. However, no equivalent provision is made in the legacy articles.

5. See PARA 1043. The initial requirement specified in the Companies Act 2006 s 761(2) (see PARA 74) for the issue of a trading certificate, or the requirement specified in s 91(1)(a) (see PARA 169) for re-registration as a public company, for a public company to have allotted share capital of a nominal value not less than the authorised minimum must be met either by reference to allotted share capital denominated in sterling or by reference to allotted share capital denominated in Euros (but not partly in one and partly in the other): see ss 542(3), 765(1); and PARA 75. This requirement is subject to any exercise of the power to alter the authorised minimum conferred by s 764 (see PARA 75): see s 763(6); and PARA 75. 1045. Meaning of references to 'issued' and 'allotted' shares and capital.

References in the Companies Acts to 'issued share capital' are to shares¹ of a company² that have been issued³; and references to 'issued' shares, or to 'issued' share capital, include shares taken on the formation of the company by the subscribers to the company's memorandum of association⁴. References in the Companies Acts to 'allotted share capital' are to shares of a company that have been allotted⁵; and references to 'allotted' shares, or to 'allotted' share capital, also include shares taken on the formation of the company by the subscribers to the company's memorandum⁶.

The shares subscribed for when the company is formed⁷ are at once issued capital⁸. Shares registered in any person's name⁹, or in respect of which a share certificate has been issued¹⁰, are part of the issued capital¹¹. A matter of some difficulty is the distinction between when shares are 'allotted'¹² and when shares are 'issued'¹³.

At common law, the term 'issue' in relation to shares means something distinct from allotment and imports that some subsequent act has been done whereby the title of the allottee has been completed¹⁴. The allotment creates an enforceable contract for the issue of the shares¹⁵. The shares are issued when an application to the company has been followed by allotment and notification to the purchaser and completed by entry on the register of members¹⁶.

Even when capital has been issued, the result is not always a contribution to the company's assets. In the absence of special regulations requiring the signatories of the memorandum to pay for their shares, they are not liable to do so until a call has been regularly made upon them¹⁷.

6 See the Companies Act 2006 s 546(2); and PARA 1091. See also note 7.

7 A company limited by shares cannot be registered on formation unless it submits a statement of capital and initial shareholdings: see the Companies Act 2006 s 10; and PARA 113. Amongst other things, this must state, with respect to each subscriber to the memorandum of association, the number, nominal value (of each share) and class of shares to be taken by him on formation; and the amount to be paid up and the amount (if any) to be unpaid on each share (whether on account of the nominal value of the share or by way of premium): see s 10; and PARA 113. 1046. Former requirement for authorised capital.

Formerly, a company was required to state in the memorandum of association¹ the amount of its authorised share capital² divided into shares of a fixed nominal value, this amount operating as a limit on the number of shares which could be issued, subject to the power of the company to increase this figure³. The Companies Act 2006 contains no such requirement, although a company may choose in its articles to limit the power of the directors to allot additional shares⁴. For existing companies⁵, the position is subject to transitional provision⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'memorandum of association' see PARA 104.

2 See PARA 75.

3 The power to increase the number of shares was effected by way of a resolution under the Companies Act 1985 s 121 (repealed) (see now the Companies Act 2006 ss 617, 618; and PARA 1159 et seq) (alteration of share capital). See also note 6.

4 See the Companies Act 2006 s 550 (cited in PARA 1094), s 551 (cited in PARA 1096).

5 Ie for companies formed under the Companies Act 1985 and its predecessors: see PARA 18.

6 Any provision of a company's memorandum as to the amount of a company's authorised share capital that is in force immediately before 1 October 2009, as altered by anything done by virtue of the Companies Act 1985 s 121 (repealed) (see now the Companies Act 2006 ss 617, 618; and PARA 1159 et seq) (alteration of share capital) and in force immediately before that date, is treated on and after 1 October 2009 as a provision of the company's articles setting the maximum amount of shares that may be allotted by the company, and may be amended or revoked by the company by ordinary resolution: see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, art 5, Sch 2 para 42(1), (2). The Companies Act 2006 Pt 3 Ch 3 (ss 29-30) (resolutions and agreements affecting a company's constitution) (see PARA 231) applies to any such resolution: see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, Sch 2 para 42(3). However, the power of a company by special resolution to adopt new articles, with effect from 1 October 2009 or any later date, that make no provision as to the maximum number of shares that may be allotted by the company, is not affected by this provision: Sch 2 para 42(4). An amendment of a company's articles on or after 1 October 2009 authorising the directors to allot shares in excess of the amount allowed by any such provision of a company's memorandum as to the amount of a company's authorised share capital has effect although not expressed as amending or revoking it: Sch 2 para 42(6).

1047. Meaning of 'equity share capital'.

In the Companies Acts¹, 'equity share capital', in relation to a company², means its issued share capital³ excluding any part of that capital that, neither as respects dividends nor as respects capital, carries any right to participate beyond a specified amount in a distribution⁴.

1 As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

1048. Meanings of 'called up', 'paid up' etc share capital.

Companies which invite the public to subscribe for their shares¹ invariably require something on account of their nominal amount² to be paid on application, and some other sum to be paid on allotment³. The sums so paid represent 'partly paid' capital.

Calls may be made for the difference between what has been paid and the nominal amount of shares⁴. When that difference has been paid, the share is 'fully paid', and the aggregate amount of such payments of application moneys, allotment moneys, and calls (if paid) represents 'paid up' capital⁵. Contributions, voluntary or enforced, of any person becoming a member render the shares which he takes partly paid or paid up capital, as the case may be⁶.

In the Companies Acts⁷, 'called up share capital', in relation to a company⁸, means so much of its share capital⁹ as equals the aggregate amount of the calls made on its shares (whether or not those calls have been paid), together with any share capital paid up without being called, and any share capital to be paid on a specified future date under the articles¹⁰, the terms of allotment of the relevant shares or any other arrangements for payment of those shares¹¹.

The Companies Act 2006 limits the liability of the members of any company¹² that is limited by shares¹³ to the amount, if any, unpaid¹⁴ on the shares respectively held by them¹⁵. This means that the liability continues so long as anything remains unpaid on a share, and may only be ended by payment in full¹⁶. When that payment in full is made, the amount paid represents 'paid up' capital¹⁷.

Fully paid bonus shares¹ may be allotted to members in the following ways²:

- 2000 (1) the company may use the share premium account³ to pay up new shares to be allotted to members as fully paid bonus shares⁴;
- 2001 (2) the redenomination reserve⁵ may be applied by the company in paying up shares to be allotted to members as fully paid bonus shares⁶;
- 2002 (3) the company may use the capital redemption reserve⁷ to pay up new shares to be allotted to members as fully paid bonus shares⁸.

The prohibitions against providing financial assistance⁹ for the acquisition of shares in a public company¹⁰ or a private company¹¹ do not prohibit an allotment of bonus shares¹²; nor does the restriction imposed¹³ on a company allotting equity securities¹⁴ not to do so, unless certain conditions are met in relation to existing shareholders, apply in relation to the allotment of bonus shares¹⁵.

An issue of shares as fully or partly paid bonus shares is not regarded as a distribution for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006¹⁶; and nothing in the provisions of that Act relating to the effect of holding treasury shares¹⁷ prevents an allotment of shares as fully paid bonus shares in respect of treasury shares¹⁸.

1054. Duty of directors on serious loss of capital.

Where the net assets of a public company¹ are half or less of its called up share capital², the directors³ of the company must call a general meeting⁴ of the company to consider whether any, and if so what, steps should be taken to deal with the situation⁵. They must do so not later than 28 days from the earliest day on which that fact is known to a director of the company⁶; and the meeting must be convened for a date not later than 56 days from that day⁷.

If there is a failure to convene a meeting as so required⁸, each of the directors of the company who knowingly authorises or permits the failure⁹ or who, after the period during which the meeting should have been convened, knowingly authorises or permits the failure to continue¹⁰, commits an offence¹¹. A person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹².

Nothing in these provisions authorises the consideration, at a meeting so convened¹³, of any matter that could not have been considered at that meeting apart from these provisions¹⁴.

(ii) Nature of Shares

1055. Personal property and transferability of shares.

A share¹ is a right to a specified amount of the share capital² of a company³, carrying with it certain rights and liabilities while the company is a going concern and in its winding up⁴.

The shares or other interest of any member⁵ in a company are personal property (and are not in the nature of real estate)⁶. They are transferable in accordance with the company's articles⁷, but their transfer is subject to the Stock Transfer Act 1963 (which enables securities of certain descriptions to be transferred by a simplified process)⁸ and to regulations made under the Companies Act 2006⁹ (which enable title to securities to be evidenced and transferred without a written instrument)¹⁰.

1 As to the meaning of 'share' in the Companies Acts see PARA 1042; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 As to the meaning of 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

3 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24. A share cannot properly be likened to a sum of money, settled upon and subject to executory limitations to arise in the future; it is the interest of the holder in the company, measured, for the purposes of liability and dividend, by a sum of money: Borland's Trustee v Steel Bros & Co Ltd [1901] 1 Ch 279. See also IRC v Crossman [1937] AC 26 at 40-41, [1936] 1 All ER 762 at 769, HL, per Viscount Hailsham LC, and at 66 and 787 per Lord Russell of Killowen; IRC v Laird Group plc [2003] UKHL 54 at [42], [2003] 4 All ER 669 at [42], [2003] 1 WLR 2476 per Lord Millett. In the Companies Acts, references to shares include stock except where a distinction between share and stock is express or implied, but a company's shares may no longer be converted into stock: see s 540; and PARA 1042.

4 A share is often described as a 'bundle of rights': see Re Banque des Marchands de Moscou (Koupetschesky) [1958] Ch 182 at 220, [1957] 3 All ER 182 at 191 per Roxburgh J. See also Government of Mauritius v Union Flacq Sugar Estates Co Ltd [1992] 1 WLR 903, PC (the property owned by a shareholder is his share and his right to vote in general meetings of the company is not property in its own right or an interest in 1056. Contracts to take shares.

The principles applicable to a contract to take or subscribe¹ for shares² in a company are identical with those which apply to other contracts³; and specific performance of an agreement to take and pay for shares may be obtained⁴.

(iii) Classes of Share and Class Rights

1057. Classes of share.

'Class rights' are particular rights which are annexed to certain shares¹ and may be varied in accordance with certain provisions of the Companies Act 2006². Where all the shares fall into only one class, there are no 'class rights' only 'shareholder rights'³.

Under a company's articles of association⁴, but subject to those articles and without prejudice to the rights attached to any existing share, the company may issue shares with such rights or restrictions as may be determined by ordinary resolution⁵. The company may⁶ issue shares which are to be redeemed, or are liable to be redeemed at the option of the company or the holder, and the directors may⁷ determine the terms, conditions and manner of redemption of any such shares⁸.

1 As to shares generally see PARA 1042. Rights or benefits which, although not attached to any particular shares, are conferred on the person concerned in his capacity as a member or shareholder of the company are for this purpose rights attached to a class of shares: Cumbrian Newspapers Group Ltd v Cumberland and Westmorland Herald Newspaper and Printing Co Ltd [1987] Ch 1, [1986] 2 All ER 816. A right conferred on an individual unrelated to any shareholding cannot be described as a class right: Re Blue Arrow plc [1987] BCLC 585 at 590. A right granted to a holder of particular shares imposed by a shareholders' agreement for the protection of a minority shareholder was a class right and had the same effect as if the right had been set out as class rights in the articles: Harman v BML Group Ltd [1994] 1 WLR 893, [1994] 2 BCLC 674, CA (a shareholders' meeting was not quorate without the presence of the holder of 'B' shares or his proxy). 1058. Meaning of 'shares of one class'.

For the purposes of the Companies Acts¹, shares² are of one class if the rights attached to them are in all respects uniform³. For this purpose, the rights attached to shares are not regarded as different from those attached to other shares by reason only that they do not carry the same rights to dividends in the 12 months immediately following their allotment⁴.

1059. Preference shares.

There is no implied term that equal rights and privileges should be attached to all shares¹; some may be preferential either as to capital² or as to dividend³, or as to both, or may have peculiar privileges in the matter of voting, or in other respects⁴. Under a company's articles of association⁵, but subject to those articles and without prejudice to the rights attached to any existing share, a company is free to issue shares with such rights or restrictions as may be determined by ordinary resolution⁶.

Where the company's constitution⁷ merely gives express power to issue preference shares as part of the original capital, the exercise of that power is governed by the articles⁸.

Where a preferential dividend of a specified amount is attached to shares, the holders of the shares are (unless the articles or the terms of issue contain clear indications to the contrary) limited to the fixed dividend and not entitled to participate in profits to any greater extent⁹.

If preference shares confer a preferential right in respect of dividend, the dividend is prima facie cumulative, that is to say, if the moneys applicable to dividend in one year are not sufficient to pay the preference dividend, the deficiency, including arrears, must be made good out of moneys so applicable in future years, before anything is paid as dividend to the holders of other shares ranking after such preference shares¹⁰. This dividend belongs to the holders of the shares when it is declared, not to the holders of the shares when the arrears accrued due, and no lapse of time will bar the right to payment of arrears in full before payment of any dividends on junior ranking shares¹¹. The dividend may, however, be non-cumulative if the articles or terms of issue upon their true construction so provide¹².

Prima facie, a preference share gives only a right to a preferential dividend and not a right to a preferential payment of the amount of the share out of capital in case of a winding up¹³. A preference as to repayment of capital may, however, be given¹⁴.

Preference shares may be created having a priority over other preference shares, unless there is any provision in the company's constitution to prevent it, either on the original issue of both classes of shares or by an increase of capital¹⁵.

4 These are generally called 'preference' shares, as distinguished from those which are not so privileged, generally called 'ordinary' shares. A company may also have 'deferred' shares, deferred in priority to the ordinary shares. There may be preference, ordinary and deferred shares, or shares of more classes than three, each of which has particular rights and conditions attached to it. Founders' shares were sometimes issued to recompense 'founders' or promoters of the company. They were usually shares of small nominal amount, which, although deferred in priority as to dividends, entitled the holders to the whole or a large percentage of the surplus profits remaining after payment of fixed dividends on the shares having priority to the founders' shares. Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(iii) Classes of Share and Class Rights/1060. Variation of class rights in companies having a share capital.

1060. Variation of class rights in companies having a share capital.

Rights attached to a class of shares¹ in a company having a share capital² may only be varied³:

- 2003 (1) in accordance with provision in the company's articles for the variation of those rights⁴; or
- 2004 (2) where the company's articles contain no such provision, if the holders of shares⁵ of that class consent to the variation⁶.

The consent required for these purposes on the part of the holders of a class of a company's shares is⁷:

- 2005 (a) consent in writing from the holders of at least three-quarters in nominal value of the issued shares⁸ of that class (excluding any shares held as treasury shares)⁹; or
- 2006 (b) a special resolution¹⁰ passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of that class¹¹ sanctioning the variation¹².

Any amendment of a provision contained in a company's articles for the variation of the rights attached to a class of shares, or the insertion of any such provision into the articles, is itself to be treated as a variation of those rights¹³.

Nothing in the provisions as to variation of class rights in companies having a share capital¹⁴ affects the power of the court¹⁵ under the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 which govern applications to cancel a resolution for a public company to be re-registered as private¹⁶, or which govern arrangements and reconstructions¹⁷, or which govern the protection of members of a company against unfair prejudice¹⁸.

The enjoyment of rights of preference shareholders¹⁹ is affected as a matter of business by the issue of additional preference shares with the same voting rights per share as those already existing, since the votes of the existing preference shareholders are diminished in power, but the voting rights as such are not varied²⁰; nor are the rights of preference stockholders affected by the issue of additional ordinary shares, although the position of ordinary shareholders is thereby strengthened as against the preference stockholders²¹. Similarly, there is no variation of the rights of the holders of existing sub-divided shares where the company, in accordance with its articles, sub-divides further shares, all sub-divided shares having the same voting rights, with the result that the holders of the existing sub-divided shares lose their power of enforcing control²².

The repayment of capital on a reduction of capital²³ in accordance with the priorities as to the return of capital on a winding up does not constitute a variation or abrogation of the rights of preference shareholders but their fulfilment²⁴; nor does such prior repayment of capital modify, commute, affect or deal with the rights of preference shareholders so as to require the consent of the class under the articles²⁵. Preference shareholders may protect themselves by a provision in the articles providing that a repayment of capital on a reduction of capital shall be deemed to be a variation of the rights attached to the affected shares²⁶.

The company may validly make a payment to the shareholders whose rights are adversely varied to secure their acquiescence²⁷.

2 The Companies Act 2006 s 630 is concerned with the variation of the rights attached to a class of shares in a company having a share capital: s 630(1). As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24. As to variation of class rights in companies without a share capital see PARA 1062; as to the right to object to variation see PARA 1061; and as to the notice required of a new name or variation of class rights see PARA 1064.

In s 630, and (except where the context otherwise requires) in any provision in a company's articles for the variation of the rights attached to a class of shares, references to the variation of those rights include references to their abrogation: s 630(6). As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to the distinction between variation and abrogation of rights see the guidance in Re House of Fraser plc [1987] BCLC 293 at 301, Ct of Sess, per Lord Justice Clerk Ross. The variation of a right presupposes the existence of the right, the variation of the right, and the subsequent continued existence of the right as varied; abrogation presupposes the termination of rights without satisfaction or fulfilment: Re House of Fraser plc at 301. For these purposes, a distinction must be drawn between the rights of shareholders on the one hand and the results of exercising them or the enjoyment of the rights on the other hand: White v Bristol Aeroplane Co Ltd [1953] Ch 65 at 74, [1953] 1 All ER 40 at 44, CA, per Evershed MR, and at 82 and 49 per Romer LJ.

1061. Rights to object to variation: companies having a share capital.

Where the rights attached to any class of shares¹ in a company having a share capital² are varied³, the holders of not less in the aggregate than 15 per cent of the issued shares⁴ of the class in question (being persons who did not consent to or vote in favour of the resolution for the variation⁵) may apply to the court⁶ to have the variation cancelled⁷.

If such an application is made, the variation has no effect unless and until it is confirmed by the court⁸. Application to the court must be made within 21 days after the date on which the consent was given or the resolution was passed (as the case may be)⁹, and may be made on behalf of the shareholders entitled to make the application by such one or more of their number as they may appoint in writing for the purpose¹⁰.

The court, after hearing the applicant and any other persons who apply to the court to be heard and who appear to the court to be interested in the application, may (if satisfied having regard to all the circumstances of the case that the variation would unfairly prejudice the shareholders of the class represented by the applicant) disallow the variation and must (if not so satisfied) confirm it¹¹. The decision of the court on any such application is final¹².

The company must within 15 days after the making of an order by the court on such an application¹³, objecting to a variation of class rights, forward a copy of the order to the registrar of companies¹⁴. If default is made in complying with this requirement¹⁵, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁶. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁷ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹⁸ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale¹⁹.

1062. Variation of class rights in companies without share capital.

Rights of a class of members of a company¹ not having a share capital² may only be varied³:

2007 (1) in accordance with provision in the company's articles for the variation of those rights⁴; or

2008 (2) where the company's articles contain no such provision, if the members of that class consent to the variation⁵.

The consent required for these purposes on the part of the members of a class is⁶:

- 2009 (a) consent in writing from at least three-quarters of the members of the class⁷; or
- 2010 (b) a special resolution⁸ passed at a separate general meeting of the members of that class⁹ sanctioning the variation¹⁰.

Any amendment of a provision contained in a company's articles for the variation of the rights of a class of members, or the insertion of any such provision into the articles, is itself to be treated as a variation of those rights¹¹.

Nothing in the provisions as to variation of class rights in companies without a share capital¹² affects the power of the court¹³ under the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 which govern applications to cancel a resolution for a public company to be re-registered as private¹⁴, or which govern arrangements and reconstructions¹⁵, or which govern the protection of members of a company against unfair prejudice¹⁶.

(iv) Public Offers of Securities and Admission to Regulated Markets

1066. Prohibition on public offers by private companies.

The Companies Act 2006 prohibits public offers by a private company¹.

A private company limited by shares² or limited by guarantee³ and having a share capital⁴ must not: (1) offer to the public⁵ any securities of the company⁶; or (2) allot or agree to allot any securities of the company with a view to their being offered to the public⁷.

Unless the contrary is proved, an allotment or agreement to allot securities is presumed to be made with a view to their being offered to the public if an offer of the securities (or any of them) to the public is made: (a) within six months after the allotment or agreement to allot; or

(b) before the receipt by the company of the whole of the consideration to be received by it in respect of the securities⁸.

A company does not contravene this provision⁹ if: (i) it acts in good faith in pursuance of arrangements under which it is to re-register as a public company before the securities are allotted; or (ii) as part of the terms of the offer it undertakes to re-register as a public company within a specified period, and that undertaking is complied with¹⁰.

If it appears to the court, on an application¹¹ or in proceedings under Part 30 of the Companies Act 2006¹², that a company is proposing to act in contravention of the above provision¹³, the court must make an order¹⁴.

If it appears to the court, on an application¹⁵ or in proceedings under Part 30, that a company has acted in contravention of the above provision¹⁶, the court must make an order requiring the company to re-register as a public company unless it appears to the court that the company does not meet the requirements for re-registration as a public company; and that it is impractical or undesirable to require it to take steps to do so¹⁷. If it does not make an order for re-registration, the court may make either or both of the following, a remedial order¹⁸ or an order for the compulsory winding up of the company¹⁹.

The Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 also prohibits a person, in the course of business, from communicating an invitation or inducement to engage in investment activity (the 'financial promotion prohibition')²⁰.

2 As to the meaning of 'limited by shares' see PARA 102.

3 As to the meaning of 'limited by guarantee' see PARA 102.

4 As to share capital in general see PARA 1042 et seq.

5 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 20 Ch 1 (ss 755-760), 'offer to the public' includes an offer to any section of the public, however selected: Companies Act 2006 s 756(1), (2). An offer is not regarded as an offer to the public if it can properly be regarded, in all the circumstances, as (1) not being calculated to result, directly or indirectly, in securities of the company becoming available to persons other than those receiving the offer; or (2) otherwise being a private concern of the person receiving it and the person making it: s 756(3). An offer is to be regarded (unless the contrary is proved) as being a private concern of the person receiving it and the person making it if (a) it is made to a person already connected with the company and, where it is made on terms allowing that person to renounce his rights, the rights may only be renounced in favour of another person already connected with the company; or (b) it is an offer to subscribe for securities to be held under an employees' share scheme and, where it is made on terms allowing that person to renounce his rights, the rights may only be renounced in favour of (i) another person entitled to hold securities under the scheme; or (ii) a person already connected with the company: s 756(4). For these purposes 'person already connected with the company' means (A) an existing member or employee of the company; (B) a member of the family of a person who is or was a member or employee of the company; (C) the widow or widower, or surviving civil partner, of a person who was a member or employee of the company; (D) an existing debenture holder of the company; or (E) a trustee (acting in his capacity as such) of a trust of which the principal beneficiary is a person within any of heads (A) to (D) above: s 756(5). For the purposes of head (B) above the members of a person's family are the person's spouse or civil partner and children (including step-children) and their descendants: s 756(6). For the purposes of Pt 20 Ch 1 'securities' means shares or debentures: s 755(5).

6 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 755(1). Nothing in Pt 20 Ch 1 (ss 755-760) affects the validity of any allotment or sale of securities or of any agreement to allot or sell securities: s 760. As to allotments of shares or securities see PARA 1042 et seq. The provisions of the Companies Act 1985 that imposed criminal sanctions with regard to public offers made by private companies (see ss 81(2), 730, Sch 24 (repealed)) have not been reproduced in the Companies Act 2006. However, criminal liability may still arise on other grounds, such as breach of the 'financial promotion prohibition' (see the text and note 20).

The specified period for the purposes of head (ii) in the text must be a period ending not later than six months after the day on which the offer is made (or, in the case of an offer made on different days, first made): s 755(4). As to re-registration as a public company see PARA 168 et seq.

11 Ie under the Companies Act 2006 s 757. Application for an order under s 757 may be made by (1) a member or creditor of the company; or (2) the Secretary of State: s 757(3). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

14 Companies Act 2006 s 757(1). This would be an order under s 757. Such an order is an order restraining the company from contravening s 755: s 757(2).

As to provisions which enable the courts, in proceedings under ss 757, 758 or under Pt 30, to make a determination in certain circumstances about the exchange rates to be applied in working out whether a public company satisfies the authorised minimum requirement, see the Companies (Authorised Minimum) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2425, regs 6, 7.

15 Ie under the Companies Act 2006 s 758. An application under s 758 may be made by (1) a member of the company who (a) was a member at the time the offer was made (or, if the offer was made over a period, at any time during that period); or (b) became a member as a result of the offer; (2) a creditor of the company who was a creditor at the time the offer was made (or, if the offer was made over a period, at any time during that period); or (3) the Secretary of State: s 758(4).

18 A 'remedial order' is an order for the purpose of putting a person affected by anything done in contravention of the Companies Act 2006 s 755 (see the text and notes 2-10) in the position he would have been in if it had not been done: s 759(1).

The following provisions (see below) are without prejudice to the generality of the power to make such an order: s 759(2). Where a private company has (1) allotted securities pursuant to an offer to the public; or (2) allotted or agreed to allot securities with a view to their being offered to the public, a remedial order may require any person knowingly concerned in the contravention of s 755 to offer to purchase any of those securities at such price and on such other terms as the court thinks fit: s 759(3). A remedial order may be made (a) against any person knowingly concerned in the contravention, whether or not an officer of the company; (b) notwithstanding anything in the company's constitution (which includes, for this purpose, the terms on which any securities of the company are allotted or held); (c) whether or not the holder of the securities subject to the order is the person to whom the company allotted or agreed to allot them: s 759(4). Where a remedial order is made against the company itself, the court may provide for the reduction of the company's capital accordingly: s 759(5). As to reduction of capital see PARA 1173 et seq. See note 14.

1067. Offers to the public of transferable securities.

It is unlawful for transferable securities¹ other than (1) certain listed securities²; (2) such other transferable securities as may be specified in prospectus rules³, to be offered to the public in the United Kingdom⁴ unless an approved prospectus⁵ has been made available to the public before the offer is made⁶. A person who contravenes these provisions is guilty of an offence and liable to a penalty⁷. A person does not contravene those provisions in the case of an exempt offer⁸.

The Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 contains a number of important provisions about prospectuses, for the most part derived from the Prospectus Regulations 2005⁹.

The Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 states the criteria by which the Financial Services Authority will approve a prospectus¹⁰. The Authority has power to authorise the omission of information which a prospectus would otherwise have to contain¹¹.

The Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 has a number of provisions dealing with the powers of the Financial Services Authority in the context of prospectuses. These include requirements imposed as a condition of approval¹², the power to suspend or prohibit offers to the public¹³, the power to suspend or prohibit admission to trading on a regulated market¹⁴ and the power publicly to censure the issuer and others¹⁵. Some of these powers¹⁶ may be exercised in certain circumstances at the request of the competent authority of another EEA state¹⁷. There is also a requirement for the establishment and maintenance of a register of investors¹⁸.

Note should also be taken of the financial promotion prohibition in the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000, namely that a person must not, in the course of business, communicate an invitation or inducement to engage in investment activity unless the person making the communication is an authorised person or the content of the communication is approved by an authorised person¹⁹. A person contravening this prohibition is guilty of an offence²⁰.

¹⁰ See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 87A; and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 399. There are time limits during which applications for approval of a prospectus need to be processed and the Authority is permitted to seek further information in relation to such applications (see s 87C; and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 401); and there is a procedure to be followed when the Authority approves, proposes not to approve or decides not to approve a prospectus (see s 87D; and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 401). Provision is made for applications for approval to be transferred between competent authorities within the EEA (see ss 87E, 87F; and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 402); and in certain circumstances a supplementary prospectus must be produced (see s 87G; and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 403). Prospectuses approved by the competent authorities of other EEA states are treated in the same way as those approved by the Financial Services Authority provided there is compliance with certain conditions (and this is part of what is known as 'passporting'): see ss 87H, 87I; and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 404.

1069. Admission to listing.

The Financial Services Authority¹ exercises the functions conferred on the competent authority² by the statutory provisions relating to official listing³. The general functions are, in relation to official listing: (1) its function of making rules; (2) its functions in relation to the giving of general guidance; (3) its function of determining the general policy and principles by reference to which it performs particular functions⁴. In discharging its general functions, the competent authority must have regard to a number of specific matters⁵. The competent authority may make rules ('Part VI rules') for the purposes of Part VI of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000⁶. In the case of infringement of these rules where the United Kingdom is a host member state the competent authority may act to protect investors subject to various specific notice and other requirements⁷.

The competent authority must maintain the official list⁸ and may admit to the official list such securities⁹ and other things as it considers appropriate¹⁰. Part VI rules may make different provision for different cases and there are a number of general provisions relating to such rules including about copies and certificates¹¹.

Admission to the official list may be granted only on an application made to the competent authority in such manner as may be required by listing rules and no application for listing may be entertained by the competent authority unless it is made by, or with the consent of, the issuer of the securities concerned, nor may any application for listing be entertained by the competent authority in respect of securities which are to be issued by a body of a prescribed kind¹². The competent authority may not grant an application for listing unless it is satisfied that the requirements of listing rules and any other requirements imposed by the authority in relation to the application, are complied with¹³. There is scope for the authority to refuse the application including in the interests of investors and for non-compliance with obligations in an official listing in another EEA state¹⁴. There are provisions as to notice in regard to the decisions of the competent authority about the application and in the case of refusal the applicant may refer the matter to the Financial Services and Markets Tribunal¹⁵.

The competent authority may, in accordance with listing rules, discontinue or suspend the listing of any securities in certain circumstances and there are detailed requirements as to notice and procedure and if the authority discontinues or suspends the listing of any securities, on its own initiative, the issuer may refer the matter to the Financial Services and Markets Tribunal¹⁶.

Listing particulars¹⁷ submitted to the competent authority must contain all such information as investors and their professional advisers would reasonably require, and reasonably expect to find there, for the purpose of making an informed assessment of the assets and liabilities, financial position, profits and losses, and prospects of the issuer of the securities, and of the rights attaching to the securities¹⁸. There is a requirement for supplementary listing particulars in the case of significant change or new matters¹⁹. The competent authority may authorise the omission from listing particulars of any information, the inclusion of which would otherwise be required, on the ground that its disclosure would be contrary to the public interest, its disclosure would be seriously detrimental to the issuer or, in the case of securities of a kind specified in listing rules, its disclosure is unnecessary for persons of the kind who may be expected normally to buy or deal in securities of that kind²⁰.

There are a number of offences relevant to admission to listing. A person who: (a) makes a statement, promise or forecast which he knows to be misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular; (b) dishonestly conceals any material facts whether in connection with a statement, promise or forecast made by him or otherwise; or (c) recklessly makes (dishonestly or otherwise) a statement, promise or forecast which is misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular, is guilty of an offence if he makes the statement, promise or forecast or conceals the facts for the purpose of inducing, or is reckless as to whether it may induce, another person (whether or not the person to whom the statement, promise or forecast is made) to enter or offer to enter into, or to refrain from entering or offering to enter into, a relevant agreement, or to exercise, or refrain from exercising, any rights conferred by a relevant investment²¹. In addition any person who does any act or engages in any course of conduct which creates a false or misleading impression as to the market in or the price or value of any relevant investments is guilty of an offence if he does so for the purpose of creating that impression and of thereby inducing another person to acquire, dispose of, subscribe for or underwrite those investments or to refrain from doing so or to exercise, or refrain from exercising, any rights conferred by those investments²². A person who, in purported compliance with any requirement imposed by or under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000, knowingly or recklessly gives the Financial Services Authority information which is false or misleading in a material particular is guilty of an offence²³.

Where an officer of a body corporate²⁴ (or a person purporting to act as such), with intent to deceive members or creditors²⁵ of the body corporate about its affairs, publishes or concurs in publishing a written statement or account which to his knowledge is or may be misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular, he is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum, or to both²⁶.

Where the affairs of the body corporate are managed by its members, these provisions apply to any statement which a member publishes or concurs in publishing in connection with his functions of management as if he were an officer of the body corporate²⁷.

(v) Remedies for False, etc Statements in Public Offer Documents

A. COMPENSATION FOR FALSE AND MISLEADING STATEMENTS

1070. Statutory compensation for false and misleading statements etc in listing particulars, prospectus etc.

Any person responsible for listing particulars¹ is liable to pay compensation to a person who has: (1) acquired securities² to which the particulars apply³; and (2) suffered loss in respect of them as a result of any untrue or misleading statement in the particulars or as a result of the omission from the particulars of any matter required to be included⁴, but subject to a wide range of exceptions⁵.

Any person who fails to comply with the provision relating to supplementary listing particulars⁶ is liable to pay compensation to any person who has: (a) acquired securities of the kind in question⁷; and (b) suffered loss in respect of them as a result of the failure⁸. No person may, by reason of being a promoter of a company or otherwise, incur any liability for failing to disclose information which he would not be required to disclose in listing particulars in respect of a company's securities: (i) if he were responsible for those particulars⁹; or (ii) if he is responsible for them, which he is entitled to omit¹⁰.

The provisions described above do not affect any liability which may otherwise be incurred¹¹.

These provisions apply with modifications in relation to a prospectus and a supplementary prospectus¹².

The issuer¹³ of certain securities that are traded on a regulated market¹⁴ is liable to pay compensation to a person who has: (A) acquired¹⁵ such securities issued by it¹⁶; and (B) suffered loss¹⁷ in respect of them as a result of any untrue or misleading statement in certain publications¹⁸, or the omission from any such publication of any matter required to be included in it¹⁹. The issuer is so liable only if a person discharging managerial responsibilities²⁰ within the issuer in relation to the publication: (aa) knew the statement to be untrue or misleading or was reckless as to whether it was untrue or misleading²¹; or (bb) knew the omission to be dishonest concealment of a material fact²². These provisions²³ do not affect certain powers in regard to restitution²⁴, liability for a civil penalty and liability for a criminal offence²⁵.

The Treasury²⁶ may by regulations make provision about the liability of issuers of securities traded on a regulated market, and other persons, in respect of information published to holders of securities, to the market or to the public generally²⁷.

The effect of the statutory provisions, as with earlier statutory provisions to like effect, appears to be not to alter the tortious nature of the acts in respect of which there is to be a liability, but, speaking generally, to render it easier to establish liability against those responsible for listing particulars or a prospectus²⁸.

Matters are required to be included by s 80 or s 81 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 392, 393); s 90(1)(b). If listing particulars are required to include information about the absence of a particular matter, the omission from the particulars of that information is to be treated as a statement in the listing particulars that there is no such matter: see s 90(3); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 427.

10 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 90(8)(b); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 427. Particulars may be omitted by virtue of s 82: see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 394. See note 9.

11 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 90(6); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 427. Cf s 90A(6) (cited in note 17). In respect of liability so incurred, apart from any compensation or damages that may be available under the statutory provisions, the remedies for misrepresentation open to an allottee of shares are:

- 499 (1) rescission of the contract (see PARA 1071 et seq);
- 500 (2) rectification of the register of members and consequent relief (see PARA 1079 et seq);
- 501 (3) damages in proceedings for deceit (see PARA 1081 et seq) or for negligent misrepresentation or negligent misstatement (see PARA 1087);
- 502 (4) criminal proceedings, eg under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARA 332) or under the Theft Act 1968 s 19 (false statements by company directors, etc) (see PARA 314).

However, these remedies are not open necessarily to a transferee of an allottee's shares (see Hyslop v Morel (1891) 7 TLR 263; Andrews v Mockford [1896] 1 QB 372, CA), or to a person in whose favour an allotment of shares is renounced (see Collins v Associated Greyhound Racecourses Ltd [1930] 1 Ch 1 at 19 per Luxmoore J; affd [1930] 1 Ch 24, CA).

A person is not to be subject to civil liability solely on the basis of a summary (including any translation of it) in a prospectus unless the summary is misleading, inaccurate or inconsistent when read with the rest of the prospectus: see s 90(12); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 427.

13 As to the meaning of 'issuer' for these purposes see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 385.

14 The securities to which the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 90A applies are: (1) securities that are traded on a regulated market situated or operating in the United Kingdom; and (2) securities that (a) are traded on a regulated market situated or operating outside the United Kingdom; and (b) are issued by an issuer for which the United Kingdom is the home member state within the meaning of the Transparency Obligations Directive (ie European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2004/109 (OJ L390, 31.12.2004, p 38) relating to the harmonisation of transparency requirements in relation to information about issuers whose securities are admitted to trading on a regulated market: see PARA 23) art 2.1(i); see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 90A(2); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 427. 16 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 90A(3)(a); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 427.

17 A loss is not regarded as suffered as a result of the statement or omission in the publication unless the person suffering it acquired the relevant securities (1) in reliance on the information in the publication; and (2) at a time when, and in circumstances in which, it was reasonable for him to rely on that information: see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 90A(5); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 427. Except as mentioned in s 90A(8) (see the text and notes 23-25), (a) the issuer is not subject to any other liability than that provided for by s 90A in respect of loss suffered as a result of reliance by any person on an untrue or misleading statement in a publication to which this section applies, or the omission from any such publication of any matter required to be included in it; and (b) a person other than the issuer is not subject to any liability, other than to the issuer, in respect of any such loss: see s 90A(6); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 427. Cf s 90(6) (cited in note 11). B. CLAIM FOR RESCISSION

1071. Grounds for claim for rescission.

If a subscription for shares, not being those which are subscribed for by a signatory to the memorandum of association¹, or debentures, is obtained by a material misrepresentation of fact, the contract is voidable at the election of the person deceived², and the court will in a claim by the subscriber rescind the contract to take the shares or debentures and order restitution of the money paid under the contract with interest³. To obtain rescission the untrue statement need not be fraudulent or made with intent to deceive⁴.

The contract may be rescinded on the ground of misrepresentation by the company's directors or other general agents, or special agents acting within the scope of their authority⁵, but not by unauthorised persons making promises purporting to be made on its behalf⁶. The company will be liable where the offer documents, on the faith of which⁷ subscriptions have to the knowledge of the company been made, were issued by promoters without the authority of and before the incorporation of the company, and even if the contents are not known to the directors⁸. The company will also be liable where, before the contract to take the shares is completed, the company becomes affected with knowledge that it has been induced by misrepresentation, even though made without authority⁹.

In offer documents, no misstatement, or concealment of any material facts or circumstances, is permitted. The public, invited thereby to join in any new adventure, ought to have the same opportunity of judging everything materially bearing on its true character as the promoters themselves possess; and the utmost honesty and candour ought to characterise the statements in the offer documents¹⁰.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(v) Remedies for False, etc Statements in Public Offer Documents/B. CLAIM FOR RESCISSION/1072. Misrepresentation must be of fact.

1072. Misrepresentation must be of fact.

To afford ground for relief, a misrepresentation must be one of fact and not of law¹, although a statement of facts which involves a conclusion of law is a statement of fact². A representation as to the state of a person's mind, for example, as to his belief, although difficult of proof, is a statement of fact³ and language expressed in the form of hope and expectation may be a representation of fact⁴, although statements as to what will occur in the future are not usually statements of fact⁵. Although a statement may be true when made, if it becomes untrue before it is acted on, the claim will be sustainable if the statement was intended to be then acted on⁶. Conversely, if a representation which was false when made becomes, by virtue of supervening facts, true when acted upon, the person acting thereon is not deceived thereby and no claim is maintainable⁷.

If a company does not intend that a report, set out in an offer document, should form the basis of the contract to take shares, it must dissociate itself from it in the clearest terms and make it clear that it does not vouch for the accuracy of the statements made in the report; thus, where a director or an agent makes a report which is published by the company and that report whether fraudulently or innocently contains untrue statements, the mere fact that the company states that it will not act on the report until verified is not a sufficiently clear statement that the company does not vouch for the accuracy of the report⁸.

1 Beattie v Lord Ebury (1874) LR 7 HL 102 (assertion by implication that company directors had power to overdraw the company's bank account was not a misrepresentation of fact which the persons making it were bound to make good, but only a mistaken representation of the law).

1073. Materiality of statements.

Any statement will be construed in the natural and reasonable sense in which other persons are likely to read it¹. The untrue statement must be material², that is to say of some importance³, and the subscriber must be materially influenced by it, although it need not be the only inducement to subscribe⁴.

If a person is induced to subscribe by a material misstatement, it is no defence to a claim for rescission that he had the means of discovering and might with reasonable diligence have discovered that the statement was untrue⁵.

The omission of facts is not a ground for rescission unless it is of such a nature as to make what is actually stated misleading⁶.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(v) Remedies for False, etc Statements in Public Offer Documents/B. CLAIM FOR RESCISSION/1074. Loss of right to rescind.

1074. Loss of right to rescind.

The right of a shareholder to rescission is lost by his doing anything inconsistent with the right to repudiate after notice¹ of the misrepresentation, such as attempting to sell the shares², receiving dividends on them³, or making further payments in respect of them⁴. Any such acts done before the notice of the misrepresentation will not affect his right to rescind⁵, and the right is not affected by his attending a meeting of the company or opposing a winding-up petition as a shareholder after he has taken proceedings for rectification⁶. A person who has been induced to subscribe for shares by misrepresentations, and whose shares have, before he discovered the true facts, been forfeited for non-payment of calls, is not prejudiced by any subsequent delay in repudiating the contract⁷.

The right to rescind is lost if the parties cannot be restored to their original positions⁸. The right to rescind is also lost by the commencement of the winding up of the company⁹, whether the winding up is voluntary or not¹⁰, or by the company becoming insolvent and stopping payment¹¹, unless in either case the shareholder has previously repudiated the shares, and has commenced proceedings for rescission or agreed with the company to be bound by such proceedings brought by some other person¹², or has taken other appropriate steps to have his name removed from the register¹³.

The right is also lost on the failure of the shareholder to repudiate his shares within a reasonable time after he receives notice of the misrepresentation¹⁴. What is a reasonable time is a question of fact but delay in repudiating which is caused by reasonable negotiations with the company is excusable¹⁵. If there are several misrepresentations, the fact that the shareholder is precluded by delay as regards one is not a ground for refusing relief in respect of others subsequently discovered if proceedings as to these are commenced without undue delay¹⁶.

The circumstances already mentioned in which the right to rescind is lost are applicable in the case of a voidable contract, and not where the contract to take shares is not merely voidable but void¹⁷.

As an alternative to granting rescission, the court, if it is of opinion that it would be equitable to do so, having regard to the nature of the misrepresentation and the loss that would be caused by it if the contract were upheld, as well as to the loss that rescission would cause to the company, may declare the contract subsisting and award damages in lieu of rescission¹⁸.

If on the facts it appears that a shareholder has a right, of which he was ignorant, to claim rescission, the cancellation of an allotment to him, though on invalid grounds, will stand¹⁹.

1 In some cases, the notice of the misrepresentation is given in a circular sent out by the company; but such a notice will not destroy the right of rescission unless it is proved to have been received by the shareholder: Re London and Staffordshire Fire Insurance Co (1883) 24 ChD 149. A person who has been induced to take shares by misrepresentation in an offer document relating to the subscription of shares¹ may set up the defence of misrepresentation to proceedings² for calls on shares registered in his name³, if he has commenced proceedings for rectification of the register⁴ or given some undertaking to commence them within a reasonable time after he has discovered the misrepresentation or if the shares have been forfeited⁵. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(v) Remedies for False, etc Statements in Public Offer Documents/D. CLAIM FOR DECEIT/1081. Who may be sued in claim for deceit.

D. CLAIM FOR DECEIT

1081. Who may be sued in claim for deceit.

Although a company is liable to a claim for deceit in respect of an act of its agent which is within the scope of his authority¹, claims for deceit in respect of misrepresentations in an offer document are generally brought against one or more of the directors or other persons responsible for such document; for the liability of the director remains. The right to rescission as against the company² may, however, be barred by the fact that the company has gone into liquidation or otherwise³.

Formerly a shareholder could not both retain his shares and bring proceedings against a company for deceit inducing him to buy from the company its shares or, by analogy, to take up shares of the company⁴. A person is, however, no longer debarred from obtaining damages or other compensation from a company by reason only of his holding or having held shares in the company or any right to apply or subscribe for shares or to be included in the company's register of members⁵ in respect of shares⁶.

The shareholder may combine in the same proceedings a claim for damages against directors for deceit in respect of statements in an offer document with a claim against them for the statutory relief⁷ and a claim against the company for rescission⁸; and any number of shareholders may sue directors in one claim for deceit⁹.

1 See PARA 277 et seq. As to claims for deceit generally see MISREPRESENTATION AND FRAUD vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 789 et seq; TORT vol 45(2) (Reissue) PARA 391 et seq.

1082. Grounds for claim of deceit.

Where an offer document contains a false and fraudulent¹ representation² as to a matter of fact, made in order to induce a person to act thereon, and he acts thereon relying on the representation and thereby sustains damage, he may recover damages for it from the directors or other persons who were responsible for the issue of the document³.

The false statement must be as to a matter of fact, not of law⁴, and the fact must be ascertained at the time when the statement is made, in the sense that a statement as to something that is expected to happen in the future is generally considered to be only a matter of opinion⁵.

The statement complained of must be a material representation⁶ and, if it is not obviously material, the onus of showing materiality is on the claimant⁷. The claimant must also prove that the defendant was responsible for the offer document⁸.

1083. Fraud must be proved.

The claimant must further prove that a false representation contained in an offer document was fraudulent in the sense that it was made knowingly, or without belief in its truth, or recklessly, without caring whether it was true or false¹. The fact that a statement was made through carelessness, and without reasonable ground for believing it to be true, may be, but is not necessarily, evidence of fraud. If the false statement is made in the honest belief that it is true, it is not fraudulent, and does not give ground for a claim of deceit². Where a statement is ambiguous and capable of more than one meaning, the onus is on the claimant to show first that he has interpreted the words in the sense in which they were false, and has been deceived by them as so interpreted³, and, secondly, that this was the sense in which the defendant intended the words to be understood⁴. A true statement of fact may, by withholding other facts, be itself absolutely false⁵.

1084. Inducement to subscribe.

A false statement need not be the only inducement to subscribe; it is sufficient to show that it was a material inducement¹. A claimant cannot succeed unless he was directly induced to subscribe by the false statement, even if it was made with the intention that it should be acted on².

The function of the offer document is, as a rule, exhausted when the shares are issued and a person who is only a subsequent purchaser of shares in the market is not so connected with the prospectus as to render those who have issued it liable to indemnify him against the losses which he has suffered in consequence of his purchase³; but if it contains a material false statement, and is intended to be acted on by a person other than the original allottees of the shares, that person, if deceived and injured, may maintain a claim for deceit⁴.

The fact that a director has joined in an authority to brokers to obtain subscriptions does not apparently render him liable in a claim for deceit for misstatements of facts in an offer document issued by the brokers, not known of or authorised by him¹. Nor is he so liable in respect of false representations in an offer document issued by his co-director or by any other agent of the company unless he has expressly authorised or tacitly permitted its issue².

1086. Proceedings and damages.

Mere delay in instituting a claim of deceit does not debar the claimant from relief, as it may in a claim for rescission; but a claim for damages for deceit is barred after six years from the time the claimant acted on the fraudulent misrepresentation or, if the existence of the fraud has been concealed, from the date when the fraud was or might with reasonable diligence have been discovered¹.

The claimant must prove actual damage to himself² and, where he has proved this in relation to shares acquired by him under a fraudulent misrepresentation by the defendant in an appropriate case, the correct measure of damages may be the difference between the contract price and the amount actually raised by the claimant on the resale of the shares³.

On the death of any person, all causes of action subsisting against or vested in him (including a right to claim for deceit but not including causes of action for defamation) survive against (or, as the case may be, for the benefit of) his estate⁴. Discharge from bankruptcy does not, however, release a bankrupt from any bankruptcy debt which he incurred in respect of, or forbearance in respect of which was secured by means of, any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which he was a party⁵.

In Smith New Court Securities Ltd v Scrimgeour Vickers (Asset Management) Ltd, the claimant was induced by fraudulent misrepresentations to purchase shares and was locked into the transaction by those misrepresentations in circumstances which precluded the claimant from disposing of the shares immediately. In those circumstances, the court accepted that the measure of damages should be as stated in the text rather than according to the prima facie rule on deceit which is that the loss caused is measured by the price paid less the real value of the subject matter of the sale as at the date of the transaction or acquisition by the claimant. Smith New Court Securities Ltd v Scrimgeour Vickers (Asset Management) Ltd was applied in Parabola Investments Ltd v Browallia Cal Ltd [2009] EWHC 901 (Comm), [2009] All ER (D) 75 (May) (claimant company was entitled to recover all losses that flowed directly from the defendants' fraudulent misrepresentations (ie as to daily profitability and account balances in relation to stockbroking activities conducted on the claimant's behalf) which consisted not only of the depletion of its trading fund and loss of profits it would otherwise have made on that fund in the period of the fraud, but also the loss of profits it had suffered up until the trial). As to the measure of damages in deceit see generally Doyle v Olby (Ironmongers) Ltd [1969] 2 QB 158, [1969] 2 All ER 119, CA (the person making a misrepresentation may have to pay additional damages for consequential loss suffered by the person to whom the representation was made on account of his having entered into the contract and make reparation for all the actual damage flowing from the fraudulent inducement); and MISREPRESENTATION AND FRAUD vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 805 et seq.

Damages for negligent misrepresentation or negligent misstatement.

E. NEGLIGENCE MISREPRESENTATION OR NEGLIGENCE MISSTATEMENT

1087. Damages for negligent misrepresentation or negligent misstatement.

As an alternative to a claim for deceit against the company¹, the shareholder may bring proceedings for negligent misrepresentation². The company's liability for damages will be precisely the same as if the misrepresentation had been made fraudulently, save that it will be a defence to show that it had reasonable ground for believing, and did believe up to the time the contract was made, that the facts represented were true³. Such a claim lies only against the other party to the contract⁴ (that is, for present purposes, the company and thus not against the directors responsible).

However, directors may owe a duty of care to persons who subscribe for shares in reliance on a prospectus⁵. Such a duty is not owed, however, to a shareholder or anyone else who relies on the prospectus for the purpose of deciding whether to purchase shares in the company through the stock market because the prospectus is addressed to shareholders for the particular purpose of inviting a subscription for shares and, if it is used for the different purpose of buying shares in the stock market, there is not a sufficiently proximate relationship between the directors and the shareholder for a duty of care to arise on the part of the directors⁶.

1 See PARA 1081 et seq. The statutory compensation available under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 90 offers more generous grounds for relief: see PARA 1070.

2 See the Misrepresentation Act 1967 s 2; and MISREPRESENTATION AND FRAUD vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 801. A claim made by an open-market purchaser of shares in a company (as opposed to an original subscriber or allottee) and based on alleged negligent misrepresentation by the company as to its assets, though necessarily conditional upon membership of the company, was not sufficiently closely related to the corporate nexus to be characteristically a member's claim and therefore such a claim did not amount to a claim 'in his character as a member' within the Insolvency Act 1986 s 74(2)(f) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 719): Soden v British and Commonwealth Holdings plc [1995] 1 BCLC 686; affd [1998] AC 298, [1997] 4 All ER 353, HL.

(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares

A. APPLICATION AND ALLOTMENT

1088. Application and allotment.

In most cases, the contract with the company is constituted by an application being made by the intending shareholder¹ to the company for an allotment² to him of so many shares³, and by an allotment being made, and notified to him. The application is an offer by him to take a certain number of shares; and the allotment by the company is an acceptance of the offer. A binding contract is constituted to take, and issue, the shares when, and not before, the acceptance is notified to the applicant⁴ or his agent for the purpose of receiving the notice⁵. Until then, the contract is not complete, even when the applicant's name is registered⁶.

Only slight evidence is required as to the service of notice⁷, and, even where there is no formal notice, the receipt of notice of allotment may be implied from the conduct of the applicant⁸.

If notice of allotment is sent by post, the acceptance is notified when the notice is posted⁹, even though it never reaches the applicant¹⁰. In some cases, as, for example, on a reconstruction or amalgamation, the offer may, in effect, come from the company, and the application then operates as an acceptance¹¹.

Either the offer or the acceptance may be oral¹². In general, before notification of the acceptance is received¹³, or if sent by post, posted¹⁴, the offer may be withdrawn, and even if in writing, it may be withdrawn orally¹⁵.

If there is unreasonable delay in accepting an application for shares, the applicant may repudiate them within a reasonable time after receiving notice of allotment¹⁶, and before a winding up commences¹⁷.

There is no contract where the offer to take shares in a company is made by a person who believes it to be a totally different company, and that belief is induced by those who represent the company¹⁸.

1089. Conditional offer of allotment.

In the case of a conditional offer to take shares, if the condition is a condition subsequent, there is a binding agreement to take the shares as soon as the company notifies its acceptance of the offer; but, where the condition is a condition precedent, there is no binding agreement to take the shares unless and until the condition is either fulfilled or waived¹. If an acceptance introduces a new term, it will not constitute a contract unless the new term is accepted or acquiesced in².

An allotment may be made conditionally on the happening of some event, such as the allottee indicating his acceptance of the shares and paying certain money; in such a case he does not become a member until the condition is performed, even if his name is registered³.

1090. Allotment and its effect.

Allotment is an appropriation to some person or corporation of a certain number of shares, but not necessarily of any specific shares¹. The legal effect of the appropriation depends on the circumstances, for it may be an offer of shares to the allottee or an acceptance of an application for shares by him²; of itself, an allotment does not necessarily create the status of membership, even when the contract to take the shares is complete³, because an allotment of shares is not a condition precedent to any person becoming a member of the company⁴.

A contract is not constituted by an allotment of shares other than those applied for, as, for example, when the shares allotted are unpaid or partly paid instead of fully paid⁵, or of larger nominal amount⁶, or fewer in number, than those applied for⁷. If, however, the allottee accepts the shares and acts as shareholder, although under a mistake as to his liability, he is bound⁸. Where an allotment has been made on a binding contract to take shares, it cannot be cancelled by the company⁹. Allotments which were invalid as ultra vires¹⁰ have, however, been rescinded, and an allotment may be rescinded which has been made, by mistake, of unpaid instead of fully paid shares¹¹, or to the wrong persons¹², or when an allottee who has been induced to subscribe for shares by misrepresentation repudiates the contract¹³ or where the allotment is made by directors in their own favour and in breach of the statutory pre-emption provisions¹⁴.

The issue and allotment of bonus shares, at least once they have been accepted by the shareholders to whom they have been allotted, involves a relationship between the company and the shareholder which is analogous to contract¹⁵. Accordingly, the common law principle of mistake is applicable to a bonus issue in the same way as to an ordinary contract and the question as to whether the issue and allotment of bonus shares is void for mistake must be decided by reference to the principles governing the effect of a common mistake on a contract¹⁶.

Damages may be recovered against a company failing to allot shares under a binding agreement in addition to the grant of an order for specific performance¹⁷.

1 In an agreement providing for a repayment within a stated period of a company 'going to allotment', it was held that 'going to allotment' takes place as soon as the directors resolve to go to allotment and take the necessary steps to make their resolution effective, whatever the results may be: Ellett v Sternberg (1910) 27 TLR 127.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/A. APPLICATION AND ALLOTMENT/1091. Statutory meanings of 'allotted share capital', 'allotted' and 'allotted for cash'.

1091. Statutory meanings of 'allotted share capital', 'allotted' and 'allotted for cash'.

For the purposes of the Companies Acts¹, shares² in a company³ are to be taken to be 'allotted'⁴ when a person acquires the unconditional right to be included in the company's register of members⁵ in respect of the shares⁶.

For the purposes of the Companies Acts⁷, a share in a company is deemed 'paid up' (as to its nominal value⁸ or any premium on it⁹) in cash¹⁰, or 'allotted for cash', if the consideration received for the allotment or payment up is a cash consideration¹¹. For these purposes, a 'cash consideration' means: (1) cash received by the company¹²; (2) a cheque received by the company in good faith that the directors¹³ have no reason for suspecting will not be paid¹⁴; (3) a release of a liability of the company for a liquidated sum¹⁵; (4) an undertaking to pay cash to the company at a future date¹⁶; or (5) payment by any other means giving rise to a present or future entitlement (of the company or a person acting on the company's behalf) to a payment, or credit equivalent to payment, in cash¹⁷. In relation to the allotment or payment up of shares in a company¹⁸, the payment of cash to a person other than the company, or an undertaking to pay cash to a person other than the company, counts as consideration 'other than cash'¹⁹.

References in the Companies Acts to 'allotted share capital'²⁰ are to shares of a company that have been allotted²¹; and references to 'allotted' shares, or to 'allotted' share capital, include shares taken on the formation of the company by the subscribers to the company's memorandum²².

7 The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 583(2)-(7) (see the text and notes 8-19) have effect for the purposes of the Companies Acts: s 583(1). The Secretary of State may by regulations modify the Companies Act 2006 Pt 17 Ch 5 (ss 580-592) (see also PARA 1111 et seq): s 657(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. Regulations under s 657 are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see ss 657(4), 1290. The regulations may amend or repeal any provision of Pt 17 Ch 5, or make such other provision as appears to the Secretary of State appropriate in place of any provision of Pt 17 Ch 5 (s 657(2)); and may make consequential amendments or repeals in other provisions of the Companies Act 2006, or in other enactments (s 657(3)). As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 17 note 2. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made for these purposes.

8 As to the nominal value of shares see PARA 1044.

9 As to the meaning of 'premium' see PARA 1146.

10 For the purpose of determining whether a share is or is to be allotted for cash, or paid up in cash, 'cash' includes foreign currency: Companies Act 2006 s 583(6). See note 7. As to the meaning of 'cash' generally see PARA 564 note 6.

17 Companies Act 2006 s 583(3)(e). The Secretary of State may by order provide that particular means of payment specified in the order are to be regarded as falling within s 583(3)(e): s 583(4). An order under s 583 is subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): ss 583(7), 1289. See note 7. As to the making of orders under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. In exercise of the powers conferred by s 583(4), the Secretary of State has made the Companies (Shares and Share Capital) Order 2009, SI 2009/388. Accordingly, the creation of an obligation on the part of a settlement bank to make a relevant payment in respect of the allotment of, or in respect of the payment up of, a share to a system-member by means of a relevant system is to be regarded as a means of payment falling within the Companies Act 2006 s 583(3)(e): see the Companies (Shares and Share Capital) Order 2009, SI 2009/388, art 4(1), (2). For these purposes, 'relevant payment' means a payment in accordance with the rules and practices of an operator of a relevant system: art 4(4)(b). As to the meaning of 'operator' see PARA 421 note 1; definition applied by art 4(4)(a). As to the meaning of 'relevant system' see PARA 421 note 1; definition applied by art 4(4)(a). As to the meaning of 'settlement bank' see PARA 428 note 10; definition applied by art 4(4)(a). As to the meaning of 'system-member' see PARA 422 note 9; definition applied by art 4(4)(a).

18 The Companies Act 2006 s 583(5) does not apply, however, for the purposes of Pt 17 Ch 3 (ss 560-577) (allotment of equity securities: existing shareholders' right of pre-emption) (see PARA 1098 et seq): see s 583(5). See note 7.

Amongst other things, this must state, with respect to each subscriber to the memorandum of association, the number, nominal value (of each share) and class of shares to be taken by him on formation; and the amount to be paid up and the amount (if any) to be unpaid on each share (whether on account of the nominal value of the share or by way of premium): see s 10; and PARA 113. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/A. APPLICATION AND ALLOTMENT/1092. Issued shares and share capital.

1092. Issued shares and share capital.

The term 'issue' is used in connection with shares¹. The shares which are to be taken by each subscriber to the memorandum of association² are issued when the company is registered³. As regards other shares, when a person who has agreed to take shares is entered on the register of members⁴ as a shareholder⁵, the shares have been issued to him, although he has not obtained the share certificate⁶. A resolution to allot⁷ shares is not, however, necessarily the issue of them, and the term seems to mean allotment followed by registration or possibly by some other act, distinct from allotment, whereby the title of the allottee becomes complete⁸.

The allotment creates an enforceable contract for the issue of shares⁹. The shares are issued when an application to the company has been followed by allotment and notification to the purchaser and completed by entry on the register of members¹⁰.

B. POWERS OF ALLOTMENT

1093. Restriction on powers of private company to allot shares.

Under the Companies Act 2006, a private company that is limited by shares¹, or is limited by guarantee and having a share capital², is prohibited both from making any offer to the public³ of any securities⁴ of the company, and from allotting (or agreeing to allot) any securities of the company with a view to their being offered to the public⁵.

Any contravention, or proposed contravention, of this prohibition is enforceable by order⁶. However, a company does not contravene this restriction if it acts in good faith in pursuance of arrangements under which it is to re-register as a public company⁷ before the securities are allotted or if, as part of the terms of the offer, it undertakes to re-register as a public company within a specified period⁸, and that undertaking is complied with⁹.

1095. Power of directors to allot shares.

The directors¹ of a company² must not exercise any power of the company either to allot³ shares⁴ in the company⁵, or to grant rights to subscribe for, or to convert any security into, shares in the company⁶, except in accordance with the provisions that govern private companies⁷ with only a single class of shares⁸ or in accordance with the provisions that govern authorisation by the company⁹. However, this restriction¹⁰ does not apply to¹¹: (1) the allotment of shares in pursuance of an employees' share scheme¹²; or (2) the grant of a right to subscribe for, or to convert any security into, shares so allotted¹³; or (3) the allotment of shares pursuant to a right to subscribe for, or to convert any security into, shares in the company¹⁴.

A director who knowingly contravenes, or permits or authorises a contravention of, this restriction¹⁵ commits an offence¹⁶; and a person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine and (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹⁷.

Nothing in these provisions¹⁸ affects the validity of an allotment or other transaction¹⁹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/B. POWERS OF ALLOTMENT/1096. Authorisation granted to directors to allot shares.

1096. Authorisation granted to directors to allot shares.

The directors¹ of a company² may exercise a power of the company either to allot³ shares⁴ in the company⁵, or to grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into shares in the company⁶, if they are authorised to do so by the company's articles⁷ or by resolution of the company⁸. Authorisation may be given for a particular exercise of the power or for its exercise generally, and may be unconditional or subject to conditions⁹.

Authorisation must state the maximum amount of shares that may be allotted under it¹⁰, and must specify the date on which it will expire, which must be not more than five years from (in the case of authorisation contained in the company's articles at the time of its original incorporation) the date of that incorporation¹¹ or (in any other case) the date on which the resolution is passed by virtue of which the authorisation is given¹².

Authorisation may be renewed or further renewed by resolution of the company for a further period not exceeding five years¹³, and may be revoked or varied at any time by resolution of the company¹⁴. A resolution renewing authorisation must state (or restate) the maximum amount of shares that may be allotted under the authorisation (or, as the case may be, the amount remaining to be allotted under it)¹⁵ and must specify the date on which the renewed authorisation will expire¹⁶.

The directors may allot shares, or grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into shares, after authorisation has expired if the shares are allotted, or the rights are granted, in pursuance of an offer or agreement made by the company before the authorisation expired¹⁷, and if the authorisation allowed the company to make an offer or agreement which would or might require shares to be allotted, or rights to be granted, after the authorisation had expired¹⁸.

A resolution of a company so to give, vary, revoke or renew authorisation¹⁹ may be an ordinary resolution²⁰, even though it amends the company's articles²¹.

1097. No allotment where issue by public company not fully subscribed.

No allotment¹ may be made of shares² of a public company³ offered for subscription⁴ unless⁵:

2011 (1) the issue is subscribed for in full⁶; or

2012 (2) the offer is made on terms that the shares subscribed for may be allotted either in any event or in the event of specified conditions being met (and those conditions are met)⁷.

If shares are so prohibited from being allotted⁸ and 40 days have elapsed after the first making of the offer, all money received from applicants for shares must be repaid to them forthwith, without interest⁹. If any of the money is not repaid within 48 days after the first making of the offer, the directors¹⁰ of the company are jointly and severally liable to repay it with interest¹¹ from the expiration of the forty-eighth day¹²; except that a director is not so liable if he proves that the default in repayment was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part¹³.

Any condition requiring or binding an applicant for shares to waive compliance with any of the above requirements is void¹⁴.

An allotment made by a public company to an applicant in contravention of these provisions¹⁵, is voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the date of the allotment and not later¹⁶; and it is so voidable even if the company is in the course of being wound up¹⁷. A director of a public company who knowingly contravenes¹⁸, or permits or authorises the contravention of, any statutory provision governing allotments made by public companies when the offer is not fully subscribed¹⁹ is liable to compensate the company and the allottee respectively for any loss, damages, costs or expenses that the company or allottee may have sustained or incurred by the contravention²⁰. However, proceedings to recover any such loss, damages, costs or expenses may not be brought more than two years after the date of the allotment²¹. An applicant to whom an irregular allotment has been made may within the month so prescribed²², either: (a) commence proceedings claiming relief, namely rescission of the allotment, rectification of the register, return of the moneys paid, and an injunction to restrain the company from parting or dealing with the moneys²³; or (b) give notice of avoidance (which need not specify the ground), but the notice must be followed by prompt legal proceedings²⁴.

C. PRE-EMPTION RIGHTS

1098. Existing shareholders' right of pre-emption.

Subject to certain exceptions, exclusions, disapplications and other savings¹, a company² must not allot³ equity securities⁴ to a person on any terms unless⁵:

2013 (1) it has made an offer to each person who holds ordinary shares in the company to allot to him on the same or more favourable terms a proportion of those securities that is as nearly as practicable equal to the proportion in nominal value⁶ held by him of the ordinary share capital of the company⁷; and 2014 (2) the period during which any such offer may be accepted has expired or the company has received notice of the acceptance or refusal of every offer so made⁸.

Securities that a company has offered to allot to a holder of ordinary shares⁹ may be allotted to him, or anyone in whose favour he has renounced his right to their allotment, without contravening head (2) above¹⁰.

Shares that are held by the company as treasury shares are disregarded for these purposes¹¹, so that the company is not treated as a person who holds ordinary shares¹², and the shares are not treated as forming part of the ordinary share capital of the company¹³.

1100. Exclusion of rights of pre-emption.

All or any of the requirements of the statutory restrictions that are imposed¹ on a company² allotting³ equity securities⁴ not to do so, unless the required offer is made⁵ to existing shareholders, may be excluded by provision contained in the articles of a private company⁶. They may be excluded either generally in relation to the allotment by the company of equity securities⁷, or in relation to allotments of a particular description⁸.

Where, in a case in which the statutory restrictions⁹ would otherwise apply¹⁰:

2018 (1) a company's articles contain provision ('pre-emption provision') prohibiting the company from allotting ordinary shares¹¹ of a particular class¹² unless it has complied with the condition that it makes a relevant offer¹³ to each person who holds ordinary shares of that class¹⁴; and

2019 (2) in accordance with that provision, the company makes an offer to allot shares to such a holder¹⁵, and he or anyone in whose favour he has renounced his right to their allotment accepts the offer¹⁶, the statutory requirement of an offer made to the existing shareholders¹⁷ does not apply to the allotment of those shares and the company may allot them accordingly¹⁸.

If there is a contravention of the pre-emption provision of the company's articles, the company, and every officer¹⁹ of it who knowingly authorised or permitted the contravention, are jointly and severally liable to compensate any person to whom an offer should have been made under the provision for any loss, damage, costs or expenses which the person has sustained or incurred by reason of the contravention²⁰. However, no proceedings to recover any such loss, damage, costs or expenses may be commenced after the expiration of two years either from the delivery to the registrar of companies²¹ of the return of allotment²² or (where equity securities other than shares are granted) from the date of the grant²³.

1101. Disapplication of pre-emption rights: sale of treasury shares.

In relation to an allotment of equity securities¹ that is² a sale of ordinary shares³ in the company⁴ that immediately before the sale are held by the company as treasury shares⁵, the directors⁶ of a company may be given power by the articles⁷, or by a special resolution⁸ of the company, to allot equity securities as if the pre-emptive basis of allotment⁹ either did not apply to the allotment¹⁰, or applied to the allotment with such modifications as the directors may determine¹¹; and, where the directors make such an allotment, the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights¹² have effect accordingly¹³. Notwithstanding that any such power¹⁴ has expired, the directors may allot equity securities in pursuance of an offer or agreement previously made by the company, if the power enabled the company to make an offer or agreement which would or might require equity securities to be allotted after it expired¹⁵.

In relation to such an allotment¹⁶, the company may by special resolution resolve that the pre-emptive basis of allotment¹⁷ either does not apply to a specified allotment of equity securities¹⁸, or that the pre-emptive basis applies to the allotment with such modifications as may be specified in the resolution¹⁹; and, where such a resolution is passed, the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights²⁰ have effect accordingly²¹. Notwithstanding that any such resolution has expired, the directors may allot equity securities in pursuance of an offer or agreement previously made by the company, if the resolution enabled the company to make an offer or agreement that would or might require equity securities to be allotted after it expired²². Such a resolution²³, or a special resolution to renew such a resolution, must not be proposed unless it is recommended by the directors²⁴ and they have made a statement in compliance with the statutory requirements²⁵. Accordingly, before such a resolution is proposed, the directors must make a written statement setting out their reasons for making the recommendation²⁶, the amount to be paid to the company in respect of the equity securities to be allotted²⁷, and the directors' justification of that amount²⁸. The directors' statement must (if the resolution is proposed as a written resolution²⁹) be sent or submitted to every eligible member³⁰ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him³¹ or (if the resolution is proposed at a general meeting³²) it must be circulated to the members entitled to notice of the meeting with that notice³³.

The directors¹ of a private company² that has only one class of shares³ may be given power by the articles⁴, or by a special resolution⁵ of the company, to allot equity securities⁶ of that class as if the pre-emptive basis of allotment⁷ either did not apply to the allotment⁸, or applied to the allotment with such modifications as the directors may determine⁹; and, where the directors make such an allotment, the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights¹⁰ have effect accordingly¹¹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/C. PRE-EMPTION RIGHTS/1103. Disapplication of pre-emption rights where directors are authorised to allot.

1103. Disapplication of pre-emption rights where directors are authorised to allot.

Where the directors¹ of a company² are generally authorised³ to allot⁴ shares⁵ etc, they may be given power by the articles⁶, or by a special resolution⁷ of the company, to allot equity securities⁸ pursuant to that authorisation as if the pre-emptive basis of allotment⁹ either did not apply to the allotment¹⁰, or applied to the allotment with such modifications as the directors may determine¹¹; and, where the directors make such an allotment, the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights¹² have effect accordingly¹³. The power so conferred¹⁴ ceases to have effect when the authorisation to which it relates either is revoked or would (if not renewed) expire¹⁵; but, if the authorisation is renewed, the power may also be renewed, for a period not longer than that for which the authorisation is renewed, by a special resolution of the company¹⁶. Notwithstanding that any such power¹⁷ has expired, the directors may allot equity securities in pursuance of an offer or agreement previously made by the company, if the power enabled the company to make an offer or agreement that would or might require equity securities to be allotted after it expired¹⁸.

Where the directors of a company are authorised¹⁹ to allot shares etc, whether generally or otherwise, the company may by special resolution resolve that the pre-emptive basis of allotment²⁰ either does not apply to a specified allotment of equity securities to be made pursuant to that authorisation²¹, or that the pre-emptive basis applies to the allotment with such modifications as may be specified in the resolution²²; and, where such a resolution is passed, the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights²³ have effect accordingly²⁴. Such a resolution²⁵ ceases to have effect when the authorisation to which it relates either is revoked or would (if not renewed) expire²⁶; but, if the authorisation is renewed, the resolution may also be renewed, for a period not longer than that for which the authorisation is renewed, by a special resolution of the company²⁷. Notwithstanding that any such resolution has expired, the directors may allot equity securities in pursuance of an offer or agreement previously made by the company, if the resolution enabled the company to make an offer or agreement that would or might require equity securities to be allotted after it expired²⁸.

Such a resolution²⁹, or a special resolution to renew such a resolution, must not be proposed unless it is recommended by the directors³⁰ and they have made a statement in compliance with the statutory requirements³¹. Accordingly, before such a resolution is proposed, the directors must make a written statement setting out their reasons for making the recommendation³², the amount to be paid to the company in respect of the equity securities to be allotted³³, and the directors' justification of that amount³⁴. The directors' statement must (if the resolution is proposed as a written resolution³⁵) be sent or submitted to every eligible member³⁶ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him³⁷ or (if the resolution is proposed at a general meeting³⁸) it must be circulated to the members entitled to notice of the meeting with that notice³⁹. A person who knowingly or recklessly authorises or permits the inclusion of any matter that is misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular in such a statement⁴⁰ commits an offence⁴¹. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine (or both)⁴² or (on summary conviction) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months⁴³ or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum⁴⁴ (or both)⁴⁵.

1104. Communication of pre-emption offers to shareholders.

Offers which are subject to requirements imposed by the pre-emptive basis of allotment¹ may be made in hard copy or electronic form².

If the holder has no registered address in an EEA State³ and has not given to the company an address in an EEA State for the service of notices on him⁴, or if he is the holder of a share warrant⁵, the offer may be made by causing it, or a notice specifying where a copy of it can be obtained or inspected, to be published in the Gazette⁶.

The offer must state a period during which it may be accepted and the offer may not be withdrawn before the end of that period⁷. The period must be a period of at least 14 days beginning⁸ (in the case of an offer made in hard copy form) with the date on which the offer is sent or supplied⁹ or beginning (in the case of an offer made in electronic form) with the date on which the offer is sent¹⁰ or beginning (in the case of an offer made by publication in the Gazette) with the date of publication¹¹. The Secretary of State¹² may by regulations made by statutory instrument¹³ reduce the period so specified¹⁴ (but not to less than 14 days)¹⁵, or increase that period¹⁶.

1 The Companies Act 2006 s 562 has effect as to the manner in which offers required by s 561 (see PARA 1098) are to be made to holders of a company's shares: s 562(1). For the purposes of Pt 17 Ch 3 (ss 560-577) (see PARAS 1098 et seq, 1105 et seq), in relation to an offer to allot securities required by s 561, a reference (however expressed) to the holder of shares of any description is to whoever was the holder of shares of that description at the close of business on a date to be specified in the offer: s 574(1). The specified date must fall within the period of 28 days immediately before the date of the offer: s 574(2). As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of 'share' in the Companies Acts see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the meaning of 'allotment' and related expressions see PARA 1091.

The provisions of s 562 apply in relation to offers made in pursuance of the pre-emption provision of the company's articles, but subject to s 567: s 568(3). Accordingly, all or any of the requirements of s 562 may be excluded by provision contained in the articles of a private company: s 567(1). They may be excluded either generally in relation to the allotment by the company of equity securities, or in relation to allotments of a particular description: s 567(2). Any requirement or authorisation contained in the articles of a private company that is inconsistent with s 562 is treated for the purposes of s 567 as a provision excluding s 562: s 567(3). Where there is a contravention of the provision that an allotment of equity securities¹ must be offered to existing shareholders² on a pre-emptive basis³, or of the provisions relating to the communication of such offers⁴, the company, and every officer⁵ of it who knowingly authorised or permitted the contravention, are jointly and severally liable to compensate any person to whom an offer should have been made⁶ for any loss, damage, costs or expenses which the person has sustained or incurred by reason of the contravention⁷. No proceedings to recover any such loss, damage, costs or expenses may, however, be commenced after the expiration of two years either from the delivery to the registrar of companies⁸ of the return of allotments in question⁹ or, where equity securities other than shares¹⁰ are granted, from the date of the grant¹¹.

1106. Saving for pre-emption requirements operative under the Companies Act 1985.

In the case of a public company¹, the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights² do not apply to an allotment of equity securities³ that are subject to a pre-emption requirement in relation to which the relevant saving provision of the Companies Act 1985⁴ applied immediately before the commencement of the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights⁵.

In the case of a private company⁶, a pre-emption requirement to which the relevant saving provision of the Companies Act 1985⁷ applied immediately before the commencement of the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights⁸ has effect, so long as the company remains a private company, as if it were contained in the company's articles⁹.

A pre-emption requirement to which the relevant saving provision of the Companies Act 1985¹⁰ applied immediately before the commencement of this saving provision¹¹ must be treated for the purposes of the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights¹² as if it were contained in the company's articles¹³.

4 Ie the Companies Act 1985 s 96(1) (repealed): see s 576(1). The Companies Act 1985 s 96(1) (repealed) provided that, where a company which was re-registered or registered as a public company was (or, but for the provisions of the Companies Act 1980 and the enactments replacing it, would have been) subject at the time of re-registration or (as the case may be) registration to a pre-1982 pre-emption requirement, the general provisions relating to pre-emption rights under the Companies Act 1985 did not apply to an allotment of the equity securities which were subject to that requirement. As to re-registration as a public company see PARA 168 et seq. Pre-emption provisions were first introduced by the Companies Act 1980 ss 17-19 (repealed) and amended by the Companies Act 1981 s 119, Sch 3 para 40 (repealed).

10 Ie the Companies Act 1985 s 96(4) (repealed): see s 576(3). The Companies Act 1985 s 96(4) (repealed) provided that if, on the relevant date in 1982, a company, other than a public company registered as such on its original incorporation, was subject to a requirement obliging it, when proposing to allot equity securities consisting of relevant shares of any particular class, not to allot those securities unless it had made a pre-emptive offer to its shareholders imposed otherwise than by the memorandum or articles, the requirement was to be treated for the purposes of the relevant provisions as if it were contained in the memorandum or articles.

1107. Saving for other restrictions as to offers.

The statutory provisions relating to pre-emption rights¹ are without prejudice to any enactment² by virtue of which a company³ is prohibited (whether generally or in specified circumstances) from offering or allotting equity securities⁴ to any person⁵. Where a company cannot by virtue of such an enactment offer or allot equity securities to a holder of ordinary shares⁶ of the company, those shares are disregarded for the purposes of the provisions which require a pre-emptive basis of allotment⁷, so that the person is not treated as a person who holds ordinary shares⁸, and the shares are not treated as forming part of the ordinary share capital⁹ of the company¹⁰.

D. RETURN OF ALLOTMENTS AND REGISTRATION

1108. Return of allotments to registrar.

A company¹ must register an allotment² of shares³ as soon as practicable and in any event within two months after the date of the allotment⁴. If a company fails to comply with this requirement⁵, an offence is committed by the company and by every officer of the company who is in default⁶. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁷ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine⁸ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale⁹.

When a company limited by shares¹⁰, or a company limited by guarantee¹¹ and having a share capital¹², makes an allotment of its shares, it must within one month of doing so deliver to the registrar of companies¹³ for registration a return of the allotment¹⁴. The return must contain the prescribed information¹⁵, and must be accompanied by a statement of capital¹⁶. The statement of capital must state with respect to the company's share capital at the date to which the return is made up¹⁷: (1) the total number of shares of the company¹⁸; (2) the aggregate nominal value of those shares¹⁹; (3) for each class of shares²⁰, prescribed particulars of the rights attached to the shares²¹, the total number of shares of that class²², and the aggregate nominal value of shares of that class²³; and (4) the amount paid up and the amount (if any) unpaid on each share (whether on account of the nominal value of the share or by way of premium)²⁴.

Where an unlimited company²⁵ allots shares of a class with rights that are not in all respects uniform with shares previously allotted²⁶, the company must, within one month of making such an allotment, deliver to the registrar for registration a return of the allotment²⁷. The return must contain the prescribed particulars of the rights attached to the shares²⁸.

If a company makes default in complying with the provisions that require a return of the allotment to be made by a company limited by shares or a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital²⁹ or by an unlimited company³⁰, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default³¹. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine³² or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum³³ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine not exceeding one-tenth of the statutory maximum³⁴.

Any transaction in good faith between a company and a shareholder¹, which, if the company were to bring a claim against him for calls², would support a plea of payment, constitutes payment in cash for the purposes of the provisions³ requiring returns of allotments⁴. Thus the cancellation of a debt for compensation due to a director⁵ or, in a proper case, for money lent⁶, or for consideration for property purchased⁷, may constitute payment in cash; but the debt cancelled must have been a genuine debt presently due from the company⁸.

1110. Power of court to extend time to make return of allotment.

In the case of default in delivering to the registrar of companies¹ within one month after an allotment² of shares³ the return for registration that is required by the relevant statutory provisions⁴, any person liable for the default may apply to the court⁵ for relief⁶; and the court, if satisfied that the omission to deliver the document was accidental⁷ or due to inadvertence⁸, or if satisfied that it is just and equitable to grant relief⁹, may make an order extending the time for delivery of the document for such period as the court thinks proper¹⁰. The application is primarily in the interest of the company and its officers, in order to obtain relief from the penalties.

1111. Prohibition on allotment of shares at a discount.

A company's¹ shares² must not be allotted³ at a discount to the nominal value⁴. If shares are allotted in contravention of this provision⁵, the allottee is liable to pay the company an amount equal to the amount of the discount, with interest at the appropriate rate⁶; and, if a company contravenes this provision, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default⁷. A person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum⁸.

As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of orders under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292.

It has been unlawful for a company even with the sanction of the court to allot shares at a discount since 23 June 1980, ie the date on which the Companies Act 1980 s 2 (now repealed) came into force. Previously (ie since 1 November 1929) the allotment of shares at a discount was permissible with the sanction of the court (see the Companies Act 1948 s 57 (repealed)), and the alteration in the law in 1980 contained a saving in respect of any application for such sanction which had been made to the court before 23 June 1980 and had not yet been disposed of (see the Companies Act 1980 s 21(4) (repealed)). Before 1 November 1929, apart from the statutory provision as to paying commissions for underwriting and brokerage (see PARAS 1151, 1152), a company limited by shares could not allot shares at a discount, ie allot shares at their nominal value with a liability to pay only a sum smaller than their nominal value either in money or money's worth: see Ooregum Gold Mining Co of India v Roper [1892] AC 125, HL; Re Eddystone Marine Insurance Co [1893] 3 Ch 9, CA (where shares were issued as fully paid as a free gift or bonus without any payment being received by the company; issue was ultra vires and void); Hirsche v Sims [1894] AC 654, PC; Re Addlestone Linoleum Co (1887) 37 ChD 191, CA; Re Almada and Tiritto Co (1888) 38 ChD 415, CA; Re New Chile Gold Mining Co (1888) 38 ChD 475; Keatinge v Paringa Consolidated Mines Ltd (1902) 18 TLR 266 (overruling Re Plaskynaston Tube Co (1883) 23 ChD 542 and Re Ince Hall Rolling Mills Co (1882) 23 ChD 545n); Chapman v Great Central Freehold Mines Ltd (1905) 22 TLR 90, PC; Famatina Development Corp Ltd v Bury [1910] AC 439, HL (where a company proposed to issue shares as fully paid in satisfaction of a bonus on debentures payable only out of profits but profits had not been earned; ultra vires); Hong Kong and China Gas Co Ltd v Glen [1914] 1 Ch 527 (agreement to allot one-fifth of every increase of capital as consideration for property acquired; ultra vires). COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/E. PAYMENT/(A) Amount and Means of Payment/(a) In general/1113. General rule as to means of payment for shares.

1113. General rule as to means of payment for shares.

Shares¹ allotted² by a company³, and any premium⁴ on them, may be paid up in money or money's worth, including goodwill and know-how⁵. However, this restriction does not prevent a company from allotting bonus shares⁶ to its members⁷ or from paying up, with sums available for the purpose⁸, any amounts for the time being unpaid on any of its shares⁹, whether on account of the nominal value of the shares¹⁰ or by way of premium¹¹.

Additional rules apply to payments involving public companies¹².

A share may be fully paid without any cash¹³ passing from the shareholder¹⁴ to the company (unless the shares are taken by a subscriber to the memorandum of association¹⁵ of a public company¹⁶ in pursuance of an undertaking of his in the memorandum, in which case those shares, and any premium¹⁷ on them, must be paid up in cash¹⁸). The circuitous process of paying up the nominal amount of the share and then taking back the money in satisfaction of the company's indebtedness for goods or other property sold to it is unnecessary. Thus shares may be lawfully issued as 'fully paid' for considerations which the company has agreed to accept as representing in money's worth the nominal value of the shares¹⁹, provided that the statutory conditions as to delivery of the prescribed particulars relating to the shares and a return of the allotment are complied with²⁰. Whilst the transaction is unimpeached, the court will not inquire into the value of the consideration²¹, and it will not rescind a transaction which is not impeached as dishonest merely because the company may have paid an extravagant price for the property²². Thus a specialty debt resulting from a call on shares may be discharged by accord and satisfaction, but the consideration must not be a mere blind or clearly colourable or illusory²³.

Restriction on payment for shares in public company by undertaking to do work etc.

1115. Restriction on payment for shares in public company by undertaking to do work etc.

A public company¹ must not accept at any time, in payment up of its shares² or any premium³ on them, an undertaking given by any person that he or another should do work or perform services for the company or any other person⁴. If a public company accepts such an undertaking in payment up of its shares or any premium on them, the holder of the shares⁵ when they or the premium are treated as paid up (in whole or in part) by the undertaking is liable⁶:

- 2023 (1) to pay the company in respect of those shares an amount equal to their nominal value⁷, together with the whole of any premium or, if the case so requires, such proportion of that amount as is treated as paid up by the undertaking⁸; and
- 2024 (2) to pay interest at the appropriate rate⁹ on the amount payable under head (1) above¹⁰.

If a company contravenes this restriction¹¹, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default¹². An undertaking given by any person, in or in connection with payment for shares in a company, to do work or perform services or to do any other thing, if it is enforceable by the company apart from Pt 17 Ch 5, is so enforceable notwithstanding that there has been a contravention in relation to it of a provision of Pt 17 Ch 5 or Pt 17 Ch 6 (ss 593-609) (see PARA 1120 et seq): s 591(1). This is without prejudice to s 589 (power of court to grant relief etc in respect of liabilities) (see PARA 1119): s 591(2). See also PARA 1120.

Shares in public company to be allotted as at least one-quarter paid up.

1116. Shares in public company to be allotted as at least one-quarter paid up.

A public company¹ must not allot² a share³ except as paid up⁴ at least as to one-quarter of its nominal value⁵ and the whole of any premium on it⁶, unless the share is allotted in pursuance of an employees' share scheme⁷. If a company allots a share in contravention of this restriction: (1) the share is to be treated as if one-quarter of its nominal value, together with the whole of any premium on it, had been received⁸; and (2) the allottee is liable to pay the company the minimum amount which should have been received in respect of the share under head (1) above (less the value of any consideration actually applied in payment up, to any extent, of the share and any premium on it), with interest at the appropriate rate⁹.

If a company contravenes this restriction¹⁰, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default¹¹. A person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹².

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/E. PAYMENT/(A) Amount and Means of Payment/(b) Public Company Restrictions/1117. Restriction on payment for shares in public company by long term undertaking.

1117. Restriction on payment for shares in public company by long term undertaking.

A public company¹ must not allot² shares³ as fully or partly paid up⁴ (as to their nominal value⁵ or any premium⁶ on them) otherwise than in cash⁷ if the consideration for the allotment is or includes an undertaking which is to be, or may be, performed more than five years after the date of the allotment⁸. If a company allots shares in contravention of this restriction, the allottee is liable to pay the company an amount equal to the aggregate of their nominal value and the whole of any premium (or, if the case so requires, so much of that aggregate as is treated as paid up by the undertaking), with interest at the appropriate rate⁹.

Where a contract for the allotment of shares¹⁰ does not contravene the restriction¹¹, any variation of the contract that has the effect that the contract would have contravened the restriction, if the terms of the contract as varied had been its original terms, is void¹².

Where a public company allots shares for a consideration which consists of or includes¹³ an undertaking that is to be performed within five years of the allotment¹⁴, and where the undertaking is not performed within the period allowed by the contract for the allotment of the shares¹⁵, the allottee is liable to pay the company, at the end of the period so allowed, an amount equal to the aggregate of the nominal value of the shares and the whole of any premium (or, if the case so requires, so much of that aggregate as is treated as paid up by the undertaking), with interest at the appropriate rate¹⁶.

If a company contravenes this restriction¹⁷, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁸. A person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹⁹.

(c) Liability for Contravention

1118. Liability of subsequent holders of shares allotted.

If a person becomes a holder of shares¹ in respect of which: (1) there has been a contravention of any of the statutory provisions² which govern payment for shares³; and (2) by virtue of that contravention, another is liable to pay any amount under the provision so contravened⁴, that person is also liable to pay that amount (jointly and severally with any other person so liable)⁵. However, a person who is otherwise liable in this way⁶ is exempted from that liability if either⁷: (a) he is a purchaser for value and, at the time of the purchase, he did not have actual notice of the contravention concerned⁸; or (b) he derived title to the shares (directly or indirectly) from a person who became a holder of them after the contravention and was not so liable⁹.

1 For these purposes, references to a holder, in relation to shares in a company, include any person who has an unconditional right either to be included in the company's register of members in respect of those shares or to have an instrument of transfer of the shares executed in his favour: Companies Act 2006 s 588(3). As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. As to the register of members see PARA 335. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/E. PAYMENT/(A) Amount and Means of Payment/(c) Liability for Contravention/1119. Relief in respect of certain liabilities.

1119. Relief in respect of certain liabilities.

A person who is subject to liability¹ to a company²: (1) in relation to payment in respect of shares³ in the company⁴; or (2) by virtue of an undertaking given to it in, or in connection with, payment for shares in the company⁵, may apply to the court⁶ to be exempted in whole or in part from the liability⁷.

If such liability arises under head (1) above, the court may exempt the applicant from the liability only if and to the extent that it appears to the court just and equitable to do so having regard to⁸:

2025 (a) whether the applicant has paid, or is liable to pay, any amount in respect of any other liability arising in relation to those shares under any of the provisions which govern payment for shares⁹ or the valuation of non-cash assets¹⁰ (where these apply), or in respect of any liability arising by virtue of any undertaking given in or in connection with payment for those shares¹¹;

2026 (b) whether any person other than the applicant has paid or is likely to pay (whether in pursuance of an order of the court or otherwise) any such amount¹²; and

- 2027 (c) whether the applicant or any other person has performed, in whole or in part, or is likely so to perform any such undertaking, or has done or is likely to do any other thing in payment or part payment for the shares¹³.

Where a liability arises under head (2) above, the court may exempt the applicant from the liability only if and to the extent that it appears to the court just and equitable to do so having regard to¹⁴ whether the applicant has paid or is liable to pay any amount in respect of liability arising¹⁵ in relation to the shares¹⁶, and whether any person other than the applicant has paid or is likely to pay, whether in pursuance of an order of the court or otherwise, any such amount¹⁷. In determining whether it should exempt the applicant in whole or in part from any liability, the court must have regard to the following overriding principles¹⁸, namely:

- 2028 (i) a company that has allotted shares should receive money or money's worth at least equal in value to the aggregate of the nominal value of those shares¹⁹ and the whole of any premium²⁰ or, if the case so requires, so much of that aggregate as is treated as paid up²¹; and
- 2029 (ii) subject to that, where a company would, if the court did not grant the exemption, have more than one remedy against a particular person, it should be for the company to decide which remedy it should remain entitled to pursue²².

If a person brings proceedings against another (the 'contributor') for a contribution in respect of liability to a company so arising²³, and it appears to the court that the contributor is liable to make such a contribution, the court may, if and to the extent that it appears to it just and equitable to do so having regard to the respective culpability (in respect of the liability to the company) of the contributor and the person bringing the proceedings²⁴, exempt the contributor in whole or in part from his liability to make such a contribution²⁵, or order the contributor to make a larger contribution than he would otherwise²⁶ be liable to make²⁷.

1 The Companies Act 2006 s 589 applies in relation to liability under s 585(2) (liability of allottee in case of breach by public company of prohibition on accepting undertaking to do work or perform services) (see PARA 1115), s 587(2), (4) (liability of allottee in case of breach by public company of prohibition on payment by long-term undertaking) (see PARA 1117), or s 588 (liability of subsequent holders of shares) (see PARA 1118), as it applies in relation to a contravention of those provisions: s 589(1). (B) INDEPENDENT VALUATION OF NON-CASH CONSIDERATION FOR SHARES IN PUBLIC COMPANY

(a) Non-Cash Consideration for Shares

1120. Non-cash consideration for shares to be valued before allotment.

A public company¹ must not allot² shares³ as fully or partly paid up⁴ (as to their nominal⁵ value or any premium⁶ on them) otherwise than in cash⁷ unless⁸:

- 2030 (1) the consideration for the allotment has been independently valued⁹; and
- 2031 (2) the valuer's report has been made to the company during the six months immediately preceding the allotment of the shares¹⁰; and
- 2032 (3) a copy of the report has been sent to the proposed allottee¹¹.

If a company allots shares in contravention of this restriction¹², and either the allottee has not received the valuer's report required¹³ to be sent to him¹⁴, or there has been some other contravention of the valuation requirements¹⁵ that the allottee knew or ought to have known amounted to a contravention¹⁶, the allottee is liable¹⁷ to pay the company an amount equal to the aggregate of the nominal value of the shares and the whole of any premium (or, if the case so requires, so much of that aggregate as is treated as paid up by the consideration) with interest at the appropriate rate¹⁸.

If a public company allots shares for a non-cash consideration in contravention of the above restriction¹⁹, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²⁰. A person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum²¹.

Exceptions to requirement for non-cash consideration for shares to be valued before allotment.

1121. Exceptions to requirement for non-cash consideration for shares to be valued before allotment.

For the purposes of the provisions which require a public company¹ not to allot² shares³ as fully or partly paid up⁴ otherwise than in cash⁵ without a valuation⁶, the application of an amount standing to the credit of any of a company's reserve accounts, or of its profit and loss account⁷, in paying up (to any extent) shares allotted to members of the company⁸ (or any premiums on shares so allotted) does not count as consideration for the allotment, and accordingly the valuation requirement⁹ does not apply in that case¹⁰.

Nor does the valuation requirement apply to the allotment of shares by a company ('company A')¹¹ in connection with an arrangement¹² providing for the allotment of shares in that company ('company A') on terms that the whole or part of the consideration for the shares allotted is to be provided either by the transfer to that company, or by the cancellation, of all or some of the shares, or of all or some of the shares of a particular class¹³, in another company ('company B')¹⁴. It is immaterial whether the arrangement provides for the issue to the allotting company

('company A') of shares, or shares of any particular class, in that other company ('company B')¹⁵. However, the valuation requirement will nevertheless apply unless under the arrangement it is open to all the holders of the shares in the other company in question ('company B') or, where the arrangement applies only to shares of a particular class, to all the holders of shares of that class, to take part in the arrangement¹⁶. In determining whether that is the case, the following are to be disregarded¹⁷:

- 2033 (1) shares held by or by a nominee of the allotting company ('company A')¹⁸;
- 2034 (2) shares held by or by a nominee of a company which is the holding company¹⁹, or a subsidiary²⁰, of the allotting company ('company A'), or a subsidiary of such a holding company²¹; and
- 2035 (3) shares held as treasury shares²² by the other company in question ('company B')²³.

The restriction on such an allotment of shares without a valuation²⁴ also does not apply to the allotment of shares by a company in connection with a proposed merger with another company²⁵, that is where one of the companies proposes to acquire all the assets and liabilities of the other in exchange for the issue of shares or other securities of that one to shareholders of the other, with or without any cash payment to shareholders²⁶.

Making of valuation and report on non-cash consideration for shares.

1122. Making of valuation and report on non-cash consideration for shares.

The valuation and report required by the provisions which restrict a public company¹ from allotting² shares³ as fully or partly paid up⁴ otherwise than in cash⁵ without a valuation⁶ must be made by a person (the 'valuer') who is eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor⁷, and who meets the independence requirement⁸.

However, where it appears to the valuer to be reasonable for the valuation of the consideration, or part of it, to be made by (or for him to accept a valuation made by) another person who: (1) appears to him to have the requisite knowledge and experience to value the consideration or that part of it⁹; and (2) is not an officer or employee¹⁰ of the company (or of any other body corporate that is that company's subsidiary or holding company¹¹ or a subsidiary of that company's holding company) or a partner of or employed by any such officer or employee¹², he may arrange for or accept such a valuation, together with a report which will enable him to make his own report¹³. Where the consideration or part of it is valued by a person other than the valuer himself, the latter's report must state that fact¹⁴, and must also state the former's name and what knowledge and experience he has to carry out the valuation¹⁵, and describe so much of the consideration as was valued by the other person, and the method used to value it, and specify the date of that valuation¹⁶.

A person carrying out a valuation or making a report with respect to any consideration proposed to be accepted or given by a company, is entitled to require from the officers of the company such information and explanation as he thinks necessary to enable him to carry out the valuation or make the report¹⁷, and to provide any note that is required¹⁸ where such a valuation is carried out by another person¹⁹. A person who knowingly or recklessly makes such a statement²⁰ that is misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular commits an offence²¹; and a person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine (or both)²² and (on summary conviction) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months²³ or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum²⁴ (or both)²⁵.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 1150(1)(a). As to a person's eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor see s 1212 (see PARA 969): s 1150(1)(a).

8 Companies Act 2006 s 1150(1)(b). The text refers to the independence requirement in s 1151: s 1150(1)(b). Accordingly, a person meets the independence requirement for the purposes of s 1150 only if:

528 (1) he is not an officer or employee of the company, or a partner or employee of such a person, or a partnership of which such a person is a partner (s 1151(1)(a));

529 (2) he is not an officer or employee of an associated undertaking of the company, or a partner or employee of such a person, or a partnership of which such a person is a partner (s 1151(1)(b)); and

530 (3) there does not exist between the person or an associate of his, and the company or an associated undertaking of the company, a connection of any such description as may be specified by regulations made by the Secretary of State (s 1151(1)(c)).

An auditor of the company is not regarded as an officer or employee of the company for this purpose: s 1151(2). Regulations under s 1151 are subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the regulations is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): see ss 1151(4), 1289. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made under s 1151. For these purposes, 'associated undertaking' means a parent undertaking or subsidiary undertaking of the company, or a subsidiary undertaking of a parent undertaking of the company; and 'associate' has the meaning given by s 1152: see ss 1151(3), 1152(1). Accordingly, in relation to an individual, 'associate' means that individual's spouse or civil partner or minor child or step-child, any body corporate of which that individual is a director, and any employee or partner of that individual: s 1152(2). In relation to a body corporate, 'associate' means any body corporate of which that body is a director, any body corporate in the same group as that body, and any employee or partner of that body or of any body corporate in the same group: s 1152(3). In relation to a partnership that is a legal person under the law by which it is governed, 'associate' means any body corporate of which that partnership is a director, any employee or partner in that partnership, and any person who is an associate of a partner in that partnership: s 1152(4). In relation to a partnership that is not a legal person under the law by which it is governed, 'associate' means any person who is an associate of any of the partners: s 1152(5). For the purposes of s 1152, in relation to a limited liability partnership, for 'director' read 'member': s 1152(6). 1123. Contents of valuer's report on non-cash consideration for shares.

The valuer's report required by the provisions which restrict a public company¹ from allotting² shares³ as fully or partly paid up⁴ otherwise than in cash⁵ without a valuation⁶ must state⁷:

- 2036 (1) the nominal value of the shares to be wholly or partly paid for by the consideration in question⁸;
- 2037 (2) the amount of any premium payable on the shares⁹;

2038 (3) the description of the consideration and, as respects so much of the consideration as he himself has valued, a description of that part of the consideration, the method used to value it and the date of the valuation¹⁰;

The valuer's report must contain or be accompanied by a note by him¹²:

- 2040 (a) in the case of a valuation made by a person other than himself, that it appeared to himself reasonable to arrange for it to be so made or to accept a valuation so made¹³;
- 2041 (b) whoever made the valuation, that the method of valuation was reasonable in all the circumstances¹⁴;
- 2042 (c) that it appears to the valuer that there has been no material change in the value of the consideration in question since the valuation¹⁵; and
- 2043 (d) that, on the basis of the valuation, the value of the consideration, together with any cash by which the nominal value of the shares or any premium payable on them is to be paid up, is not less than so much of the aggregate of the nominal value and the whole of any such premium as is treated as paid up by the consideration and any such cash¹⁶.

Where the consideration to be valued is accepted partly in payment up of the nominal value of the shares and any premium and partly for some other consideration given by the company, the valuation provisions¹⁷ apply as if references to the consideration accepted by the company included the proportion of that consideration that is properly attributable to the payment up of that value and any premium¹⁸. In such a case, the valuer must carry out, or arrange for, such other valuations as will enable him to determine that proportion¹⁹, and his report must state what valuations have been made for this purpose²⁰ and also the reason for, and method and date of, any such valuation and any other matters which may be relevant to that determination²¹.

1124. Copy of valuer's report on non-cash consideration for shares to be delivered to registrar.

A company¹ to which a report is made² as to the value of any consideration for which, or partly for which, it proposes to allot³ shares⁴ must deliver a copy of the report to the registrar of companies⁵ for registration⁶ at the same time that the company files the return of the allotment of those shares⁷.

If default is made in complying with these requirements⁸, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default⁹; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine¹⁰ or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹¹ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine not exceeding one-tenth of the statutory maximum¹². However, in the case of default in delivering to the registrar any document that is so required¹³, any person liable for the default may apply to the court¹⁴ for relief¹⁵; and the court, if satisfied that the omission to deliver the document was accidental or due to inadvertence¹⁶, or if satisfied that it is just and equitable to grant relief¹⁷, may make an order extending the time for delivery of the document for such period as the court thinks proper¹⁸.

Transfer to public company of non-cash asset in initial period.

(b) Transfer of Non-Cash Asset in Initial Period

1125. Transfer to public company of non-cash asset in initial period.

A public company¹ formed as such must not enter into an agreement²:

2044 (1) with a person who is a subscriber to the company's memorandum³;

2045 (2) for the transfer by him to the company, or another, before the end of the company's initial period⁴ of one or more non-cash assets⁵;

unless the following conditions have been complied with⁷, namely:

- 2047 (a) the consideration to be received by the company⁸, and any consideration other than cash to be given by the company, must have been independently valued⁹;
- 2048 (b) the valuer's report must have been made to the company during the six months immediately preceding the date of the agreement¹⁰;
- 2049 (c) a copy of the report must have been sent to the other party to the proposed agreement¹¹ not later than the date on which copies have to be circulated to members¹²;
- 2050 (d) the terms of the agreement must have been approved by an ordinary resolution¹³ of the company¹⁴;
- 2051 (e) copies of the valuer's report must have been circulated to the members entitled to notice of the meeting at which the resolution is proposed¹⁵, not later than the date on which notice of the meeting is given¹⁶;
- 2052 (f) a copy of the proposed resolution must have been sent to the other party to the proposed agreement¹⁷.

These requirements¹⁸ apply also in relation to a company re-registered as a public company¹⁹ but in that case the reference²⁰ to a person who is a subscriber to the company's memorandum must be read as a reference to a person who is a member of the company on the date of re-registration²¹; and the reference²² to the date of the company being issued with a trading certificate²³ must be read as a reference to the date of re-registration²⁴.

These restrictions²⁵, however, do not apply in the case of the following agreements²⁶, namely:

- 2053 (i) where it is part of the company's ordinary business to acquire, or arrange for other persons to acquire, assets of a particular description²⁷, and the agreement is entered into by the company in the ordinary course of that business²⁸;
- 2054 (ii) an agreement entered into by the company under the supervision of the court²⁹, or of an officer authorised by the court for the purpose³⁰.

If a public company enters into an agreement in contravention of these restrictions³¹, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default³². A person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum³³.

Making of valuation and report on non-cash asset transferred in initial period.

1126. Making of valuation and report on non-cash asset transferred in initial period.

The valuation of a non-cash asset¹ and the report required on it² when such an asset is transferred to a public company³ in its initial period⁴ must be made by a person (the 'valuer') who is eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor⁵ and who meets the independence requirement⁶.

However, where it appears to the valuer to be reasonable for the valuation of the consideration, or part of it, to be made by (or for him to accept a valuation made by) another person who: (1) appears to him to have the requisite knowledge and experience to value the consideration or that part of it⁷; and (2) is not an officer or employee⁸ of the company (or of any other body corporate⁹ that is that company's subsidiary¹⁰ or holding company¹¹ or a subsidiary of that company's holding company) or a partner of or employed by any such officer or employee¹², he may arrange for or accept such a valuation, together with a report which will enable him to make his own report¹³. Where the consideration or part of it is valued by a person other than the valuer himself, the latter's report must state that fact¹⁴, and must also state the former's name and what knowledge and experience he has to carry out the valuation¹⁵, and describe so much of the consideration as was valued by the other person, and the method used to value it, and specify the date of that valuation¹⁶.

A person carrying out a valuation or making a report with respect to any consideration proposed to be accepted or given by a company, is entitled to require from the officers of the company such information and explanation as he thinks necessary to enable him to carry out the valuation or make the report¹⁷, and to provide any note that is required¹⁸ where such a valuation is carried out by another person¹⁹. A person who knowingly or recklessly makes such a statement²⁰ that is misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular commits an offence²¹; and a person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine (or both)²², and (on summary conviction) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months²³ or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum²⁴ (or both)²⁵.

1129. Effect of agreements contravening requirements on transfer of non-cash assets.

Where a public company¹ enters into an agreement in contravention of the restriction on agreements for the transfer of non-cash assets² in its initial period³, and either: (1) the other party to the agreement has not received the valuer's report required⁴ to be sent to him⁵; or (2) there has been some other contravention of the statutory requirements relating to non-cash consideration⁶ that the other party to the agreement knew or ought to have known amounted to a contravention⁷, the company is then entitled to recover from that person any consideration given by it under the agreement, or an amount equal to the value of the consideration at the time of the agreement⁸; and the agreement, so far as not carried out, is void⁹.

If, however, the agreement is or includes an agreement for the allotment¹⁰ of shares¹¹ in the company¹², then: (a) whether or not the agreement also contravenes the statutory provisions that require a non-cash consideration for shares to be valued before allotment takes place¹³, these provisions for recovery of the consideration given by the company¹⁴ do not apply to it in so far as it is for the allotment of shares¹⁵; and (b) the allottee is liable to pay the company an amount equal to the aggregate of the nominal value¹⁶ of the shares and the whole of any premium¹⁷ (or, if the case so requires, so much of that aggregate as is treated as paid up¹⁸ by the consideration), with interest at the appropriate rate¹⁹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/E. PAYMENT/(B) Independent Valuation of Non-Cash Consideration for Shares in Public Company/(c) Liability for Contravention/1130. Liability of subsequent holders of shares.

(c) Liability for Contravention

1130. Liability of subsequent holders of shares.

If a person becomes a holder of shares¹ in respect of which: (1) there has been a contravention of any of the statutory provisions² that require non-cash consideration³ for shares to be valued independently before allotment takes place⁴; and (2) by virtue of that contravention, another is liable to pay any amount under the provision contravened⁵, that person is also liable to pay that amount (jointly and severally with any other person so liable) unless he is exempted from liability because he falls within head (i) or head (ii) below⁶.

If a company enters into an agreement in contravention of the restriction on agreements for the transfer of non-cash assets⁷ to a company in its initial period⁸, and: (a) the agreement is or includes an agreement for the allotment of shares in the company⁹; (b) a person becomes a holder of shares allotted under the agreement¹⁰; and (c) by virtue of the agreement and allotment under it, another person is liable¹¹ to pay an amount under the provisions that allow for recovery of the consideration given by the company¹², the person who becomes the holder of the shares is also liable to pay that amount (jointly and severally with any other person so liable), unless he is exempted from liability because he falls within head (i) or head (ii) below¹³.

However, a person who is otherwise liable in this way¹⁴ is exempted from that liability if either¹⁵: (i) he is a purchaser for value and, at the time of the purchase, he did not have actual notice of the contravention concerned¹⁶; or (ii) he derived title to the shares (directly or indirectly) from a person who became a holder of them after the contravention and was not so liable¹⁷.

1 For these purposes, references to a holder, in relation to shares in a company, include any person who has an unconditional right either to be included in the company's register of members in respect of those shares or to have an instrument of transfer of the shares executed in his favour: Companies Act 2006 s 605(4). COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/E. PAYMENT/(B) Independent Valuation of Non-Cash Consideration for Shares in Public Company/(c) Liability for Contravention/1131. Relief in respect of certain liabilities.

1131. Relief in respect of certain liabilities.

A person who is liable to a company¹: (1) under any of the provisions that require non-cash consideration for shares², or non-cash assets³ which are transferred in the initial period⁴, to be independently valued⁵, in relation to payment in respect of shares in the company⁶; or (2) by virtue of an undertaking given to it in, or in connection with, payment for any shares in the company⁷, may apply to the court⁸ to be exempted in whole or in part from the liability⁹.

If a liability arises under head (1) above, the court may exempt the applicant from the liability only if and to the extent that it appears to the court just and equitable to do so having regard to¹⁰:

- 2061 (a) whether the applicant has paid, or is liable to pay, any amount in respect of any other liability arising in relation to those shares under any of the provisions which govern payment for shares¹¹ or the valuation of non-cash assets¹² (where these apply), or in respect of any liability arising by virtue of any undertaking given in or in connection with payment for those shares¹³;
- 2062 (b) whether any person other than the applicant has paid or is likely to pay (whether in pursuance of an order of the court or otherwise) any such amount¹⁴; and
- 2063 (c) whether the applicant or any other person has performed, in whole or in part, or is likely so to perform any such undertaking, or has done or is likely to do any other thing in payment or part payment for the shares¹⁵.

Where a liability arises under head (2) above, the court may exempt the applicant from the liability only if and to the extent that it appears to the court just and equitable to do so having regard to¹⁶ whether the applicant has paid or is liable to pay any amount in respect of liability arising¹⁷ in relation to the shares¹⁸, and whether any person other than the applicant has paid or is likely to pay (whether in pursuance of an order of the court or otherwise) any such amount¹⁹. In determining whether it should exempt the applicant in whole or in part from any liability, the court must have regard to the following overriding principles²⁰, namely:

- 2064 (i) a company that has allotted shares should receive money or money's worth at least equal in value to the aggregate of the nominal value of those shares²¹ and the whole of any premium²² or, if the case so requires, so much of that aggregate as is treated as paid up²³; and
- 2065 (ii) subject to that, where such a company would, if the court did not grant the exemption, have more than one remedy against a particular person, it should be for the company to decide which remedy it should remain entitled to pursue²⁴.

If a person brings proceedings against another (the contributor²⁵) for a contribution in respect of liability to a company so arising²⁵, and it appears to the court that the contributor is liable to make such a contribution, the court may, if and to the extent that it appears to it just and equitable to do so having regard to the respective culpability (in respect of the liability to the company) of the contributor and the person bringing the proceedings²⁶, either exempt the contributor in whole or in part from his liability to make such a contribution²⁷, or order the contributor to make a larger contribution than he would otherwise²⁸ be liable to make²⁹.

Where a person is liable to a company³⁰ to pay an amount under the provisions that allow for recovery of consideration given by the company, the court may, on application, exempt him in whole or in part from that liability if and to the extent that it appears to the court to be just and equitable to do so having regard to any benefit accruing to the company by virtue of anything done by him towards the carrying out of the agreement in question³¹.

F. COMPANY'S CALL ON SHARES NOT FULLY PAID-UP

1132. Meaning of 'call'.

A call is a demand for payment of the amount or part of the amount which has not been paid or satisfied on a share¹, made by the company through its governing body upon its members² prior to winding up, or by its liquidator when it is in course of winding up³. While the company is a going concern, or, in other words, prior to the time when its winding up commences⁴, the liability of a member to calls is defined by its articles of association⁵. Even though the prospectus of a company relating to the issue of certain shares states that it is not intended to call up more than a specified amount per share, the company may call up the balance⁶.

1 As to shares generally see PARA 1042. As to when shares in a company are deemed paid up see PARA 1091; and as to the means of payment generally see PARA 1113 et seq.

2 As to who qualifies as a member of a company see PARA 321.

3 As to calls in a winding up see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 733 et seq. Only calls prior to winding up are dealt with in this title. As to calls after winding up see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 1004. A demand for payment of a sum due under terms of allotment is not a call: Croskey v Bank of Wales (1863) 4 Giff 314. As to the meaning of 'allotment' see PARA 1091.

5 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to the manner of making calls see PARA 1134. The company may, however, by special resolution alter the articles to give power to the directors to call up money unpaid on shares: Accidental and Marine Insurance Corp'n v Davis (1866) 15 LT 182; Malleon v National Insurance and Guarantee Corp'n [1894] 1 Ch 200. As to provision that is made for the alteration of a company's articles see PARA 232 et seq. Under the model articles of association that are prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), no share is to be issued for less than the aggregate of its nominal value and any premium to be paid to the company in consideration for its issue (although this does not apply to shares taken on the formation of the company by the subscribers to the company's memorandum): see Sch 1 art 21; and PARA 1044.

Provision for differences in payment of calls.

1133. Provision for differences in payment of calls.

A company¹, if so authorised by its articles², may:

- 2066 (1) make arrangements on the issue of shares³ for a difference between the shareholders⁴ in the amounts and times of payment of calls⁵ on their shares⁶; and
- 2067 (2) accept from any member⁷ the whole or part of the amount remaining unpaid on any shares held by him, although no part of that amount has been called up⁸.

An exercise of the power under head (2) above will be valid even though it confers a collateral benefit on the directors⁹, but not if it is exercised solely for their benefit¹⁰. Capital¹¹ cannot be paid up in advance by setting off an existing debt¹².

To the extent to which money is paid in advance of calls, the shareholder is a creditor of the company¹³; but he is not an ordinary creditor, for he cannot demand repayment of the money so paid, and the company cannot repay it unless the articles so provide¹⁴.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(vi) Allotment, Issue and Payment of Shares/F. COMPANY'S CALL ON SHARES NOT FULLY PAID-UP/1134. Manner of making calls.

1134. Manner of making calls.

Calls¹ made prior to winding up² are made, and payment of them is enforced, in pursuance of the power given by the company's articles of association³ and in the manner therein provided⁴. A power to make calls may be exercised only by a quorum of directors⁵ present at a meeting duly convened⁶, unless the articles otherwise provide⁷; but a call made at an adjourned meeting is not bad because notice of the adjourned meeting was not given to each director⁸.

A call made by a quorum may be bad if the total number of directors is less than the minimum number prescribed by the articles, but, if the direction as to the minimum number is not imperative, the call is good⁹; and a director who is one of the quorum may be estopped from denying the validity of the call¹⁰.

Where by the articles a call is to be made by the directors, it must be made by directors properly appointed, acting as a duly constituted meeting of the board¹¹; the power to make calls cannot be delegated except under an express power to delegate¹². If a call is invalid by reason of any defect in the constitution of the board meeting, it may be confirmed by a duly convened and constituted board¹³; all acts of directors are valid notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in their appointments or qualifications¹⁴.

Any resolution must comply with the provisions of the articles and must in any case state the amount of the call and the time at which it is to be paid; otherwise the call will be invalid¹⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'call' see PARA 1132.

2 As to the commencement of the winding up see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 489.

3 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

4 The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3, provides that, subject to the articles and the terms on which shares are allotted, the directors may send a notice (a 'call notice') to a member requiring the member to pay the company a specified sum of money (a 'call') which is payable in respect of shares which that member holds at the date when the directors decide to send the call notice: art 54(1). A call notice:

534 (1) may not require a member to pay a call which exceeds the total sum unpaid on that member's shares (whether as to the share's nominal value or any amount payable to the company by way of premium) (art 54(2)(a));

535 (2) must state when and how any call to which it relates is to be paid (art 54(2)(b)); and

536 (3) may permit or require the call to be paid by instalments (art 54(2)(c)).

As to the notice of call see PARA 1137. As to the nominal value of shares see PARA 1044; and as to the meaning of 'premium' see PARA 1146. As to a company's directors see PARA 478 et seq.

A member must comply with the requirements of a call notice, but no member is obliged to pay any call before 14 days have passed since the notice was sent: art 54(3). Before the company has received any call due under a call notice, the directors may either revoke it wholly or in part, or specify a later time for payment than is specified in the notice, by a further notice in writing to the member in respect of whose shares the call is made: art 54(4). Liability to pay a call is not extinguished or transferred by transferring the shares in respect of which it is required to be paid: art 55(1). Joint holders of a share are jointly and severally liable to pay all calls in respect of that share: art 55(2). Subject to the terms on which shares are allotted, the directors may, when issuing shares, provide that call notices sent to the holders of those shares may require them either to pay calls which are not the same, or to pay calls at different times: art 55(3). A call notice need not be issued in respect of sums which are specified, in the terms on which a share is issued, as being payable to the company in respect of that share (whether in respect of nominal value or premium) on allotment, on the occurrence of a particular event, or on a date fixed by or in accordance with the terms of issue: art 56(1). But if the due date for payment of such a sum has passed and it has not been paid, the holder of the share concerned is treated in all respects as having failed to comply with a call notice in respect of that sum, and is liable to the same consequences as regards the payment of interest and forfeiture: art 56(2). As to forfeiture see PARAS 1141, 1213 et seq.

For companies still using the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, the making of calls is regulated by Schedule, Table A arts 12-17, as follows:

539 (c) liability of joint holders of a share (Table A art 14);

1136. Discretion as to making calls.

The discretion which directors¹ possess as to making or abstaining from making calls² is not reviewed by the court in the absence of bad faith³. The power to make calls is fiduciary as regards the shareholders⁴, and, in making or abstaining from making calls, the directors must have regard to their duty to promote the success of the company, and their powers must be exercised fairly as between different shareholders, and not with a view to giving themselves an unfair advantage⁵. Unless the directors have power to do so, prima facie they are not entitled to make a call on some members and not on others of the same class⁶; and, even if they have that power of differentiating between members, there must be a sufficient reason for its exercise⁷. The directors are not, however, trustees for the company's creditors, either collectively or individually⁸.

1137. Notice of call.

The notice of call¹ must be served as directed by the articles of association²; and, if addressed to a member³ at his registered address⁴, as provided by the articles, it is good, notwithstanding his previous death, if the company has no notice of his death⁵. The call may be valid though the form of the notice is inaccurate⁶, provided that it is clear notice of the call⁷. The fact that no notice has been sent to other shareholders is immaterial⁸.

1139. Set-off against calls.

A set-off purported to be made by a director¹ within six months of a winding-up petition² and with knowledge that the company is in a precarious condition, is a preference³. A debt presently due and owing by the company to a shareholder⁴, but not one which is payable only at a future date, may be set off against a sum due from him upon calls⁵ while the company is a going concern⁶. An agreement to set off a present liability of the company against future calls is also good⁷. A call once made may be discharged by accord and satisfaction provided the consideration is not illusory⁸; but in general a company cannot contract that payment of future calls are to be accepted in goods or other money's worth⁹.

1140. Interest on calls.

A company's articles of association¹ may provide for payment of interest on calls² in arrear³. Where shares have been transferred¹, the transferor remains liable for calls² already made³.

Where shares are forfeited for non-payment of calls⁴ and then sold and the purchaser receives a certificate showing that the shares are not fully paid⁵, but stating that the purchaser is to be deemed the holder of the 'said shares discharged from all calls due prior to the date hereof' the company may nevertheless make calls on the purchaser for the balance due on the shares, but the purchaser is not liable for interest on calls previously made⁶. On winding up, the purchaser is, however, liable for calls only in respect of the balance owing on the shares after giving credit for any sums paid on the shares by the original holder, whether as a shareholder or as being a debtor under articles which render him liable after forfeiture⁷.

Calls¹ which are unpaid at the date of the bankruptcy of a shareholder², and the estimated value of his liability in respect of any future calls, are provable in the bankruptcy³. If the dividend received is less than 100 pence in the pound on the amount of the proof, payment of the dividend does not make the shares fully paid, so as to enable the bankrupt's estate to rank as a fully paid shareholder in the distribution of surplus assets of the company⁴. Where shares have been forfeited⁵ and reissued, and the person against whom the forfeiture was exercised has become bankrupt, the company may prove in his bankruptcy only to the extent of its actual loss, that is, the difference between the amount payable by the original holder in respect of the shares, including interest on calls, and the net amount received by the company in respect of the reissued shares⁶. Where any part of the property of a bankrupt consists of shares or stock constituting overseas property, his trustee in bankruptcy may disclaim them⁷.

The estate of a deceased shareholder is liable for the payment of calls on shares¹ standing in his name, whether the calls are made before or after his death, and his legal personal representatives are liable only in their representative character². Personal representatives who distribute the estate amongst the beneficiaries without providing for the liability attaching to the estate in respect of shares not fully paid up, forming part of the estate, breach their duty to preserve, protect and administer the assets of the deceased³, and are personally liable to pay calls on the shares up to the amount of the assets distributed⁴. If there is no legal personal representative, the court grants administration to the company's nominee as a creditor of the deceased person's estate⁵. If legal personal representatives unequivocally request that the shares should be transferred into their own names, they become personally liable, although on the register they are designated executors⁶.

G. ISSUE OF SHARES AT A PREMIUM

1146. Share premium account and its application.

There are no statutory or other restrictions on the issue of shares¹ at a 'premium' (that is, at more than their nominal value)²; indeed, if the directors³ can obtain a premium on the issue, it is their duty to do so⁴.

Subject to relief from the statutory provisions governing such an issue⁵ that is available in cases of merger⁶ or group reconstruction⁷, and subject to retrospective relief⁸ and the powers of the Secretary of State⁹ to make further provision in this regard¹⁰, where a company issues shares at a premium (whether for cash or otherwise¹¹), a sum equal to the aggregate amount or value¹² of the premiums on those shares must be transferred to an account, called the 'share premium account'¹³; and the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 relating to the reduction of a company's share capital¹⁴ apply, except as mentioned below, as if the share premium account were part of its paid up share capital¹⁵. Thus, if the assets of the share premium account are to be distributed among shareholders, the transaction is to be regarded as if the company were reducing its paid up share capital and the money distributed is capital and not income in the hands of the payee¹⁶.

Notwithstanding the above, where, on issuing shares, a company has transferred a sum to the share premium account, it may use that sum to write off¹⁷:

- 2068 (1) the expenses of the issue of those shares¹⁸; and
- 2069 (2) any commission paid on the issue of those shares¹⁹.

The company may use the share premium account also to pay up new shares to be allotted²⁰ to members²¹ as fully paid bonus shares²².

If a limited company²³ redeems any redeemable shares²⁴ which were issued at a premium, any premium payable on their redemption may be paid out of the proceeds of a fresh issue of shares made for the purpose of the redemption, up to an amount equal to²⁵:

- 2070 (a) the aggregate of the premiums received by the company on the issue of the shares redeemed²⁶; or
- 2071 (b) the current amount of the company's share premium account, including any sum transferred to that account in respect of premiums on the new shares²⁷, whichever is the less²⁸; and, in that case, the amount of the company's share premium account must be reduced by a sum corresponding, or by sums in the aggregate corresponding, to the amount of any payment made by virtue of this provision out of the proceeds of the issue of the new shares²⁹.

Where a private company³⁰ exercises its power to redeem or purchase its own shares out of capital and the permissible capital payment is greater than the nominal amount of the shares purchased or redeemed, the share premium account may be reduced by a sum not exceeding the amount by which the permissible capital payment exceeds the nominal amount of the shares³¹.

10 In subject to the Companies Act 2006 s 614: see s 610(5). The Secretary of State may by regulations make such provision as he thinks appropriate for relieving companies from the requirements of s 610 in relation to premiums other than cash premiums, or for restricting or otherwise modifying any relief from those requirements provided by Pt 17 Ch 7 (ss 610-616) (see also PARA 1147 et seq): s 614(1). As to the meaning of 'cash' see PARA 564 note 6. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. Regulations under s 614 are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see ss 614(2), 1290. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made under s 614. Such regulations may relate also to the Companies Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 12: see PARA 1150 note 4. For these purposes, 'company', except in reference to the issuing company (see note 13), includes any body corporate: Companies Act 2006 s 616(1). As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

The Secretary of State may by regulations modify the Companies Act 2006 Pt 17 Ch 7: s 657(1). Regulations under s 657 are subject to affirmative resolution procedure: s 657(4). The regulations may amend or repeal any provision of Pt 17 Ch 7, or make such other provision as appears to the Secretary of State appropriate in place of any provision of Pt 17 Ch 7 (s 657(2)); and may make consequential amendments or repeals in other provisions of the Companies Act 2006, or in other enactments (s 657(3)). As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 17 note 2. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made for these purposes.

11 As to the meanings of 'cash' and consideration 'other than cash' in relation to the allotment or payment up of shares in a company see PARA 1091.

12 Shares issued for a consideration other than cash are issued at a premium if the value of the assets in consideration of which they are issued is more than the nominal value of the shares: see Henry Head & Co Ltd v Ropner Holdings Ltd [1952] Ch 124 at 128, [1951] 2 All ER 994 at 997 per Harman J (where a holding company, formed for the purpose of amalgamating two existing companies, acquired assets of a greater value than the nominal value of the shares issued by it in exchange for the existing shares of the amalgamated companies; it was required to transfer the excess value of the assets acquired to its share premium account); Shearer (Inspector of Taxes) v Bercaim Ltd [1980] 3 All ER 295.

2072 (1) is a wholly-owned subsidiary² of another company³ (the 'holding company')⁴; and

2073 (2) allots⁵ shares⁶, either to the holding company⁷ or to another wholly-owned subsidiary of the holding company, in consideration for the transfer to the issuing company⁸ of non-cash assets⁹ of a company (the 'transferor company') that is a member of the group of companies which comprises the holding company and all its wholly-owned subsidiaries¹⁰, and where the shares in the issuing company allotted in consideration for the transfer are issued at a premium¹¹, the issuing company is not required¹² to transfer any amount in excess of the minimum premium value to the share premium account¹³.

For these purposes, the 'minimum premium value' means the amount, if any, by which the base value of the consideration for the shares allotted exceeds the aggregate nominal value of the shares¹⁴; and the 'base value of the consideration for the shares allotted' is the amount by which the base value of the assets transferred exceeds the base value of any liabilities of the transferor company assumed by the issuing company as part of the consideration for the assets transferred¹⁵. The 'base value of the assets transferred' is to be taken as:

- 2074 (a) the cost of those assets to the transferor company¹⁶; or
- 2075 (b) (if less) the amount at which those assets are stated in the transferor company's accounting records immediately before the transfer¹⁷.

The 'base value of the liabilities' is to be taken as the amount at which they are stated in the transferor company's accounting records immediately before the transfer¹⁸.

1148. Merger relief.

Except where relief is given in respect of group reconstruction¹, relief from the requirement to transfer amounts to a share premium account² is available where the issuing company³ has secured at least a 90 per cent equity holding in another company⁴ in pursuance of an arrangement⁵ providing for the allotment of equity shares⁶ in the issuing company on terms that the consideration for the shares allotted is to be provided by the issue or transfer to the issuing company⁷ of equity shares in the other company⁸, or by the cancellation of any such shares not held by the issuing company⁹.

If the equity shares in the issuing company allotted in pursuance of the arrangement in consideration for the acquisition¹⁰ or cancellation of equity shares in the other company are issued at a premium¹¹, the obligation to maintain a share premium account¹² does not apply to the premiums on those shares¹³. Where the arrangement also provides for the allotment of any shares in the issuing company on terms that the consideration for those shares is to be provided either by the issue or transfer to the issuing company of non-equity shares in the other company¹⁴, or by the cancellation of any such shares in that company not held by the issuing company¹⁵, such relief extends to any shares in the issuing company allotted on those terms in pursuance of the arrangement¹⁶.

The issuing company ('company A') is to be regarded for these purposes as having secured at least a 90 per cent equity holding in another company ('company B'), in pursuance of an arrangement providing for the allotment of equity shares¹⁷, if, in consequence of an acquisition or cancellation of equity shares in company B (in pursuance of such an arrangement), Company A holds equity shares in company B of an aggregate amount equal to 90 per cent or more of the nominal value of that company's equity share capital¹⁸; but where the equity share capital of company B is divided into different classes of shares, company A is not regarded as having secured at least a 90 per cent equity holding in company B unless the issuing company has secured at least a 90 per cent holding¹⁹ in relation to each of those classes of shares taken separately²⁰. Shares that are held by a company that is company A's holding company²¹ or subsidiary²², or by a subsidiary of company A's holding company, or by its or their nominees, are to be treated for these purposes as held by company A²³.

Where a company¹ has issued² shares³ before 4 February 1981⁴, and where the issuing company⁵ has issued at a premium⁶ shares which were allotted in pursuance of any arrangement⁷ providing for the allotment of shares⁸ in the issuing company on terms that the consideration for the shares allotted was to be provided by the issue or transfer⁹ to the issuing company of shares in another company or by the cancellation of any shares in that other company not held by the issuing company¹⁰, the other company in question must either have been at the time of the arrangement a subsidiary¹¹ of the issuing company or of any company which was then the issuing company's holding company¹² or have become such a subsidiary on the acquisition or cancellation of its shares¹³ in pursuance of the arrangement¹⁴.

Any part of the premiums on the shares so issued which was not transferred to the company's share premium account¹⁵ in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Companies Act 1948¹⁶ must be treated as if those provisions had never applied to those premiums (and may accordingly be disregarded in determining the sum to be included in the company's share premium account)¹⁷.

H. COMMISSIONS, UNDERWRITING AND BROKERAGE

1151. General prohibition on commissions etc.

Except as otherwise permitted¹, a company² must not apply any of its shares or capital³ money, either directly or indirectly, in payment of any commission, discount⁴ or allowance to any person in consideration of his either: (1) subscribing⁵ or agreeing to subscribe (whether absolutely or conditionally) for shares in the company⁶; or (2) procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions (whether absolute or conditional) for shares in the company⁷. It is immaterial how the shares or money are so applied, whether by being added to the purchase money of any property acquired by the company or to the contract price of work to be executed for the company, or whether the money is paid out of the nominal purchase money or contract price, or otherwise⁸.

This restriction⁹ does not, however, affect the power of a company to pay such brokerage as has previously been lawful¹⁰.

1 Ie except as permitted by the Companies Act 2006 s 553 (see PARA 1152): see s 552(1).

The Secretary of State may by regulations modify ss 552, 553: s 657(1). Regulations under s 657 are subject to (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see ss 657(4), 1290. The regulations may amend or repeal any provision of ss 552, 553, or make such other provision as appears to the Secretary of State appropriate in place of any provision of ss 552, 553 (s 657(2)); and may make consequential amendments or repeals in other provisions of the Companies Act 2006, or in other enactments (s 657(3)). As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 17 note 2. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made for these purposes.

2 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

3 As to the meanings of 'share' and 'capital' see PARA 1042. The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 17 Ch 2 (ss 549-559) have no application in relation to the taking of shares by the subscribers to the memorandum on the formation of the company: see s 559; and PARA 1091 note 6. As to the meaning of 'memorandum of association' see PARA 104. As to the memorandum of association of a company limited by shares see PARA 78; and as to subscribers to a company's memorandum of association see PARA 104 et seq. As to the requirements that must be met before a company is duly formed see PARA 102 et seq.

4 Shares may not be allotted at a discount: see PARA 1111.

5 'Subscribing' probably means entering into an agreement to take shares by means of a formal application or otherwise, under which there is a liability to pay: see Arnison v Smith (1889) 41 ChD 348 at 357 per Kekewich J.

Notwithstanding the general prohibition on the payment of commissions etc¹, it is lawful for a company² to pay a commission to a person in consideration of his subscribing³ or agreeing to subscribe (whether absolutely or conditionally) for shares⁴ in the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions (whether absolute or conditional) for shares in the company, if the following conditions are satisfied⁵, namely that⁶:

- 2076 (1) the payment of the commission is authorised by the company's articles⁷; and:
- 2077 (2) the commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed 10 per cent of the price at which the shares are issued, or the amount or rate authorised by the articles, whichever is the less⁸.

A vendor to, or promoter of, or other person who receives payment in money or shares from, a company may apply any part of the money or shares so received in payment of any commission the payment of which directly by the company would be permitted by these provisions⁹.

1 Notwithstanding the general prohibition in the Companies Act 2006 s 552 (see PARA 1151).

As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, the company may pay any person a commission in consideration for that person either subscribing (or agreeing to subscribe) for shares, or procuring (or agreeing to procure) subscriptions for shares: Sch 3 art 44(1). Any such commission may be paid in cash (or in fully paid or partly paid shares or other securities) or partly in one way and partly in the other, and in respect of a conditional or an absolute subscription: Sch 3 art 44(2). Under the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, the company may exercise the powers of paying commissions conferred by the Companies Acts; and, subject to the provisions of those Acts, any such commission may be satisfied by the payment of cash or by the allotment of fully or partly paid shares or partly in one way and partly in the other: Schedule, Table A art 4. Table A art 4 is applied by Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and by Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital) but Table A art 4 is disapplied by Table C art 1 (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

As to the liability of auditors in respect of an improper payment of commission see Re Bolivia Republic Exploration Syndicate Ltd. In consideration of a person's taking or procuring subscriptions¹ for shares², the company may give him an option to take further shares within a limited period at par³ without complying with the statutory provisions as to commissions and discounts⁴, as such an option does not amount to an application of shares or capital money⁵ within those provisions⁶.

On a sale of a company's undertaking to persons who agree to form a new company for the repurchase of the undertaking in consideration of shares¹ to be allotted² to the members³ of the selling company, any additional consideration paid by the new company apart from that for the shares is a commission or discount and is accordingly illegal unless the statutory conditions as to commissions⁴ are complied with⁵.

1156. Underwriting agreements.

'Underwriting' is taken to mean agreeing to take the number of shares specified in an underwriting letter or agreement to the extent that the public or other persons do not subscribe for them before a fixed date¹.

The construction of each underwriting agreement depends upon its individual terms and differs widely in different cases². The underwriting agreement is usually signed on the terms of draft offer documents, and it is the practice to provide that the contract to underwrite will hold good notwithstanding variations between the draft offer documents and the offer documents as finally published. An alteration in the terms of the offer documents which substantially alters the risk is not such a variation³. Generally, the letter is not in itself a contract, but a mere offer⁴, which, like other offers, requires acceptance before a contract comes into existence⁵; but the offer, if accepted within a reasonable time, need not be accepted before the result of the proposed issue of shares is known⁶. There may be acceptance without writing⁷, and notice of acceptance may be inferred⁸, or the writer of the letter may be estopped from setting up want of acceptance⁹. An underwriting letter authorising some other person to apply for shares, for a valuable consideration, if the offer is accepted by him, constitutes an authority coupled with an interest and is irrevocable¹⁰. If the underwriting agreement requires the writer to subscribe if and when called upon, the request for him to subscribe is a condition precedent to his liability¹¹. The contract is not personal¹², and the legal personal representatives¹³ of the underwriter may be sued on it¹⁴.

1157. Sub-underwriting.

It is common for underwriters¹ to enter into contracts with sub-underwriters, under which the latter agree to sub-underwrite a part of the shares² for which the underwriters have subscribed and they sign a sub-underwriting letter³. A sub-underwriting letter authorising an underwriter to apply for shares, for a valuable consideration, if the offer is accepted by him, constitutes, as in the case of an underwriting letter, an authority coupled with an interest, and is irrevocable⁴.

There is no duty on the part of an underwriter to find satisfactory sub-underwriters⁵.

1158. Brokerage.

A company may pay to brokers a reasonable sum by way of brokerage for placing shares¹. 'Brokers' includes stockbrokers, bankers and the like who exhibit offer documents and send them to their customers, and by whose mediation the customers are induced to subscribe. It does not include anyone who does not carry on a business of this character².

1 See the Companies Act 2006 s 552(3) (cited in PARA 1151), which saves the power of companies to pay such brokerage as was lawful before the enactment of the Companies Act 2006.

2 Metropolitan Coal Consumers' Association v Scrimgeour [1895] 2 QB 604, CA (where the articles of association expressly authorised the payment of all brokerages payable in respect of the placing of any shares, and the commission paid to the stockbrokers for placing the shares was only 2.5% on their nominal amount). In this instance, the memorandum of association also expressly authorised the payment of brokerages, but the authority (if necessary at all) is none the better for being in the memorandum: Metropolitan Coal Consumers' Association v Scrimgeour at 607 per Lindley LJ. (vii) Alteration of Share Capital

1159. The power to alter share capital.

A limited company¹ having a share capital² may not alter its share capital except in the following ways³. The company may:

- 2078 (1) increase its share capital by allotting new shares in accordance with Part 17⁴ of the Companies Act 2006⁵ or reduce its share capital in accordance with the relevant provisions⁶ of that Part⁷;
- 2079 (2) sub-divide or consolidate⁸ all or any of its share capital⁹ or reconvert¹⁰ stock into shares¹¹;
- 2080 (3) redenominate all or any of its shares¹² and may reduce its share capital¹³ in connection with such a redenomination¹⁴.
- 2081 Nothing in the above provisions, however, affects:
- 2082 (a) the power of a company to purchase its own shares, or to redeem shares, in accordance with Part 18 of the 2006 Act¹⁵;
- 2083 (b) the power of a company to purchase its own shares in pursuance of an order of the court under certain specified statutory provisions¹⁶;
- 2084 (c) the forfeiture of shares, or the acceptance of shares surrendered in lieu, in pursuance of the company's articles¹⁷, for failure to pay any sum payable in respect of the shares;
- 2085 (d) the cancellation of shares under the statutory duty to do so in certain circumstances¹⁸;
- 2086 (e) the power of a company to enter into a compromise or arrangement in accordance with Part 26 of the 2006 Act¹⁹ or to do anything required to comply with an order of the court on an application under that Part²⁰.

B. INCREASE OF CAPITAL

1160. Power to increase capital: power to allot shares.

A limited company¹ having a share capital² may increase its share capital by allotting new shares in accordance with Part 17³ of the Companies Act 2006⁴.

On any such increase, there is no reason why the increased capital need be expressed in the same currency as the existing capital, or why the increased capital should be all in the same specific currency⁵. The increased capital may consist of preference shares⁶, provided that this is not inconsistent with rights given by the articles of association⁷.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 617(1), (2)(a). See also PARA 1159. Formerly, a company was required to state in the memorandum of association the amount of its authorised share capital divided into shares of a fixed nominal value, this amount operating as a limit on the number of shares which could be issued, subject to the power of the company to increase this figure by way of a resolution under the Companies Act 1985 s 121 (repealed) (see now the Companies Act 2006 ss 617, 618): see PARA 1046. The Companies Act 2006 contains no such requirement, although a company may choose in its articles to limit the power of the directors to allot additional shares: see s 550 (cited in PARA 1094), s 551 (cited in PARA 1096).

The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, prescribe no specific procedure with regard to an increase of capital; but the members of a company may restrict the exercise of that power by making provision to that effect in the company's articles. As to the power to issue different classes of share see Sch 1 para 22, Sch 3 para 43; and PARA 1057 et seq. As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. If the company is governed by the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A, the increase is made by an ordinary resolution prescribing the amount of increase, and the shares into which it is divided: Schedule, Table A art 32(a). As to ordinary resolutions see PARA 613. In the case of an unlimited company having a share capital which is governed by Schedule, Table E, the increase is made by special resolution: Schedule, Table E art 4(a). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102.

Before the Companies Act 1929 there was no statutory provision as to the mode in which an increase of capital was to be effected, and in the case of companies governed by the Companies Act 1862 Sch 1, Table A (repealed) which provided that the directors could effect an increase with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, it was held that, if the capital was increased without first obtaining the sanction, the irregularity was cured by the passing of subsequent resolutions: see Sewell's Case (1868) 3 Ch App 131; Re London and New York Investment Corp [1895] 2 Ch 860. Under the Companies Act 1862, it was held that a company could delegate the power of increasing its capital to its directors: see Mosely v Koffyfontein Mines Ltd [1910] 2 Ch 382; *re*sd on another point sub nom Koffyfontein Mines Ltd v Mosely [1911] AC 409, HL.

C. CONSOLIDATION OF CAPITAL AND SUB-DIVISION OF SHARES

A limited company¹ having a share capital² may consolidate all or any of its share capital in accordance with the following provisions³. The company may consolidate and divide all or any of its share capital into shares⁴ of a larger nominal amount than its existing shares⁵. In any such consolidation or division of shares, the proportion between the amount paid and the amount, if any, unpaid on each resulting share must be the same as it was in the case of the share from which that share is derived⁶.

A company may exercise the powers conferred by these provisions only if its members⁷ have passed a resolution authorising it to do so⁸; and the company's articles⁹ may exclude or restrict the exercise of any power so conferred¹⁰.

If a company exercises the statutory power to consolidate its share capital¹¹ it must within one month after doing so give notice to the registrar¹², specifying the shares affected¹³. The notice must be accompanied by a statement of capital¹⁴ which must state, with respect to the company's share capital immediately following the exercise of the power¹⁵:

- 2087 (1) the total number of shares of the company¹⁶;
- 2088 (2) the aggregate nominal value of those shares¹⁷;
- 2089 (3) for each class of shares, prescribed particulars¹⁸ of the rights attached to the shares¹⁹, the total number of shares of that class²⁰ and the aggregate nominal value of shares of that class²¹; and
- 2090 (4) the amount paid up and the amount, if any, unpaid on each share, whether on account of the nominal value of the share or by way of premium²².

If default is made in complying with these provisions, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer²³ of the company who is in default²⁴. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale²⁵ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine²⁶ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale²⁷.

Where a provision of the Companies Acts requires a resolution of a company, and does not specify what kind of resolution is required, what is required is an ordinary resolution unless the company's articles require a higher majority (or unanimity): see the Companies Act 2006 s 281(3); and PARA 617. As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102.

10 Companies Act 2006 s 618(5). Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, where there has been a consolidation or division of shares by a public company, and as a result, members are entitled to fractions of shares, the directors may (1) sell the shares representing the fractions to any person including the company for the best price reasonably obtainable; (2) in the case of a certificated share, authorise any person to execute an instrument of transfer of the shares to the purchaser or a person nominated by the purchaser; and (3) distribute the net proceeds of sale in due proportion among the holders of the shares: see Sch 3 art 69(1), (2). Where any holder's entitlement to a portion of the proceeds of sale amounts to less than a minimum figure determined by the directors, that member's portion may be distributed to an organisation which is a charity for the purposes of the law of England and Wales, Scotland or Northern Ireland: Sch 3 art 69(3). The person to whom the shares are transferred is not obliged to ensure that any purchase money is received by the person entitled to the relevant fractions (Sch 3 art 69(4)); and the transferee's title to the shares is not affected by any irregularity in or invalidity of the process leading to their sale (Sch 3 art 69(5)). As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478.

The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides that a company may consolidate and divide all or any of its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares by ordinary resolution: see Schedule, Table A art 32(b) (disapplied by Schedule, Table E art 1 in relation to an unlimited company having a share capital). Whenever as a result of a consolidation of shares any members would become entitled to fractions of a share, the directors may, on behalf of those members, sell the shares representing the fractions for the best price reasonably obtainable to any person (including, subject to the provisions of the Companies Act 2006, the company) and distribute the net proceeds of sale in due proportion among those members, and the directors may authorise some person to execute an instrument of transfer of the shares to, or in accordance with the directions of, the purchaser. The transferee is not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money nor is his title to the shares affected by any irregularity in or invalidity of the proceedings in reference to the sale: Schedule, Table A art 33.

1162. Power to sub-divide share capital.

A limited company¹ having a share capital² may sub-divide all or any of its share capital in accordance with the following provisions³. The company may sub-divide its shares⁴, or any of them, into shares of a smaller nominal amount than its existing shares⁵. In any such sub-division of shares, the proportion between the amount paid and the amount, if any, unpaid on each resulting share must be the same as it was in the case of the share from which that share is derived⁶.

A company may exercise the powers conferred by these provisions only if its members⁷ have passed a resolution authorising it to do so⁸; and the company's articles⁹ may exclude or restrict the exercise of any power so conferred¹⁰.

If a company exercises the statutory power to sub-divide its shares¹¹ it must within one month after doing so give notice to the registrar¹², specifying the shares affected¹³. If default is made in complying with these provisions, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²³. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale²⁴ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine²⁵ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale²⁶.

A limited company that has converted paid-up shares⁷ into stock before the repeal by the Companies Act 2006⁸ of the power to do so⁹ may reconvert that stock into paid-up shares of any nominal value¹⁰. A company may, however, exercise the power so conferred only if its members¹¹ have passed an ordinary resolution¹² authorising it to do so¹³. 1166. Effect of conversion.

The normal provision contained in articles¹ in relation to stock² is that the holders of stock are to have, according to the amount of the stock held by them, the same rights, privileges and advantages as regards dividends, voting at meetings and other matters as if they held the shares from which the stock arose, but no such privilege or advantage (except participation in the dividends and profits of the company and in the assets on winding up) is conferred by an amount of stock which would not, if existing in shares, have conferred that privilege or advantage.

If the company³ has converted any of its shares⁴ into stock⁵, and given notice of the conversion to the registrar⁶, the register of members⁷ must show the amount and class of stock held by each member instead of the amount of shares and the particulars relating to shares specified⁸ by the Companies Act 2006⁹.

E. REDENOMINATION OF SHARE CAPITAL

1167. Redenomination and calculation of new nominal values.

A limited company¹ having a share capital² may redenominate all or any of its shares³ in accordance with the following provisions⁴. Such a company may by resolution⁵ redenominate⁶ its share capital or any class of its share capital⁷; and the resolution may specify conditions which must be met before the redenomination takes effect⁸.

Redenomination in accordance with a resolution under these provisions takes effect on the day on which the resolution is passed, or on such later day as may be determined in accordance with the resolution⁹. A resolution under these provisions lapses if the redenomination for which it provides has not taken effect at the end of the period of 28 days beginning on the date on which it is passed¹⁰.

A company's articles¹¹ may, however, prohibit or restrict the exercise of the power conferred by the provisions set out above¹².

The Secretary of State¹³ may by regulations¹⁴ modify the statutory provisions¹⁵ relating to redenomination¹⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'limited company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 102.

2 As to the meaning of 'company having a share capital' see PARA 1042.

3 As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 617(1), (4). See also PARA 1159.

5 The Companies Act 2006 Pt 3 Ch 3 (ss 29, 30) (resolutions affecting a company's constitution: see PARA 231) applies to such a resolution: s 622(8). Where a provision of the Companies Acts requires a resolution of a company, and does not specify what kind of resolution is required, what is required is an ordinary resolution unless the company's articles require a higher majority (or unanimity): see the Companies Act 2006 s 281(3); and PARA 617. As to company resolutions generally see PARA 613 et seq.

6 'Redenominate' means convert shares from having a fixed nominal value in one currency to having a fixed nominal value in another currency: Companies Act 2006 s 622(1). The conversion must be made at an appropriate spot rate of exchange specified in the resolution: s 622(2). The rate must be either (1) a rate prevailing on a day specified in the resolution; or (2) a rate determined by taking the average of rates prevailing on each consecutive day of a period specified in the resolution; and the day or period specified for the purposes of head (1) or head (2) above must be within the period of 28 days ending on the day before the resolution is passed: s 622(3).

For each class of share the new nominal value of each share is calculated as follows: s 623. Step one is to take the aggregate of the old nominal values of all the shares of that class; step two is to translate that amount into the new currency at the rate of exchange specified in the resolution; and step three is to divide that amount by the number of shares in the class: s 623.

The regulations may (1) amend or repeal any of ss 622-628; or (2) make such other provision as appears to the Secretary of State appropriate in place of any of those provisions: s 657(2). Regulations under s 657 may make consequential amendments or repeals in other provisions of the Companies Act 2006, or in other enactments: s 657(3). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made for these purposes.

1168. Effect of redenomination.

The redenomination¹ of shares² does not affect any rights or obligations of members³ under the company's constitution⁴, or any restrictions affecting members under the company's constitution. In particular, it does not affect entitlement to dividends, including entitlement to dividends in a particular currency, voting rights or any liability in respect of amounts unpaid on shares⁵. Subject to that, references to the old nominal value of the shares in any agreement or statement, or in any deed, instrument or document, are to be read after the resolution⁶ takes effect as references to the new nominal value of the shares, unless the context otherwise requires⁷.

- 2100 (2) the aggregate nominal value of those shares¹²;
- 2101 (3) for each class of shares¹³, prescribed particulars¹⁴ of the rights attached to the shares¹⁵, the total number of shares of that class¹⁶, and the aggregate nominal value of shares of that class¹⁷; and
- 2102 (4) the amount paid up and the amount, if any, unpaid on each share, whether on account of the nominal value of the share or by way of premium¹⁸.

A company¹ that passes a resolution for the reduction of capital in connection with redenomination² must within 15 days after the resolution is passed give notice to the registrar³ stating the date of that resolution, and the date of the resolution⁴ for redenomination in connection with which it was passed⁵. The notice must be accompanied by a statement of capital⁶ which must state with respect to the company's share capital as reduced by the resolution⁷:

1172. Redenomination reserve.

The amount by which a company's¹ share capital is reduced in connection with redenomination² must be transferred to a reserve, called the 'redenomination reserve'³.

The redenomination reserve may be applied by the company in paying up shares⁴ to be allotted to members⁵ as fully paid bonus shares⁶. Subject to that, the provisions of the Companies Acts relating to the reduction of a company's share capital⁷ apply as if the redenomination reserve were paid-up share capital of the company⁸.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(viii) Reduction of Share Capital/A. IN GENERAL/1173. Circumstances in which a company may reduce share capital.

(viii) Reduction of Share Capital

A. IN GENERAL

1173. Circumstances in which a company may reduce share capital.

A private company¹ limited by shares² may reduce its share capital³ by special resolution⁴ supported by a solvency statement⁵; but it may not do so if as a result of the reduction there would no longer be any member of the company⁶ holding shares⁷ other than redeemable shares⁸.

In any case, the reduction by a limited company of its share capital requires a special resolution⁹ confirmed by the court¹⁰ in accordance with¹¹ the statutory provisions¹².

The statutory provisions that govern such a reduction¹³ have effect¹⁴ subject to any provision of the company's articles¹⁵ restricting or prohibiting the reduction of the company's share capital¹⁶, and subject to the proviso regarding the holding of shares other than redeemable shares¹⁷. The Secretary of State¹⁸ may by regulations¹⁹ modify the statutory provisions²⁰ relating to reduction of capital²¹.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 relating to the reduction of a company's share capital²² apply²³ as if the share premium account²⁴ were part of its paid up share capital²⁵, as if the redenomination reserve²⁶ were paid up share capital²⁷, and as if the capital redemption reserve²⁸ were paid up share capital of the company²⁹.

2 As to the meaning of 'company limited by shares' see PARA 102.

3 In accordance with the Companies Act 2006 Pt 17 Ch 10 (ss 641-653) (see also PARA 1174 et seq). As to the meaning of 'share capital' see PARA 1042. Nothing in Pt 17 Ch 10 applies to a reduction of capital in accordance with s 626 (see PARA 1170); s 626(6). The directors of the company: (1) may take any steps necessary to enable the company to comply with s 662 (see PARA 1200), and may do so without complying with the provisions of Pt 17 Ch 10 (s 662(4)); and (2) may take any steps required to enable the company to cancel its shares under s 629 (see PARA 1253) without complying with the provisions of Pt 17 Ch 10 (s 629(5)). As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478.

Where shares in a limited company are redeemed, the redeemed shares are cancelled and the amount of the company's issued share capital is diminished accordingly by the nominal value of the shares redeemed: see the Companies Act 2006 s 688; and PARA 1232. A reduction of capital will normally amount to a disposal of an interest in the shares affected for the purpose of capital gains tax: see the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992 ss 122, 126-129; and CAPITAL GAINS TAXATION vol 5(1) (2004 Reissue) PARAS 295, 323.

Capital may also be reduced in effect by the exercise by a private company of its power to purchase or redeem its shares out of capital (see PARA 1244) but this scheme is subject to stringent statutory controls and provision is made for objections by members and creditors to the court (see PARA 1249).

4 As to the meaning of 'special resolution' see PARA 614. As to when the resolution has effect see PARA 1179. A special resolution under the Companies Act 2006 s 641 may not provide for a reduction of share capital to take effect later than the date on which the resolution has effect in accordance with Pt 17 Ch 10: s 641(5).

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(viii) Reduction of Share Capital/B. PRIVATE COMPANIES: REDUCTION BY SOLVENCY STATEMENT/1178. Reduction of capital supported by solvency statement.

B. PRIVATE COMPANIES: REDUCTION BY SOLVENCY STATEMENT

1178. Reduction of capital supported by solvency statement.

A resolution for reducing the share capital of a private company¹ limited by shares² is supported by a solvency statement if the directors³ of the company make a statement of the solvency of the company⁴ (a 'solvency statement') not more than 15 days before the date on which the resolution is passed, and the resolution and solvency statement are registered⁵.

- 2107 (1) has formed the opinion, as regards the company's situation at the date of the statement, that there is no ground on which the company could then be found to be unable to pay (or otherwise discharge) its debts⁷; and
- 2108 (2) has also formed the opinion, if it is intended to commence the winding up of the company within 12 months of that date, that the company will be able to pay, or otherwise discharge, its debts in full within 12 months of the commencement of the winding up⁸, or in any other case, that the company will be able to pay, or otherwise discharge, its debts as they fall due during the year immediately following that date⁹.

In forming those opinions, the directors must take into account all of the company's liabilities, including any contingent or prospective liabilities¹⁰. The solvency statement must be in the prescribed form¹¹ and must state the date on which it is made, and the name of each director of the company¹².

If the directors make a solvency statement without having reasonable grounds for the opinions expressed in it, and the statement is delivered to the registrar, an offence is committed by every director who is in default¹³.

Where the resolution is proposed as a written resolution, a copy of the solvency statement must be sent or submitted to every eligible member¹⁴ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him¹⁵; and where the resolution is proposed at a general meeting, a copy of the solvency statement must be made available for inspection by members of the company throughout that meeting¹⁶. The validity of a resolution is not, however, affected by a failure to comply¹⁷ with these requirements¹⁸.

The above provisions have effect subject to any provision of the company's articles¹⁹ restricting or prohibiting the reduction of the company's share capital²⁰, and subject to the proviso that a company may not reduce its capital if as a result of the reduction there would no longer be any member of the company holding shares other than redeemable shares²¹.

Within 15 days after the resolution for reducing share capital¹ is passed the company² must deliver to the registrar³ a copy of the solvency statement⁴ and a statement of capital⁵. The statement of capital must state with respect to the company's share capital as reduced by the resolution⁶:

- 2109 (1) the total number of shares⁷ of the company⁸;
- 2110 (2) the aggregate nominal value of those shares⁹;
- 2111 (3) for each class of shares¹⁰, prescribed particulars¹¹ of the rights attached to the shares¹², the total number of shares of that class¹³, and the aggregate nominal value of shares of that class¹⁴; and
- 2112 (4) the amount paid up and the amount, if any, unpaid on each share, whether on account of the nominal value of the share or by way of premium¹⁵.

The registrar must register the documents so delivered to him¹⁶ on receipt¹⁷; and the resolution does not take effect until those documents are registered¹⁸.

The company must also deliver to the registrar, within 15 days after the resolution is passed, a statement by the directors¹⁹ confirming that the solvency statement was made not more than 15 days before the date on which the resolution was passed, and was duly provided²⁰ to members²¹.

The validity of a resolution is not, however, affected by a failure to deliver the documents required to be delivered to the registrar²² within the specified time²³, or by a failure to comply with the duty²⁴ to deliver the directors' statement²⁵.

If the company delivers to the registrar a solvency statement that was not duly provided to members²⁶, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default²⁷; and if default is made in complying with the above provisions, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²⁸.

(A) IN GENERAL

1180. Procedure.

Where a limited company having a share capital¹ has passed a special resolution for reducing share capital², it may apply to the court³ for an order confirming the reduction⁴. This procedure applies equally to the reduction of the share premium account⁵, the reduction of the capital redemption reserve⁶ and the reduction of the redenomination reserve⁷.

In the case of an application to confirm a reduction in capital, if any shares were issued otherwise than for cash⁸, then for any shares so issued on or after 1 January 1901, it is sufficient to set out in the application the extent to which the shares are, or are treated as being, paid up⁹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(20) SHARE CAPITAL/(viii) Reduction of Share Capital/C. ALL CASES: REDUCTION BY COURT ORDER/(B) Role of the Court/1181. Confirmation by the court.

(B) ROLE OF THE COURT

1181. Confirmation by the court.

In the case of a reduction of capital which must be confirmed by the court¹, the court has a discretion whether to do so². Where the reduction does not involve the diminution of liability on any shares or the return of paid up capital to any shareholder, the only question for the court is whether the proposed reduction is fair and equitable as between the different classes of shareholders³. The fairness of a proposed reduction is a matter to be decided by the court on the evidence before it⁴.

Speaking generally, a reduction of capital need not be spread equally or rateably over all the shares of the company⁵. If there is nothing unfair or inequitable in the transaction, the shares of one or more shareholders may be extinguished without affecting other shares of the same or a different class⁶, although a reduction which does not provide for uniform treatment of shareholders whose rights are similar is narrowly scrutinised⁷.

The court can confirm a reduction even if there is a factual error in the resolution for reducing capital, provided that it is so insignificant that no one could be thought to be prejudiced by its correction⁸.

The court may also confirm a reduction even if the voting powers of the members or their priorities are affected by it, or the scheme involves the extinction of liability in respect of arrears of preference dividends⁹.

The decision that the power to confirm a reduction of capital affecting only some of the shares is legal (Re Gatling Gun Ltd (1890) 43 ChD 628) has been approved by the House of Lords (British and American Trustee and Finance Corp v Couper [1894] AC 399, where the reduction involved the cancellation of the shares of all the American shareholders, who were to take over the American investments of the company in consideration for which the company, which would then consist only of English shareholders, was to retain the English assets). More recently in Re Robert Stephen Holdings Ltd [1968] 1 All ER 195n, [1968] 1 WLR 522, it was stated that the better practice in such cases where one part of a class is to be treated differently from another part of the same class (unless all the shareholders consent) is to proceed by way of a compromise or arrangement under what is now the Companies Act 2006 Pt 26 (ss 895-901) (see PARA 1425 et seq), as this affords better protection to a non-assenting minority. In that case the court did confirm the reduction despite its affecting shareholders of the same class in different ways but no shareholder appeared to oppose the confirmation.

1182. Reduction where shares of different classes.

In the case of a reduction of capital lost or unrepresented by available assets¹, the reduction should prima facie, as between preference shares having a priority as to return of capital in winding up, and shares deferred in this respect, be effected at the expense of the latter². A reduction is not, however, necessarily made on this basis where the preference shareholders under a power in the articles consent, as part of the scheme, to a modification of their rights as to capital³. All-round reductions are also confirmed where the preference shares confer only a priority as to dividends⁴.

The fact that losses are, in case of winding up, to be borne by members in proportion to the amount paid up on their shares does not require the court to apply the same principle on a reduction as between shares of the same class with different amounts paid up on them⁵.

Where surplus capital is being returned, the repayment should prima facie, as between preference shares having a priority as to the return of capital in winding up, and shares deferred in this respect, be effected at the expense of the former⁶.

Where the sole reason for reduction is the fact that capital is lost or unrepresented by available assets, the court requires evidence of such loss¹ and that it is permanent². If, however, there are other valid reasons for reduction, it is immaterial that the reduction is not exactly commensurate with the loss or deficiency of assets, a reduction beyond the loss by the company being within the general words of the Companies Act 2006³.

1 If reliance is placed upon a valuation to prove the value of a particular asset, the court will as a general rule require an affidavit by the valuer to the effect that the value shown by his valuation (which should be exhibited) is in his opinion fair and proper: Practice Direction [1947] WN 116. If the amount of capital to be written off as lost is more than the amount of proved loss, the court may, and probably will, direct an inquiry as to creditors. It has been held that it is unnecessary to prove that capital has been lost, or is unrepresented by available assets: Re Louisiana and Southern States Real Estate and Mortgage Co [1909] 2 Ch 552. The real effect of Poole v National Bank of China Ltd is probably that the courts need not be so strict as formerly in requiring evidence that the capital is lost or unrepresented by available assets. See Caldwell v Caldwell & Co (Papermakers) Ltd [1916] WN 70 at 70, HL, per Lord Parker of Waddington (where the reduction of capital was based on the ground that capital had been lost or was unrepresented by available assets, it was, though not necessary, at any rate wise and prudent to insist on some evidence of the fact). The approach in Caldwell v Caldwell & Co (Papermakers) Ltd has become the modern practice.

1184. Reductions which the court will not confirm.

The court has refused to confirm a reduction by the surrender of paid up deferred shares the holders of which were to receive a larger amount in paid up ordinary shares, by which amount the capital was to be increased¹; and a reduction scheme to wipe out the deficiency caused by an illegal allotment of shares at a discount². The court may well refuse to confirm any reduction where the resolution for reducing the share capital is not for any discernible purpose but is simply an act in a vacuum³.

Where the reduction involves the diminution of liability on any shares or the return of paid up capital, the court must see that the interests of creditors are safeguarded, but, subject to this, the questions for consideration are the same as if there were no such diminution or return¹. The fact that the reduction may have an ulterior motive is irrelevant², unless it is simply a device to avoid the payment of tax³.

The court has sanctioned: a return of capital in excess of the needs of the company even though a part of the portion returned was to be borrowed immediately by the company from the shareholders on the security of debentures⁴; a return of capital to be satisfied by the issue of debenture stock⁵; and a return made upon the footing that it may be called up again⁶. The actual return of the excess capital should not be made until after the order confirming the reduction and approving the minute has been made⁷. If the capital is not returned, the right of the shareholders to claim it will be barred after 12 years from the date of the notice of the order confirming the reduction⁸. It is not necessary that on a return of capital the shareholders should receive cash⁹.

REDUCTION BY COURT ORDER/(B) Role of the Court/1186. Reduction and variation of class rights.

The cancellation of a particular class of shares and the return of the capital paid up thereon does not require the separate consent of the holders of the shares of that class unless it involves a variation of the rights attaching to those shares; and such cancellation and return of capital while the company is a going concern does not constitute a variation of the rights attached to the shares if the return of capital is made strictly in accordance with those rights on a winding up¹. Shareholders may be protected against the risk of reduction in this way without their consent by a provision in the articles of association².

If a scheme of reduction does vary or abrogate class rights, despite the generality of the court's power to confirm³ (and some suggestions to the contrary in older cases⁴), it is unlikely that the court would now confirm a reduction without the appropriate class consent having been obtained⁵.

This is so even if the preference shareholders also have further rights of participation as regards dividend: Re Saltdean Estate Co Ltd. It is not clear whether preference shares which are participating as to surplus on a winding up could be dealt with in this way although Re William Jones & Sons Ltd [1969] 1 All ER 913, [1969] 1 WLR 146 suggests that they can. In that instance, however, the preference shareholders raised no objection to being paid off, probably because they were to be paid off in full, although the shares stood at less than par. Moreover, there was no present prospect of the company being wound up so any enjoyment of surplus on a winding up would not occur for many years.

The Companies Act 2006¹ does not retain the requirement for prior authorisation of a reduction in capital to be given by a company's articles of association² which was contained in the Companies Act 1985³. If it wishes, however, a company may restrict or prohibit the reduction of its share capital by making provision to this effect in its articles; and the relevant statutory provisions⁴ have effect⁵ subject to any such provision⁶.

If the company is governed by Table A of those legacy articles, Schedule, Table A art 34 (disapplied by Schedule, Table E art 1 in relation to an unlimited company having a share capital) authorises the company by special resolution to reduce its capital. The company may by ordinary resolution cancel shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person and diminish the amount of its share capital by the amount of the shares so cancelled: Schedule, Table A art 32(d) (also so disapplied). As to the reduction of capital by unlimited companies see PARA 1177.

The Companies Act 1862 (repealed) did not expressly provide for any reduction of capital, but Sch 1, Table A arts 17-22 enabled the directors of companies regulated by the Table to forfeit shares on non-payment of calls. This forfeiture worked a reduction of capital not provided for in the body of that Act, but, as it had legislative sanction, it was undoubtedly legal, and similar provisions in the articles of association of companies which had not adopted Table A were also lawful and effective: Trevor v Whitworth (1887) 12 App Cas 409 at 417, HL, per Lord Herschell; Lock v Queensland Investment and Land Mortgage Co [1896] AC 461, HL. Settling list of creditors.

If there are creditors entitled to object to a reduction of share capital¹, the court² must settle a list of those creditors³. The court may, however, if having regard to any special circumstances⁴ of the case it thinks proper to do so, direct that the statutory provisions relating to the creditors' right to object and the settling of a list of creditors⁵ are not to apply as regards any class or classes of creditors⁶. It is common practice for the company to offer certain undertakings⁷ to secure the consent of creditors, thereby obviating the necessity of settling a list.

For the purpose of settling a list of creditors the court must ascertain, as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims⁸ and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction of capital⁹. If a creditor entered on the list whose debt or claim is not discharged or has not determined does not consent to the reduction, the court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor on the company securing payment¹⁰ of his debt or claim¹¹.

In considering whether to dispense with the list of creditors, the court will consider whether a company holds sufficient cash and gilt-edged securities to cover all provable liabilities with a reasonable margin of safety as well as the amount which it is proposed to be returned to the shareholders, although its consideration is not limited to cash and gilt-edged securities; it may also take into account sums due to a company by its sundry debtors provided that such sums have been written down so as to exclude bad debts: Re House of Fraser plc [1987] BCLC 293, Ct of Sess; Anderson Brown & Co Ltd, Petitioners 1965 SC 81, Ct of Sess; Re Lucania Temperance Billiard Halls (London) Ltd [1966] Ch 98, [1965] 3 All ER 879. 1190. Liability to creditor omitted from list of creditors.

Where, in the case of a reduction of capital confirmed by the court¹, a creditor entitled to object to the reduction of share capital² is by reason of his ignorance of the proceedings for reduction of share capital, or of their nature and effect with respect to his debt or claim, not entered on the list of creditors³, and after the reduction of capital the company is unable to pay the amount of his debt or claim⁴, the following provisions apply⁵. Every person who was a member⁶ of the company⁷ at the date on which the resolution for reducing capital took effect⁸ is liable to contribute for the payment of the debt or claim an amount not exceeding that which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that date⁹.

If the company is wound up, the court on the application of the creditor in question, and proof of ignorance as mentioned above, may if it thinks fit settle accordingly a list of persons liable to contribute under these provisions, and may make and enforce calls and orders on them as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding up¹⁰.

(D) ORDER CONFIRMING REDUCTION

The court¹ may make an order confirming the reduction of capital² on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit³. The court may, if for any special reason it thinks proper to do so, make an order directing that the company⁴ must, during such period, commencing on or at any time after the date of the order, as is specified in the order, add to its name as its last words the words 'and reduced'; and if such an order is made, those words are, until the end of the period specified in the order, deemed to be part of the company's name⁵. Where the court confirms the reduction, it may also order the company to publish, as the court directs, the reasons for reduction of capital, or such other information in regard to it as the court thinks expedient with a view to giving proper information to the public, and, if the court thinks fit, the causes that led to the reduction⁶.

The court must not, however, confirm the reduction unless it is satisfied, with respect to every creditor of the company who is entitled to object to the reduction of capital⁷ that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained⁸ or his debt or claim has been discharged, or has determined or has been secured⁹. If there are no creditors entitled to object, the court may make an order without regard to creditors, unless they can show a strong case¹⁰.

An application to the court to confirm the reduction does not amount to ordinary adversarial litigation, since the court has to be satisfied that it is right to sanction the reduction even if the application is unopposed¹¹.

Registration of order and statement of capital.

1193. Registration of order and statement of capital.

The registrar¹, on production of an order of the court² confirming the reduction of a company's³ share capital⁴ and the delivery of a copy of the order and of a statement of capital approved by the court⁵, must register the order and statement⁶. The statement of capital must state with respect to the company's share capital as altered by the order⁷:

2115 (3) for each class of shares¹¹, prescribed particulars¹² of the rights attached to the shares¹³, the total number of shares of that class¹⁴, and the aggregate nominal value of shares of that class¹⁵; and

2116 (4) the amount paid up and the amount, if any, unpaid on each share, whether on account of the nominal value of the share or by way of premium¹⁶.

The resolution for reducing share capital¹⁷, as confirmed by the court's order, takes effect, in the case of a reduction of share capital that forms part of a compromise or arrangement¹⁸ sanctioned by the court under Part 26 of the Companies Act 2006¹⁹, on delivery of the order and statement of capital to the registrar, or, if the court so orders, on the registration of the order and statement of capital²⁰. In any other case the resolution takes effect on the registration of the order and statement of capital²¹.

Notice of the registration of the order and statement of capital must be published in such manner as the court may direct²²; and the registrar must certify²³ the registration of the order and statement of capital²⁴.

1194. Public company reducing capital below authorised minimum.

Where the court¹ makes an order confirming a reduction of a public company's capital² that has the effect of bringing the nominal value of its allotted share capital³ below the authorised minimum⁴, the registrar⁵ must not register the order⁶ unless either the court so directs, or the company is first re-registered as a private company⁷. An expedited procedure for re-registration is provided for⁸ in these circumstances⁹.

The court may authorise the company to be re-registered as a private company without its having passed the special resolution normally required¹⁰; and if it does so, the court must specify in the order the changes to the company's name¹¹ and articles¹² to be made in connection with the re-registration¹³. The company may then be re-registered as a private company if an application to that effect is delivered to the registrar together with a copy of the court's order and notice of the company's name, and a copy of the company's articles, as altered by the court's order¹⁴. On receipt of such an application the registrar must issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case¹⁵. The certificate must state that it is issued on re-registration and the date on which it is issued¹⁶. On the issue of the certificate, the company by virtue of the issue of the certificate becomes a private company, and the changes in the company's name and articles take effect¹⁷.

A reserve arising from the reduction of a company's¹ share capital is not distributable, subject to any provision made by order under these provisions². The Secretary of State³ may by order⁴ specify cases in which the above prohibition does not apply, and the reserve is to be treated for the purposes of the statutory provisions relating to distributions⁵ as a realised profit⁶.

The Companies (Reduction of Share Capital) Order 2008⁷ provides that the above prohibition⁸ does not apply if an unlimited company⁹ reduces its share capital¹⁰, or if a private company limited by shares¹¹ reduces its share capital and the reduction is supported by a solvency statement¹² but has not been the subject of an application to the court for an order confirming it¹³. In either case, a reserve arising from the reduction is to be treated¹⁴ as a realised profit¹⁵. Further, if a limited company¹⁶ having a share capital¹⁷ reduces its share capital and the reduction is confirmed by order of the court¹⁸, the above prohibition does not apply, and a reserve arising from the reduction is to be treated¹⁹ as a realised profit unless the court orders²⁰ otherwise²¹. These provisions are without prejudice to any contrary provision of an order of, or undertaking given to, the court, the resolution for, or any other resolution relevant to, the reduction of share capital, or the company's memorandum²² or articles of association²³.

(i) Rules regarding Company acquiring own Shares

A. GENERAL RULE

1197. General rule against limited company acquiring its own shares.

A limited company¹ must not acquire its own shares, whether by purchase, subscription or otherwise, except in accordance with Part 18² of the Companies Act 2006³. If a company purports to act in contravention of this prohibition, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default⁴, and the purported acquisition is void⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'limited company' see PARA 102.

2 Ie the Companies Act 2006 Pt 18 (ss 658-737) (see PARA 1197 et seq). As to exceptions to the general rule see PARA 1198.

This provision gives statutory force to Trevor v Whitworth (1887) 12 App Cas 409, HL (see also PARA 1222); Kirby v Wilkins [1929] 2 Ch 444; Vision Express (UK) Ltd v Wilson [1995] 2 BCLC 419. The Companies Act 2006 s 658 does not prohibit a company from acquiring the shares of another company (the 'acquired company') in circumstances where the sole asset of the acquired company is shares in the acquiring company: Acatos & Hutcheson plc v Watson [1995] 1 BCLC 218 (in view of the potential for abuse, the court will look carefully, however, at the transaction to ensure that the directors have fulfilled their fiduciary duties to safeguard the interests of shareholders and creditors alike). A person guilty of an offence under s 658 is liable: (1) on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine, or both; and (2) on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum, or both: s 658(3). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 1622. In relation to an offence committed before the coming into force of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1) (not yet in force), the maximum term of imprisonment on summary conviction is six months: see the Companies Act 2006 s 1131.

- 2117 (1) the acquisition of shares in a reduction of capital duly made⁵;
- 2118 (2) the purchase of shares in pursuance of an order of the court⁶;
- 2119 (3) the forfeiture of shares, or the acceptance of shares surrendered in lieu, in pursuance of the company's articles⁷, for failure to pay any sum payable in respect of the shares⁸.

Shares held by company's nominee.

B. SHARES HELD BY COMPANY'S NOMINEE

1199. Shares held by company's nominee.

Where shares in a limited company¹: (1) are taken by a subscriber to the memorandum² as nominee of the company³; (2) are issued to a nominee of the company⁴; or (3) are acquired by a nominee of the company, partly paid up⁵, from a third person⁶ then, for all purposes, the shares are to be treated as held by the nominee on his own account⁷, and the company is to be regarded as having no beneficial interest in them⁸.

The provision set out above does not apply to shares acquired otherwise than by subscription by a nominee of a public company⁹, where a person acquires shares in the company with financial assistance given to him, directly or indirectly, by the company for the purpose of or in connection with the acquisition, and the company has a beneficial interest in the shares¹⁰. Nor does it apply to shares acquired by a nominee of the company when the company has no beneficial interest in the shares¹¹.

Where shares in a limited company satisfy the conditions in heads (1) to (3) above, if the nominee, having been called on to pay any amount for the purposes of paying up, or paying any premium on, the shares, fails to pay that amount within 21 days from being called on to do so, then: (a) in the case of shares that he agreed to take as subscriber to the memorandum, the other subscribers to the memorandum; and (b) in any other case, the directors of the company when the shares were issued to or acquired by him, are jointly and severally liable with him to pay that amount¹². If in proceedings for the recovery of the amount it appears to the court that the subscriber or director has acted honestly and reasonably and, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, ought fairly to be relieved from liability, the court may relieve him, either wholly or in part, from his liability on such terms as the court thinks fit¹³. If a subscriber to a company's memorandum or a director of a company has reason to apprehend that a claim will or might be made for the recovery of any such amount from him, he may apply to the court for relief, and the court has the same power to relieve him as it would have had in proceedings for recovery of that amount¹⁴.

C. SHARES HELD BY OR FOR PUBLIC COMPANY

The following provisions apply in the case of a public company¹:

- 2120 (1) where shares² in the company are forfeited³, or surrendered to the company in lieu of forfeiture⁴, in pursuance of the articles⁵, for failure to pay any sum payable in respect of the shares⁶;
- 2121 (2) where shares in the company are surrendered to the company in pursuance the Building Societies Act 1986⁷;
- 2122 (3) where shares in the company are acquired by it⁸ and the company has a beneficial interest in the shares⁹;
- 2123 (4) where a nominee of the company acquires shares in the company from a third party without financial assistance being given directly or indirectly by the company and the company has a beneficial interest in the shares¹⁰; or
- 2124 (5) where a person acquires shares in the company, with financial assistance given to him, directly or indirectly, by the company for the purpose of or in connection with the acquisition¹¹, and the company has a beneficial interest in the shares¹².

Unless the shares or any interest of the company in them are previously disposed of, the company must, no later than the relevant period from their forfeiture, surrender or acquisition¹³, cancel the shares and diminish the amount of the company's share capital¹⁴ by the nominal¹⁵ value of the shares cancelled¹⁶. The company must also, where the effect is that the nominal value of the company's allotted¹⁷ share capital is brought below the authorised minimum¹⁸, apply for re-registration as a private company¹⁹, stating the effect of the cancellation²⁰. The directors of the company may take any steps necessary to enable the company to comply with this section, and may do so without complying with the normal statutory requirements²¹ relating to the reduction of capital²².

Neither the company nor, in a case within head (4) or head (5) above, the nominee or other shareholder may exercise any voting rights in respect of the shares²³. Any purported exercise of those rights is void²⁴.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(21) ACQUISITION BY LIMITED COMPANY OF ITS OWN SHARES/(i) Rules regarding Company acquiring own Shares/C. SHARES HELD BY OR FOR PUBLIC COMPANY/1201. Interests to be disregarded: whether company has beneficial interest.

1201. Interests to be disregarded: whether company has beneficial interest.

In determining whether a company¹ has a beneficial interest in shares², there are three special cases which fall for consideration³:

- 2125 (1) a company's residual interests⁴ under pension⁵ and employees' share schemes⁶;
- 2126 (2) employer's charges and other rights of recovery⁷; and
- 2127 (3) a trustee's right to expenses, remuneration and indemnity⁸.

Where shares in a company are held on trust for the purposes of a pension scheme or an employees' share scheme, there is to be disregarded any residual interest of the company which has not vested in possession⁹. For these purposes, a 'residual interest' means a right¹⁰ of the company to receive any of the trust property in the event of¹¹:

- 2128 (a) all the liabilities¹² arising under the scheme having been satisfied or provided for¹³; or
- 2129 (b) the company ceasing to participate in the scheme¹⁴; or
- 2130 (c) the trust property at any time exceeding what is necessary for satisfying the liabilities arising or expected to arise under the scheme¹⁵.

A residual interest vests in possession¹⁶, in a case within head (a) above, on the occurrence of the event there mentioned, whether or not the amount of the property receivable pursuant to the right is ascertained¹⁷; and, in a case within head (b) or head (c) above, when the company becomes entitled to require the trustee to transfer to it any of the property receivable pursuant to that right¹⁸.

Where, by virtue of the legislation set out above, shares are exempt from the provisions relating to shares held by a company's nominee¹⁹ at the time they are taken, issued or acquired but the residual interest in question vests in possession before they are disposed of or fully paid up, those provisions apply to the shares as if they had been taken, issued or acquired on the date on which that interest vests in possession²⁰.

Where, by virtue of the legislation set out above, shares are exempt from the provisions relating to shares held by or for a public company²¹ at the time they are acquired but the residual interest in question vests in possession before they are disposed of, those provisions apply to the shares as if they had been acquired on the date on which the interest vests in possession²².

Where the shares are held on trust for the purposes of a pension scheme there must be disregarded²³:

- 2131 (i) any charge or lien on, or set-off against, any benefit or other right or interest under the scheme for the purpose of enabling the employer or former employer of a member of the scheme to obtain the discharge of a monetary obligation due to him from the member²⁴;
- 2132 (ii) any right to receive from the trustee of the scheme, or as trustee of the scheme to retain, an amount that can be recovered or retained under the Pension Schemes Act 1993²⁵ or otherwise, as reimbursement or partial reimbursement for any contributions equivalent premium paid in connection with the scheme under Part 3 of that Act²⁶.

Where the shares are held on trust for the purposes of an employees' share scheme, there is to be disregarded any charge or lien on, or set-off against, any benefit or other right or interest under the scheme for the purpose of enabling the employer or former employer of a member of the scheme to obtain the discharge of a monetary obligation due to him from the member²⁷.

Where the company is a personal representative or trustee, there is to be disregarded any rights that the company has in that capacity including, in particular, any right to recover its expenses or be remunerated out of the estate or trust property, and any right to be indemnified out of that property for any liability incurred by reason of any act or omission of the company in the performance of its duties as personal representative or trustee²⁸.

3 See the Companies Act 2006 s 671.

Re-registration in consequence of cancellation.

1203. Re-registration in consequence of cancellation.

Where a public company¹ is obliged² to re-register as a private company³, the directors may resolve that the company should be so re-registered⁴. The resolution may make such changes in the company's name, and in the company's articles, as are necessary in connection with its becoming a private company⁵.

The application for re-registration must contain a statement of the company's proposed name on re-registration⁶. The application must be accompanied by a copy of the resolution⁷, a copy of the company's articles as amended by the resolution, and a statement of compliance⁸, which must state that the statutory requirements⁹ as to re-registration as a private company have been complied with¹⁰. The registrar¹¹ may accept the statement of compliance as sufficient evidence that the company is entitled to be re-registered as a private company¹².

If the registrar is satisfied that the company is entitled to be re-registered as a private company, the company must be re-registered accordingly¹³. The registrar must issue a certificate of incorporation¹⁴, altered to meet the circumstances of the case¹⁵, which must state that it is issued on re-registration and the date on which it is issued¹⁶. On the issue of the certificate the company by virtue of the issue of the certificate becomes a private company, and the changes in the company's name and articles take effect¹⁷. The certificate is conclusive evidence that the requirements of the Companies Act 2006 as to re-registration have been complied with¹⁸.

If a public company that is required¹⁹ to apply to be re-registered as a private company fails to do so before the end of the specified period²⁰, the statutory prohibition of public offers by private companies²¹ applies to it as if it were a private company²². Subject to that, the company continues to be treated as a public company until it is so re-registered²³.

Where, after shares in a private company:

- 2137 (1) are forfeited in pursuance of the company's articles or are surrendered to the company in lieu of forfeiture²⁴;
- 2138 (2) are acquired by the company²⁵, the company having a beneficial interest in the shares²⁶;
- 2139 (3) are acquired by a nominee of the company from a third party without financial assistance being given directly or indirectly by the company, the company having a beneficial interest in the shares²⁷; or
- 2140 (4) are acquired by a person with financial assistance given to him, directly or indirectly, by the company for the purpose of or in connection with the acquisition, the company having a beneficial interest in the shares²⁸, the company is re-registered as a public company²⁹, then the provisions set out above³⁰ apply to the company as if it had been a public company at the time of the forfeiture, surrender or acquisition, subject to certain modifications³¹.

D. COMPANY'S LIEN ON SHARES

1206. Company's lien on shares.

Where there is an agreement to this effect, or the articles of association so provide¹, a company may have a lien on a member's shares for money owing² by him to the company. Where fully paid shares³ are, under the original articles, exempt from lien, the articles may be altered⁴ so as to subject the existing fully paid shares to the lien with respect to existing debts⁵; but, if the company has already proved in the bankruptcy of the shareholder, it will not be allowed to set up a lien acquired subsequent to the bankruptcy⁶.

1 See Re Kingstown Yacht Club (1888) 21 LR Ir 199; Allen v Gold Reefs of West Africa Ltd [1900] 1 Ch 656, CA (where a lien was held good against executors). Where no express lien is conferred, but shares may be forfeited if money due in respect of them is not paid, the company has no lien: Re Dunlop, Dunlop v Dunlop (1882) 21 ChD 583, CA; Re Kingstown Yacht Club.

The Companies Act 1862 Sch 1, Table A (repealed) (see PARA 18) did not give any express lien on shares, but art 10 (repealed) empowered the company to decline to register a transfer of shares to a person 'indebted to them', and 'indebted' meant on any account whatever, and either solely or jointly with other persons: Ex p Stringer (1882) 9 QBD 436; Re Bentham Mills Spinning Co (1879) 11 ChD 900, CA. Such a power does not create a lien and does not enable the company to obtain priority over an equitable charge created by the shareholder over his shares: Bank of NT Butterfield & Son Ltd v Golinsky [1926] AC 733, PC. Articles of association usually give a much more extensive lien actively enforceable by sale of the shares; such a power of sale does not of itself authorise the company to sell the shares otherwise than in accordance with articles conferring a right of pre-emption on the other shareholders: Champagne Perrier-Jouet SA v HH Finch Ltd [1982] 3 All ER 713, [1982] 1 WLR 1359.

The model articles of association contained in the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, expressly provide for the company to have a paramount lien on every share which is partly paid. Accordingly, the company has a lien (the 'company's lien') over every share which is partly paid for any part of that share's nominal value, and any premium at which it was issued, which has not been paid to the company, and which is payable immediately or at some time in the future, whether or not a call notice has been sent in respect of it: reg 4, Sch 3 art 52(1). The company's lien over a share takes priority over any third party's interest in that share, and extends to any dividend or other money payable by the company in respect of that share and (if the lien is enforced and the share is sold by the company) the proceeds of sale of that share: Sch 3 art 52(2). The directors may at any time decide that a share which is or would otherwise be subject to the company's lien shall not be subject to it, either wholly or in part: Sch 3 art 52(3). The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, make similar provision. Accordingly, the company has a first and paramount lien on every share (not being a fully paid share) for all moneys (whether presently payable or not) payable at a fixed time or called in respect of that share; the directors may at any time declare any share to be wholly or in part exempt from these provisions; and the company's lien on a share extends to any amount payable in respect of it: reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 8. Enforcement of the company's lien is subject to the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3 art 53 and the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 9-11, respectively. (See also PARA 1210).

As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 8-11 are applied by Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital) but are disapplied by Table C art 1 (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital). The lien extends to any moneys receivable by the shareholder in respect of the shares in a winding up¹. The lien is a security within the meaning of an article which forbids the making of loans to shareholders without sufficient security².

If articles of association³ give a company a paramount lien on shares held by a group of people in respect of all moneys owing to the company by any of the holders, alone or jointly with any other persons, the company is entitled to a lien on shares held by trustees in respect of debts due to the company by a firm, of which one of such trustees is a member, paramount to the claims of the beneficiaries⁴.

The company has no lien for debts due from beneficiaries who are not registered holders of shares⁵, and cannot alter its register of shareholders by substituting their names for those of the trustees⁶.

A lien on shares may be discharged by a new arrangement between the company and the shareholder, the terms of which are incompatible with retention of the lien, or which show an intention to waive it⁴.

1210. Provision made in articles for enforcement of company's lien.

The model articles of association¹ provide for a company's lien over partly paid shares and for the enforcement of that lien². Accordingly³, if a lien enforcement notice has been given in respect of a share, and the person to whom the notice was given has failed to comply with it, the company may sell that share in such manner as the directors decide⁴. A lien enforcement notice: (1) may only be given in respect of a share which is subject to the company's lien, in respect of which a sum is payable and the due date for payment of that sum has passed⁵; (2) must specify the share concerned⁶; (3) must require payment of the sum payable within 14 days of the notice⁷; (4) must be addressed either to the holder of the share or to a person entitled to it by reason of the holder's death, bankruptcy or otherwise⁸; and (5) must state the company's intention to sell the share if the notice is not complied with⁹.

Where shares are sold in this way¹⁰, the directors may authorise any person to execute an instrument of transfer of the shares to the purchaser or a person nominated by the purchaser, and the transferee is not bound to see to the application of the consideration, and the transferee's title is not affected by any irregularity in or invalidity of the process leading to the sale¹¹.

The net proceeds of any such sale (after payment of the costs of sale and any other costs of enforcing the lien) must be applied, first, in payment of so much of the sum for which the lien exists as was payable at the date of the lien enforcement notice and, second, to the person entitled to the shares at the date of the sale, but only after the certificate for the shares sold has been surrendered to the company for cancellation or a suitable indemnity has been given for any lost certificates, and subject to a lien equivalent to the company's lien over the shares before the sale for any money payable in respect of the shares after the date of the lien enforcement notice¹².

A statutory declaration by a director or the company secretary that the declarant is a director or the company secretary and that a share has been sold to satisfy the company's lien on a specified date is conclusive evidence of the facts stated in it as against all persons claiming to be entitled to the share and, subject to compliance with any other formalities of transfer required by the articles or by law, constitutes a good title to the share¹³.

Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. Charges of public companies on own shares.

A lien or other charge¹ of a public company² on its own shares³ (whether taken expressly or otherwise) except a charge permitted by any of the following provisions, is void⁴.

In the case of any description of company⁵, a charge on its own shares is permitted if the shares are not fully paid up and the charge is for an amount payable in respect of the shares⁶. In the case of a company whose ordinary business includes the lending of money⁷, or consists of the provision of credit or the bailment of goods under a hire purchase agreement⁸, or both⁹, a charge of the company on its own shares is permitted, whether the shares are fully paid or not, if it arises in connection with a transaction entered into by the company in the ordinary course of that business¹⁰. In the case of a company that has been re-registered as a public company¹¹, a charge on its own shares is permitted if the charge was in existence immediately before the company's application for re-registration¹².

E. MORTGAGES OF SHARES

A valid security may be given on shares either by a legal¹ or an equitable² mortgage³. Where notice to the company is required, it must be given to the proper officers when conducting the business of the company⁴.

Power given by articles.

F. FORFEITURE AND SURRENDER OF SHARES

1213. Power given by articles.

Forfeiture of shares¹ may cause in effect a reduction of the capital of the company²; but the operation has statutory authority³, and does not require the confirmation by the court that is required in most other cases of reduction⁴. Under model articles of association⁵, directors⁶ may issue a notice of intended forfeiture to any person who is liable to pay a call⁷ and who fails to do so by the call payment date and, until the call is paid, that person must pay the company interest on the call from the call payment date at the relevant rate⁸. If a notice of intended forfeiture is not complied with before the date by which payment of the call is required in the notice of intended forfeiture, the directors may decide that any share in respect of which it was given is forfeited, and the forfeiture is to include all dividends or other moneys payable in respect of the forfeited shares and not paid before the forfeiture⁹. Subject to the articles, the forfeiture of a share extinguishes all interests in that share, and all claims and demands against the company in respect of it, and all other rights and liabilities incidental to the share as between the person whose share it was prior to the forfeiture and the company¹⁰. A statutory declaration by a director or the company secretary that the declarant is a director or the company secretary and that a share has been forfeited on a specified date is conclusive evidence of the facts stated in it as against all persons claiming to be entitled to the share and, subject to compliance with any other formalities of transfer required by the articles or by law, constitutes a good title to the share¹¹.

Such provisions may be inserted in articles of association other than those based on the model articles¹², and the power may be given or extended by altering the articles¹³.

2 As to the reduction of a company's capital generally see PARA 1173 et seq.

3 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 4, Sch 3 Pt 4 (arts 54-62); the text and notes 7-12; and PARA 1134 note 4. Similar provision is made in the default articles that were prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles') (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805) which have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. These latter provisions are not set out in this paragraph but see the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A arts 18-22, which apply to companies limited by shares, and are applied by Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital) but are disapplied by Table C art 1 (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital).

10 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3 art 60(1). Any share which is forfeited in accordance with the articles is deemed to have been forfeited when the directors decide that it is forfeited, is deemed to be the property of the company, and may be sold, re-allotted or otherwise disposed of as the directors think fit: Sch 3 art 60(2). If a person's shares have been forfeited, the company must send that person notice that forfeiture has occurred and record it in the register of members, that person ceases to be a member in respect of those shares, that person must surrender the certificate for the shares forfeited to the company for cancellation, that person remains liable to the company for all sums payable by that person under the articles at the date of forfeiture in respect of those shares, including any interest (whether accrued before or after the date of forfeiture), and the directors may waive payment of such sums wholly or in part or enforce payment without any allowance for the value of the shares at the time of forfeiture or for any consideration received on their disposal: Sch 3 art 60(3). At any time before the company disposes of a forfeited share, the directors may decide to cancel the forfeiture on payment of all calls and interest due in respect of it and on such other terms as they think fit: Sch 3 art 60(4).

11 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3 art 61(2). If a forfeited share is to be disposed of by being transferred, the company may receive the consideration for the transfer and the directors may authorise any person to execute the instrument of transfer: Sch 3 art 61(1). A person to whom a forfeited share is transferred is not bound to see to the application of the consideration (if any) nor is that person's title to the share affected by any irregularity in or invalidity of the process leading to the forfeiture or transfer of the share: Sch 3 art 61(3). If the company sells a forfeited share, the person who held it prior to its forfeiture is entitled to receive from the company the proceeds of such sale, net of any commission, and excluding any amount which was, or would have become, payable, and had not, when that share was forfeited, been paid by that person in respect of that share, but no interest is payable to such a person in respect of such proceeds and the company is not required to account for any money earned on them: Sch 3 art 61(4).

1214. Extent of power.

The power to forfeit shares¹ is confined to the case where calls² on those shares are not paid³. Thus a power which in terms purports to empower the company⁴ to forfeit shares in order to enforce a lien for debts due from a member⁵ otherwise than in respect of calls is void⁶. If the ground of forfeiture is contrary to the policy of the law, the power is invalid; for example a purported power to forfeit the shares of a member who commences litigation against the company is void, although the article⁷ containing it also provides that the market value of the forfeited shares is to be paid to the shareholder⁸.

See also Re Bolton, ex p North British Artificial Silk Ltd [1930] 2 Ch 48 at 56-57 per Luxmoore J (where a power such as this was included, in addition to a power to forfeit for non-payment of calls, and it was held that the forfeiture was good as it was effected under the second of such powers).

1215. Exercise of power of forfeiture.

A purported forfeiture of shares¹ is invalid if it is not made for the company's benefit². When by a provision of the articles³ the company may forfeit on default in payment of calls⁴, the shareholder⁵ in default cannot insist on the provision being acted upon, even if he has received a notice that it would be⁶.

Directors⁷ elected in a voluntary winding up⁸ may be authorised to exercise the forfeiture clauses in the articles⁹. The power to forfeit is not lost by the uncalled capital being charged in favour of debenture holders¹⁰. A valid forfeiture holds good against the liquidator¹¹.

1216. Observance of conditions as to forfeiture.

In the forfeiture of shares¹, technicalities must be strictly observed². Accordingly, as against the company the shareholder may resist forfeiture on the ground that the conditions precedent to forfeiture have not been strictly complied with³; but if, as a director, he has been party to any informalities in connection with the forfeiture, he is estopped from relying on them⁴. A shareholder may rely on a forfeiture as against the company, although some formalities have not been complied with⁵. Laches on the part of the shareholder may bar the right to relief, even when the forfeiture is irregular⁶, but not when it is wholly void⁷. Where the articles provide that notice of forfeiture is to be given to the shareholder, a forfeiture, when once complete, is not made invalid by the fact that no notice is sent⁸. Articles may provide that, if there has been irregularity in the forfeiture, the remedy of the member after the shares are disposed of is to be in damages only⁹.

1217. Liability for calls.

Articles may provide that the forfeiture of shares is not to bar the company's right to recover calls then owing¹, in which case calls made before, but payable after, a forfeiture may be recovered²; but the company cannot prove in the bankruptcy of a person whose shares have been forfeited and reissued for more than the difference between the amount unpaid at the date of forfeiture and the amount received from subsequent holders of the shares³. The validity of a forfeiture cannot be disputed in the bankruptcy, but must be tried in a separate proceeding⁴. Forfeiture does not exempt the holder of shares from liability as a past member⁵.

Where the due payment of calls has been guaranteed, the company, by forfeiting the shares for non-payment, releases the surety from his liability under the guarantee⁶.

1219. Re-allotting forfeited shares.

Where shares have been forfeited by the company¹, on re-allotting them² it may give credit for money already received in respect of them. Where credit for the amount already paid is given, the new allottee becomes liable for the balance remaining unpaid on the shares⁵.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(21) ACQUISITION BY LIMITED COMPANY OF ITS OWN SHARES/(i) Rules regarding Company acquiring own Shares/F. FORFEITURE AND SURRENDER OF SHARES/1220. Surrender in case of company limited by shares.

1220. Surrender in case of company limited by shares.

There are only minimal references to the surrender of shares¹ in the Companies Act 2006². However, under model articles of association³, a member may surrender any share in respect of which the directors may issue a notice of intended forfeiture, or any share which the directors may forfeit, or any share which has been forfeited⁴. The directors may accept the surrender of any such share⁵. The effect of surrender on a share is the same as the effect of forfeiture on that share⁶; and a share which has been surrendered may be dealt with in the same way as a share which has been forfeited⁷.

Where the company is limited by shares⁸, such a power does not justify them either in accepting a surrender for any valuable consideration paid by the company out of its assets, as the transaction is a purchase by the company of its own shares⁹, or in repaying to the member the amount paid on his shares¹⁰. Where a surrender of shares, whether fully paid up or not¹¹, amounts to a reduction of capital¹², it cannot be effected other than in accordance with the statutory procedures that govern reduction¹³, except as a short cut to forfeiture where forfeiture would be justified¹⁴ under the articles for failure to pay any sum payable in respect of the shares; and, perhaps, by way of compromise either of a genuine dispute as to whether the shares have been legally issued¹⁵, or of a genuine claim for rectification of the register for misrepresentation¹⁶.

It has been held that a surrender of fully paid shares in return for other shares of the same nominal amount does not amount to a reduction of capital and may be validly effected¹⁷.

A transfer of shares to a nominee on behalf of the company is not a surrender, though the practical effect may be similar. Where some consideration moves from the company, such a transfer is invalid¹⁸; but, where no consideration moves from the company, it is valid¹⁹ and may be made direct to the company itself.

(ii) Financial Assistance for Purchase of own Shares

1222. Limits on company's power to deal with its assets.

A company incorporated under the Companies Acts¹ has not, as corporations at common law² have, the power to do with its property all such acts as an ordinary person may do³. Thus a company cannot otherwise than under the statutory provisions⁴ make use of its assets to purchase or traffic in its own shares⁵, and, subject to certain exceptions, a public company (or a subsidiary of that company) may not provide financial assistance⁶ directly or indirectly for the purpose of the acquisition of its own shares⁷, and a private or public company may not give financial assistance, and a public company cannot give financial assistance directly or indirectly

Among the forms which financial assistance might take is the purchase of an asset at an overvalue; there can be no doubt but that this can constitute prohibited assistance⁹. The payment of a debt owed by the company itself cannot be financial assistance¹⁰. However, the payment off of a parent company's debt by a subsidiary will constitute such assistance¹¹, as will the payment by the subsidiary of a target company of professional fees incurred by a purchaser of shares in the target company¹². The payment of a dividend is not, however, financial assistance¹³. Where an agreement between the parties is capable of being performed in alternative ways, one lawful and one in breach of the provisions relating to financial assistance, it is to be presumed that the parties intend to carry out the agreement in a lawful and not in an unlawful manner¹⁴.

6 As to the meaning of 'financial assistance' see PARA 1223. The statutory prohibition was enacted as a result of the previously common practice of purchasing the shares of a company having a substantial cash balance or easily realisable assets and so arranging matters that the purchase money was lent by the company to the purchaser: see Re VGM Holdings Ltd [1942] Ch 235 at 239, [1942] 1 All ER 224 at 225-226, CA, per Lord Greene MR. [Regardless of the forms of financial assistance caught], the general mischief . . . remains the same, namely that the resources of the target company and its subsidiaries should not be used directly or indirectly to assist the purchaser financially to make the acquisition. This may prejudice the interests of the creditors of the target or its group, and the interests of any shareholders who do not accept the offer to acquire their shares or to whom the offer is not made: see Chaston v SWP Group Ltd [2002] EWCA Civ 1999 at [31], [2003] 1 BCLC 675 at [31] per Arden LJ.

In cases where the application of the financial assistance provisions is doubtful, it is important to remember their central purpose, to examine the commercial realities of the transaction and to bear in mind that the statute is a penal statute: Anglo Petroleum Ltd v TFB (Mortgages) Ltd [2007] EWCA Civ 456, [2008] 1 BCLC 185 (the commercial reality was that the defendants were seeking to avoid their liabilities to the claimant, for what was in essence a straightforward commercial loan, by a strained reading of the statute; but none of the arrangements at issue was unlawful). See also note 7.

7 Because the financial assistance must be for the purpose of the acquisition, the policy of the statute extends beyond mere assistance given to enable the price for shares to be paid and requires that the objective of the payment is to further the acquisition: Chaston v SWP Group plc [2003] EWCA Civ 1999, [2003] 1 BCLC 675 (financial assistance given when subsidiary paid due diligence expenses incurred by prospective purchaser of parent company shares). The assistance does not have to be given to the purchaser if the purpose of the assistance remains the acquisition of the shares nor does the company giving the assistance have to suffer detriment: Chaston v SWP Group plc. The commercial realities of the transaction must be examined: Charterhouse Investment Trust Ltd v Tempest Diesels Ltd [1986] BCLC 1. 8 See PARA 1224 et seq. As to the meaning of 'holding company' see PARA 25. The prohibition applies only to subsidiaries registered under the Companies Acts and therefore a foreign subsidiary of an English parent company can give financial assistance for the acquisition of the latter's shares: Arab Bank plc v Merchantile Holdings Ltd [1994] Ch 71, [1994] 2 All ER 74. Any other interpretation would give the statute an extra-territorial effect contrary to the general principles of private international law: Arab Bank plc v Merchantile Holdings Ltd. The giving of financial assistance by a subsidiary is not ipso facto financial assistance by the parent company but it may involve unlawful conduct by the parent company either by procuring a breach of the prohibition or by constituting indirect financial assistance: Arab Bank plc v Merchantile Holdings Ltd. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(21) ACQUISITION BY LIMITED COMPANY OF ITS OWN SHARES/(ii) Financial Assistance for Purchase of own Shares/1223. Meaning of 'financial assistance'.

1223. Meaning of 'financial assistance'.

In general, a company may not provide financial assistance for the acquisition of its own shares¹. For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 provisions which govern such assistance², 'financial assistance'³ means:

- 2141 (1) financial assistance given by way of gift⁴;
- 2142 (2) financial assistance given by way of guarantee, security or indemnity (other than an indemnity in respect of the indemnifier's own neglect or default), or by way of release or waiver⁵;
- 2143 (3) financial assistance given: (a) by way of a loan or any other agreement under which any of the obligations of the person giving the assistance are to be fulfilled at a time when in accordance with the agreement any obligation of another party to the agreement remains unfulfilled; or (b) by way of the novation of, or the assignment of rights arising under, a loan or such other agreement⁶; or
- 2144 (4) any other financial assistance given by a company where the net assets⁷ of the company are reduced to a material extent by the giving of the assistance, or the company has no net assets⁸.

1 The text refers to a company that falls within the prohibitions set out in the Companies Act 2006 ss 678(1), (3), 679(1), (3): see PARAS 1224, 1225. See also Arab Bank plc v Merchantile Holdings Ltd [1994] Ch 71, [1994] 1 BCLC 330 at 335-337 per Millett J (applied in AMG Global Nominees (Private) Ltd v Africa Resources Ltd [2008] EWHC 221 (Ch), [2008] 1 BCLC 447); and PARA 1222 note 8.

2 Ie for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 18 Ch 2 (ss 677-683) (see PARAS 1222, 1224 et seq). The prohibition on the giving of financial assistance by a private company for the acquisition of shares in itself, which was set out in the Companies Act 1985 ss 151-153 (repealed) (see now the Companies Act 2006 Pt 18 Ch 2), has been abolished; and such companies do not fall within Pt 18 Ch 2 unless they are subsidiaries of a public company giving financial assistance for the acquisition of shares in that public company. As to transitional provisions that apply in relation to financial assistance given on or after 1 October 2008, following the repeal of the Companies Act 1985 ss 151-153 (prohibition of financial assistance for acquisition of shares) (see now the Companies Act 2006 Pt 18 Ch 2), see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 5, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/3495, art 9, Sch 4 para 51. The repeal of the Companies Act 1985 ss 151-153 does not cause anything that would have been unlawful by reason of any rule of law if that rule had not ceased to have effect (or been modified) as a consequence of the enactment of any provision contained in the Companies Act 1985 ss 151-153 (or as a consequence of the enactment of any former statutory provision substantially similar in effect to any such provision) to be rendered unlawful by reason of any rule of law that had so ceased to have effect or been modified: see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 5, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/3495, Sch 4 para 52.

3 The phrase 'financial assistance' has to be interpreted in the light of the language of ordinary commerce: Charterhouse Investment Trust Ltd v Tempest Diesels Ltd [1986] BCLC 1 at 10 et seq per Hoffmann J (the surrender of tax losses by the company whose shares were being acquired to its holding company not shown to amount to company giving financial assistance for the purchase of its own shares). What matters is the commercial reality of the transaction and its substance: MT Realisations Ltd (in liquidation) v Digital Equipment Co Ltd [2003] EWCA Civ 494, [2003] 2 BCLC 117; Charterhouse Investment Trust Ltd v Tempest Diesels Ltd. See also Chaston v SWP Group plc [2003] EWCA Civ 1999, [2003] 1 BCLC 675, [2003] BCC 140 (rather than defining the phrase 'financial assistance', the statutory provision simply identifies forms of assistance which are to be treated as financial assistance). As a penal provision what is now the Companies Act 2006 s 677 should not be strained to cover transactions not fairly within it: Charterhouse Investment Trust Ltd v Tempest Diesels Ltd; British and Commonwealth Holdings plc v Barclays Bank plc [1996] 1 BCLC 1 at 25 per Harman J (affd [1996] 1 All ER 381, [1996] 1 WLR 1, CA). It is immaterial that the giving of the assistance (eg by means of a debenture) might otherwise be ultra vires the company (and hence void) in any event: Heald v O'Connor [1971] 2 All ER 1105, [1971] 1 WLR 497; Selangor United Rubber Estates Ltd v Cradock (a bankrupt) (No 3) [1968] 2 All ER 1073 at 1152-1154, [1968] 1 WLR 1555 at 1656-1659 per Ungood-Thomas J; Dressy Frocks Pty Ltd v Bock (1951) 51 SRNSW 390, NSW FC; Shearer Transport Co Pty Ltd v McGrath [1956] VLR 316; EH Dey Pty Ltd v Dey [1966] VR 464 (not following Victor Battery Co Ltd v Curry's Ltd [1946] Ch 242, [1946] 1 All ER 519). 1224. Assistance for acquisition of shares in public company.

Where a person is acquiring or proposing to acquire shares¹ in a public company², it is not lawful for that company, or a company that is a subsidiary³ of that company, to give financial assistance⁴ directly or indirectly for the purpose of the acquisition⁵ before or at the same time as the acquisition takes place⁶. This does not, however, prohibit a company from giving financial assistance for the acquisition of shares in it or its holding company⁷ if: (1) the company's principal purpose in giving the assistance is not to give it for the purpose of any such acquisition; or (2) the giving of the assistance for that purpose is only an incidental part of some larger purpose of the company, and the assistance is given in good faith in the interests of the company⁸.

Where a person has acquired shares in a company, and a liability has been incurred⁹ (by that or another person) for the purpose of the acquisition, it is not lawful for that company, or a company that is a subsidiary of that company, to give financial assistance directly or indirectly for the purpose of reducing or discharging the liability if, at the time the assistance is given, the company in which the shares were acquired is a public company¹⁰. However, this does not prohibit a company from giving financial assistance if: (a) the company's principal purpose in giving the assistance is not to reduce or discharge any liability incurred by a person for the purpose of the acquisition of shares in the company or its holding company; or (b) the reduction or discharge of any such liability is only an incidental part of some larger purpose of the company, and the assistance is given in good faith in the interests of the company¹¹.

8 Companies Act 2006 s 678(2). See note 6. See also PARA 1225. In construing the word 'purpose' in this context, the court will bear in mind the mischief against which the statutory provisions are aimed and will distinguish between a purpose and the reason why a purpose is formed: Brady v Brady [1989] AC 755 at 779, [1988] 2 All ER 617 at 633, HL, per Lord Oliver Of Aylmerton. Where reliance is placed on the fact that the company's principal purpose in giving the assistance is not to give it for the purpose of any such acquisition or, as the case may be, is not to reduce or discharge any liability incurred by a person for the purpose of the acquisition of shares in the company or its holding company, this envisages a principal and, by implication, a subsidiary purpose for the assistance; for example, the assistance may be given principally to acquire from the purchaser of shares in the company an asset which the company requires for its business: Brady v Brady at 778 and 632 per Lord Oliver Of Aylmerton. Where reliance is placed on the fact that the financial assistance is but an incidental part of some larger purpose of the company, it is necessary to find some larger overall corporate purpose of the company in which the giving of the financial assistance or the resultant reduction or discharge of liability is merely incidental: Brady v Brady at 779 and 633 per Lord Oliver Of Aylmerton. The existence of reasons such as the commercial advantages flowing from the transaction do not amount to a larger purpose of which the assistance can properly be considered to be an incident: Brady v Brady at 779 and 633 per Lord Oliver Of Aylmerton. In Brady v Brady, the purpose of the financial assistance was to assist in the financing of the acquisition of shares, although the reason for the financial assistance was to facilitate the break up of a business; that reason did not amount to the larger purpose required by the statute. See also Plaut v Steiner (1988) 5 BCC 352.

The words 'in good faith in the interests of the company' form a single composite expression and postulate a requirement that those responsible for procuring the company to provide the assistance act in the genuine belief that it is being done in the company's interest: Brady v Brady at 777, at 632 per Lord Oliver Of Aylmerton. The time at which this is to be considered is the time at which the assistance is given: Brady v Brady. If the company was insolvent at that time, the assistance could not be given in good faith in the interests of the company (Plaut v Steiner); nor would it be so given where the company giving the assistance had no interest in the transaction (Plaut v Steiner). 9 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 18 Ch 2 (ss 677-683), a reference to a person incurring a liability includes his changing his financial position by making an agreement or arrangement (whether enforceable or unenforceable, and whether made on his own account or with any other person) or by any other means; and a reference to a company giving financial assistance for the purposes of reducing or discharging a liability incurred by a person for the purpose of the acquisition of shares includes its giving such assistance for the purpose of wholly or partly restoring his financial position to what it was before the acquisition took place: s 683(2).

1225. Assistance by public company for acquisition of shares in its private holding company.

Where a person is acquiring or proposing to acquire shares¹ in a private company², it is not lawful for a public company³ that is a subsidiary⁴ of that company to give financial assistance⁵ directly or indirectly for the purpose of the acquisition⁶ before or at the same time as the acquisition takes place⁷. However, this does not prohibit a company from giving financial assistance for the acquisition of shares in its holding company⁸ if: (1) the company's principal purpose in giving the assistance is not to give it for the purpose of any such acquisition; or (2) the giving of the assistance for that purpose is only an incidental part of some larger purpose of the company, and the assistance is given in good faith in the interests of the company⁹.

Where a person has acquired shares in a private company, and a liability has been incurred (by that or another person) for the purpose of the acquisition, it is not lawful for a public company that is a subsidiary of that company to give financial assistance directly or indirectly for the purpose of reducing or discharging the liability¹⁰. A. REDEEMABLE SHARES

A limited company¹ having a share capital² may issue shares³ that are to be redeemed or are liable to be redeemed at the option of the company or the shareholder⁴ ('redeemable shares'), subject to the following provisions⁵:

- 2156 (1) the articles of a private limited company⁶ may exclude or restrict the issue of redeemable shares⁷;
- 2157 (2) a public limited company⁸ may only issue redeemable shares if it is authorised to do so by its articles⁹;
- 2158 (3) no redeemable shares may be issued at a time when there are no issued shares of the company that are not redeemable¹⁰.

Redeemable shares in a limited company may not be redeemed unless they are fully paid¹¹. The terms of redemption of shares in a limited company may provide that the amount payable on redemption may, by agreement between the company and the holder of the shares, be paid on a date later than the redemption date¹². Unless this is the case, the shares must be paid for on redemption¹³.

In Re RW Peak (King's Lynn) Ltd [1998] 1 BCLC 193, it was held that non-compliance with the statutory requirements will not be treated as a mere procedural irregularity capable of being waived or dispensed with or validated by unanimous agreement of all members entitled to vote at meetings of the company. However, whether strict adherence with the formalities for calling meetings and passing resolutions could be waived by all the relevant shareholders entitled to vote acting informally but unanimously depends on whether the particular requirement sought to be waived was intended merely to protect the current shareholders or to confer protection on a wider class of persons (in particular the company's creditors) in which case compliance could not be waived even if the members acted unanimously: see Kinlan v Crimmin [2006] EWHC 779 (Ch), [2007] 2 BCLC 67; Dashfield v Davidson [2008] EWHC 486 (Ch), [2009] 1 BCLC 220. The directors¹ of a limited company² may determine the terms, conditions and manner of redemption of shares³ if they are authorised to do so by the company's articles⁴, or by a resolution⁵ of the company⁶. Where the directors are so authorised to determine the terms, conditions and manner of redemption of shares, they must do so before the shares are allotted⁷, and any obligation of the company to state in a statement of capital⁸ the rights attached to the shares extends to the terms, conditions and manner of redemption⁹. Where the directors are not so authorised, the terms, conditions and manner of redemption of any redeemable shares must be stated in the company's articles¹⁰.

A private limited company¹ may redeem redeemable shares² out of capital³. Subject to that, redeemable shares in a limited company⁴ may only be redeemed out of distributable profits⁵ of the company⁶, or the proceeds of a fresh issue of shares made for the purposes of the redemption⁷.

Any premium payable on redemption of shares in a limited company must be paid out of distributable profits of the company⁸. However, if the redeemable shares were issued at a premium⁹, any premium payable on their redemption may be paid out of the proceeds of a fresh issue of shares made for the purposes of the redemption, up to an amount equal to: (1) the aggregate of the premiums received by the company on the issue of the shares redeemed; or (2) the current amount of the company's share premium account (including any sum transferred to that account in respect of premiums on the new shares), whichever is the less¹⁰. In the following circumstances a company must transfer amounts to a reserve, called the 'capital redemption reserve'¹.

- 2163 (1) Where² shares³ of a limited company⁴ are redeemed⁵ or purchased wholly out of the company's profits⁶, the amount by which the company's issued share capital⁷ is diminished on the cancellation of shares redeemed⁸, or on the cancellation of shares purchased⁹, must be transferred to the capital redemption reserve¹⁰.

A limited company¹ may only purchase its own shares² by an off-market purchase, in pursuance of a contract approved in advance³, or by a market purchase⁴. A purchase is 'off-market' if the shares either are purchased otherwise than on a recognised investment exchange⁵, or are purchased on a recognised investment exchange but are not subject to a marketing arrangement on the exchange⁶.

A company may only make an off-market purchase of its own shares in pursuance of a contract approved prior to the purchase in accordance with the following provisions⁷. Either: (1) the terms of the contract must be authorised by a special resolution⁸ of the company before the contract is entered into; or (2) the contract must provide that no shares may be purchased in pursuance of the contract until its terms have been authorised by a special resolution of the company⁹. The contract may be a contract, entered into by the company and relating to shares in the company, that does not amount to a contract to purchase the shares but under which the company may, subject to any conditions, become entitled or obliged to purchase the shares¹⁰. The authority conferred by such a resolution may be varied¹¹, revoked or from time to time renewed by a special resolution of the company¹². In the case of a public company¹³ a resolution conferring, varying or renewing authority must specify a date on which the authority is to expire, which must not be later than five years after the date on which the resolution is passed¹⁴.

An agreement by a company to release its rights under an approved contract¹⁵ is void unless the terms of the release agreement are approved in advance¹⁶.

The rights of a company under a contract giving authority for off-market purchase¹⁷ are not capable of being assigned¹⁸.

A payment made by a company in consideration of: (a) acquiring any right with respect to the off-market purchase of its own shares in pursuance of a contingent purchase contract¹⁹; (b) the variation of any such contract; or (c) the release of any of the company's obligations with respect to the purchase of any of its own shares under such a contract, must be made out of the company's distributable profits²⁰. If this requirement is not met in relation to a contract, then, in a case within head (a), no purchase by the company of its own shares in pursuance of that contract may be made, in a case within head (b), no such purchase following the variation may be made, and, in a case within head (c), the purported release is void²¹.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 693(1). A market purchase is authorised in accordance with s 701 (see PARA 1238). A purchase is a 'market purchase' if it is made on a recognised investment exchange and is not an off-market purchase by virtue of s 693(2)(b) (see the text to note 6): s 693(4). In s 693, 'recognised investment exchange' means a recognised investment exchange (within the meaning of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt 18 (ss 285-313) other than an overseas exchange (within the meaning of that Part) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 684): Companies Act 2006 s 693(5).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 693(2)(b). For this purpose, a company's shares are subject to a marketing arrangement on a recognised investment exchange if: (1) they are listed under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt 6 (ss 72-103) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 385 et seq); or (2) the company has been afforded facilities for dealings in the shares to take place on the exchange (a) without prior permission for individual transactions from the authority governing that investment exchange; and (b) without limit as to the time during which those facilities are to be available: Companies Act 2006 s 693(3).
